BARE NEW LINDBERGH LETTER

REVEAL WILSON WAS FORCED TO SUPPORT ALLIES

British Loans Urged by Sec'y McAdoo.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—How pressure from commercial and financial interests finally forced Woodrow Wilson to abandon his neutrality position and secretly approve loans to the allied cause was brought out by the senate munitions committee today with J. P. Morgan and his associates on the witness stand.

The committee had spent a whole day endeavoring to show that the Morgans manipulated the exchange situation in favor of Great Britain and used it as a club over Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, but it was a letter from James B. Forgan, then president of the First National Bank of Chicago, which resulted in a penciled notation from President Wilson saying: "This should be orally conveyed, so far as we are concerned, and not put in writing."

Credit Essential to Trade.

The series of correspondence precipitated by the Forgan letter and resulting in President Wilson's approval of loans to Great Britain included a letter from Secretary McAdoo saying that the extension of credits to the allies was essential to the maintenance of our foreign trade and general prosperity.

The introduction of a long interchange of cablegrams between Morgan & Co. of New York and Morgan, Grenfell & Co. of London, relating to the floating of a British loan, disclosed the difficulties they feared—namely: the neutrality position of the Wilson administration and skepticism on the part of American investors with respect to belligerent securities.

These communications disclosed that the Morgans, acting as commercial agent for Great Britain in the United States, had been buying and selling sterling as the situation required and stabilizing it at $4.77.

One of the cablegrams from Morgan & Co. of New York to Morgan, Greenfell & Co. of London said:

"For your information, in view of the conference H. P. Davison had with the secretary of the treasury, we have today sent word to the secretary of the treasury that we regard the exchange situation as very serious from the point of view of our commerce, in order that the administration may be fully informed and with hopes that they might in some way be helpful, making no definite suggestions, however."

This cablegram was dated Aug. 18, 1915, just one month after another one to the London Morgan firm had declared:

"You understand that our interest in this situation is only that of the general welfare and in the interest of British credit."

Finds Terms Synonymous.

Questioned about this apparent discrepancy, Thomas W. Lamont, Morgan partner, said that in his opinion the "British credit" and the "general welfare" were synonymous.

The question of a British loan, which finally was consummated in the amount of $500,000,000, had been under consideration for months when the Morgan cablegram of Aug. 18, relating to the conference with Secretary McAdoo, was dispatched. Leading banks in Chicago and other large cities had been sounded out with respect to their participation in a syndicate.

The day before the cablegram was sent Mr. Forgan wrote to F. A. Delano, vice governor of the federal reserve board at Washington, saying:

"I want to get some information for a very confidential purpose, and it has occurred to me that you may be in a position to help me secure it.

Asks Wilson's Attitude.

"It is, to put it bluntly: I would like to know what the attitude of the administration in Washington would be toward the flotation of a large British loan in this country. Some time ago I remember seeing in the press that the state department had discouraged New York bankers on a proposition to float a British loan in this country, but at the same time it was stated that it was not within the province of the government to veto such a transaction.

"It would seem to me that the present condition of international ex-

RANSOM MONEY PASSER WRITES TO CLEAR BRUNO

Gov. Hoffman Gets Faulkner Note.

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—A startling development in the Lindbergh kidnap-murder case came to light today when Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey announced receipt of a letter from the mysterious "J. J. Faulkner," declaring Bruno Richard Hauptmann did not kidnap and kill the baby.

Faulkner is the man, never located, who deposited $2,980 of the Lindbergh ransom notes in the Federal Reserve Bank of New York when the President called in all gold.

Handwriting Is Same.

Hauptmann's innocence of the crime for which he is under sentence to die was stressed in the Faulkner note in the same bold, facile penmanship of the person who on May 1, 1933, gave the fictitious address of 537 West 149th street, Manhattan, when the ransom money was exchanged for new bills.

Detailed reasons for sparing Hauptmann's life were given by the writer, whose script from beginning to end showed peculiarities linking unmistakably with the subtreasury slip. The handwriting expert's report, completed after more than a week's study, was turned over to the governor tonight. Hoffman declined to comment, but his secretary, William Conklin, indicated the evidence will be considered by the Court of Pardons when that mercy tribunal meets at 10:30 a. m. Saturday.

Text of Letter.

The letter to Gov. Hoffman follows:

"To His Excellency,
"Mr. Harold G. Hoffman.
"Sir:

"As the zero hour in the Hauptmann case draws near I feel impelled to direct these few lines to your excellency in order to dispel the preconceived idea of the guilt of Hauptmann or rather to sustain and affirm you in your, and rightly so, formed idea of his innocence.

"In spite of all the confusion and artificially created hateful atmosphere attending his trial, you seem to have been the only person who was capable of preserving an objective view of the case, notwithstanding all the animosity and antagonistic feeling and outside pressure which factors combined were able to sway a Jersey jury of twelve good, but spineless people to return a verdict of guilt against an innocent man in a case on purely superficial—yea—artificially created evidence.

"Hauptmann, an expert carpenter, made the kidnap ladder, the work of which an apprentice boy of one month's standing would be ashamed of? Hauptmann guilty of this crime he stands convicted of?

Calls Him "Not Guilty."

"Does your excellency believe that in the own words of the most famous judge in the case, who exercised undue and unconstitutional control over twelve simple-minded, good people. Of course not, I know you don't. I cannot help but admiring you for the fact that you are about the only person in dominant position who was capable of sustaining an unbiased and wide perspective of the case. Hauptmann is not guilty, not of the crime he stands convicted of.

"All the poor bum is guilty of is his money madness, which made him risk a thousand dollars or so of his own good earned money in the belief and greedy notion that he could get independently rich and by hiding this cheaply acquired hoard, he brought himself into all this trouble, nearly causing him to lose his life, which I hope will now be spared.

"Now that I have communicated to your excellency and given you some of the inside dope, you will readily understand that for personal reasons I am not interested to go into further details and your honor will also believe me that these lines are not dictated by a desire to be an informative.

Can't Come Into Open.

"All I intend to do is to follow the impelling power of my conscience and the desire to friendly assist you to prevent the state of New Jersey from committing a legal blunder and mur-

OLD SANTO DOMINGO GETS A NEW NAME; IT IS TRUJILLO CITY

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, Jan. 9.—(AP)—This city in the West Indies, the oldest existing settlement of white men in the new world, will change its name tomorrow to that of its present dictator.

Then it will not be "Santo Domingo," the name given it by the Spanish conquistadores, but "Ciudad Trujillo [Trujillo City], in honor of its president and dictator, Gen. Rafael Leonidas Trujillo. Santo Domingo was founded in 1496.

The senate approved a measure last night changing the name and the chamber of deputies passed on it today. Supporters of the proposal contended the change was justified by the "great works" accomplished by Trujillo, especially the development of the artificial port here.

Santo Domingo has been called the most nearly perfect example of a Spanish colonial town of the 16th century. It is surrounded by ancient walls. The man whose name Santo Domingo will bear is only 45 years old. He first gained power in 1930 after a revolt, was elected president, and was reëlected last year. He rules with an iron hand.

JAPANESE SLAP AT LIBERTY GIVEN TO PHILIPPINES

TOKIO, Jan. 10 [Friday].—(AP)—A strong indication that the Japanese government is averse to any pact among Pacific powers guaranteeing the independence and neutrality of the Philippines was given today by a high official source.

A foreign office spokesman, in a discussion of future relations between Japan and the Philippines, said:

"The Japanese government renounces the idea of great powers concluding agreements guaranteeing the freedom, integrity, or neutrality of another nation."

The spokesman declined to say definitly whether Japan would refuse to conclude such a pact with Pacific powers concerning the Philippines, where a commonwealth government has been inaugurated in preparation for complete independence from the United States, but asserted:

"Such agreements are humiliating to the nation they are supposed to benefit."

That Giggle! It's Not Funny in Lake Forest

Early yesterday morning the telephone rang in the Lake Forest fire department and a woman's voice informed Lieut. Frank Butterfield that the home of Mrs. Seymour Wheeler at 1291 North Elm Tree road in the suburb was burning. Butterfield ordered two pieces of equipment to the scene.

R. F. CARR JR.

Meanwhile the same woman had telephoned the Lake Forest police department, said she was Mrs. Wheeler and that her daughter was being robbed at the home by four men. Sergt. Alfred Lindenmeyer, who answered the call and had heard of the fire alarm, asked the woman if she was sure the Wheeler home wasn't burning instead of being robbed.

Fire? Robbery? Guess Again!

"No, it's not a fire. It's a robbery," she insisted.

Two squads of police hurried to the Wheeler home. They encountered the firemen.

"There's no fire," said the firemen.

"We know that," said the policemen. "It's a robbery."

"Wrong again," said the firemen. "There's no robbery, either."

Then the police and firemen were informed that Mrs. Wheeler was spending the winter in Florida, her husband had stayed in Chicago over night and the Wheelers' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lihme, were the only ones in the house and knew nothing of the telephone calls.

Annoyed by the false alarms, the police returned to the station and traced the calls. They had come from the apartment of Robert F. Carr at 209 Lake Shore drive in Chicago.

Pineapple Has the Giggles.

Another call from the same woman came to the Wheeler home at about this time and Lindenmeyer, who had remained there, listened in, while Mrs. Lihme answered. Mrs. Lihme demanded indignantly: "What is the idea?" She also asked the caller's name.

"This is pineapple," the woman said, laughing. A few minutes later she called back with another "identification." "This is the Fuller brush man," she giggled.

Lindenmeyer telephoned the Carr home and the same woman answered. She asked him if he was "Ed Morrison" and the sergeant said he was and "would be right up." Lindenmeyer then called the Chicago avenue police and a squad was sent to the Carr home.

Chicago Police Take Hand.

The squad aroused Robert Carr Jr. from bed. He said there had been a party in the apartment.

"It's broken up, though," Carr said. "I don't know who made the telephone calls from here."

The Lake Forest police and firemen estimated that the cost of using their equipment on the false alarms was about $100.

Last night Randolph G. Owsley, chairman of the police and fire departments committee of Lake Forest, said that he had told Carr the suburb would not stand for false alarms and Carr's guests "could have more fun for less money in other ways."

Carr, Owsley said, then agreed to reimburse Lake Forest for the cost of the equipment used in answering the alarms.

Carr's father was in Washington yesterday as co-chairman of the Chicago committee which tried in vain to bring the Democratic convention here.

SOVIET ASTRONOMER FOILS FOG; ASCENDS 4 MILES TO SEE ECLIPSE

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Jan. 9.—When a fog hanging over Moscow prevented astronomers from observing last night's eclipse of the moon, and frosts in a temperature of 20 below zero made an airplane ascent impossible, the civil air force was called upon and E. N. Floria, an astronomer, went up four miles in a balloon.

Equipped with oxygen masks and braving a cold of 37 below zero, the astronomers observed the eclipse from a high altitude for three hours, after which the pilot brought the balloon to earth near Gorki. The whole flight lasted 6 hours 20 minutes.

The thickness of the cloud layers was about two and a half miles, according to the pilot, Commander Kay Zille. The surface of the balloon did not become frost covered.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—After six hours of complacent and self-congratulatory debate before galleries crowded with war veterans, the house this evening cleared the way for passage tomorrow of the bonus bill by a record majority.

A vote will be taken at noon tomorrow on a motion to recommit the bill to committee. This is expected to be defeated easily and final passage will follow immediately.

Not more than 30 or 40 votes will be mustered against the measure tomorrow out of the 435 possible ballots, it was apparent. A 10 to 1 ratio in favor of the bill was evident. Only a few voices were raised against the bill today, although these protests came from some of the most respected members of both political parties.

The bill, sponsored by three major veterans' organizations, provides for immediate cash payment of the adjusted service certificates awarded the veterans in 1925 with a 1945 maturity date.

Inflation Method Popular.

Although the bill does not provide a method for raising the two and one-half billions estimated as its cost, it was made plain in today's arguments that the greenback inflation method is still most popular in the house and probably will be indorsed at a later period. The voting of taxes to meet the cost of the bonus payments would not be agreeable to the representatives in an election year, it was made most clear.

Most of the statesmen who spoke in support of the measure confined themselves to a review of the perils undergone by American soldiers in the war and the necessity of rewarding them immediately without waiting another 10 years before giving them cash in hand.

Typical of the small group in opposition to the measure were Representatives James W. Wadsworth [Rep., N. Y.], and Representative Hatton W. Sumners [Dem., Tex.], chairman of the judiciary committee. Both warned of the peril to the credit of the nation in adding more billions to the already huge national debt.

Cites Danger of Inflation.

"There are signs in this country today that we are already in the initial stages of inflation," Wadsworth declared. "The budget must be balanced soon or serious danger impends. What will happen when the deficit is increased by the two billions necessary to carry out this act?"

Sumners, veteran of 24 years' consecutive service in the house, was grave as he told his fellow Democrats that "we lack thirty billions of having a cent in the treasury now."

"I don't believe the veterans understand the situation we are in," he said, "or they would not demand this payment now. I know my attitude may make me a political casualty, but I'm willing if my protest does any good.

"I realize this bill is going to pass this house and the senate and will

Chicago Is $50,000 Under Winner.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The Democratic national convention, which is to renominate President Roosevelt, will be held at Philadelphia June 23, two weeks after the Republican convention at Cleveland.

The Democratic national committee meeting here today auctioned off the convention to the highest bidder. Chicago and San Francisco each offered $150,000. Philadelphia raised the bid to $200,000 and won.

It is doubtful that Chicago could have won even with an equivalent bid, for the Democratic leaders, including the President himself, were known to be partial to Philadelphia.

May Kill Two-Thirds Rule.

The committee authorized its chairman to call the convention for the usual purposes and also for consideration of the proposal to change the rules to provide for nominations by a majority instead of a two-third vote. The Chicago convention in 1932 recommended that the 1936 convention consider this revocation of the two-thirds rule which Andrew Jackson caused the party to adopt to insure the nomination of Martin Van Buren for Vice President in 1832.

Under the terms of the resolution authorizing the call the convention will consist of 1,082 delegates—two for each senator and representative and the remainder for the territories and possessions. The convention imposes rigid economy in the convention arrangements.

Predicts Bitter Campaign.

Before the committee got down to the business it listened to a speech by Chairman Farley, in which he predicted "our opponents will make this the bitterest and certainly the dirtiest political struggle that any of us here can remember."

Farley's address to the committee was at once a warning that every Democrat must be up on his toes and a defense of the Roosevelt administration.

He predicted the campaign waged by the opponents of the New Deal would be a "campaign of defamation" and that the "assault on the Roosevelt administration would be financed by the largest slush fund on record, contributed for the most part by those who have neither public conscience nor private scruple."

Insists Pledges Kept.

The President, Farley insisted, had kept his pledges to the people—that none should starve, that there should be sound currency and government credit, that prohibition should be repealed—and had put the country successfully on the road to recovery.

National Committeeman Frank Hague of New Jersey offered a resolution reaffirming the loyalty of the members of the committee to President Roosevelt and indorsing the efforts "of our great leader."

The resolution was slated to go through unanimously.

Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, bitter foe of the Roosevelt administration, a member of the national committee, loudly shouted "no" when the resolution was put to a vote.

That the selection of the convention city would be an auction developed at the beginning.

Only Three Bidders.

Chairman Farley announced that there were only three bidders for the convention—California, Illinois and Pennsylvania—and proceeded to introduce the representatives of those states in alphabetical order.

Senator William G. McAdoo of California depicted the glories of the west coast climate and wound up with a bid of $150,000 and a rent free convention hall on behalf of San Francisco.

"Senator McAdoo opened the pot and we'll stay," said Pat Nash, Illinois national committeeman, in rising to present the speakers for Chicago.

"We are not here to play poker," said Robert F. Carr, co-chairman of the Chicago citizens' committee, "but are here to offer you a certified check for $150,000."

George W. Young explained the convention accommodations in Chicago and then Albert Lasker, co-chairman of the citizens' committee, came forward with Chicago's check and waved it aloft for all to see.

"This is real money," said Mr. Lasker. "It is a check certified by the bank of which your treasurer is chairman, and it ought to be good. It is not subject to income tax or other ravages, if you know what I mean."

Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois formally extended the city's invitation on behalf of Mayor Kelly, who was unable to be present.

"If the party holds its convention in Chicago," said the senator, "it will benefit incalculably from the publicity of the convention deliberations which the Chicago newspapers will disseminate throughout the region which it is of the greatest importance the party should carry in the election."

Philadelphia's Bid Next.

Senator William H. Dieterich of Illinois reinforced his colleague's arguments and then came the Philadelphia bid.

Mayor S. Davis Wilson, the Republican mayor of Philadelphia who used to be a Democrat, asked the committee to consider how wonderful it would be for Mr. Roosevelt to accept renomination in the shadow of the Liberty Bell in this 160th anniversary year of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. He offered an air conditioned convention hall and announced a prize contest open to delegates of $1,000 for men and $500 for women for the best 25 word comment on their stay in Philadelphia.

Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania argued that the Supreme court's rejection of the AAA had made the agricultural west safe for Roosevelt. The east is the uncertain region, he said, and a convention in Philadelphia would help mightily to win the east.

Finally Albert Greenfield ascended the platform and bid $200,000 for Philadelphia, tendering a check therefor to Mr. Farley. There was much photographing of Farley and Greenfield holding the check. Farley said it was a long time since the committee had seen checks that big.

California Bids $201,000.

"May I inquire if California has anything more to offer?" asked Mr. Farley.

"I bid $201,000," said Mr. McAdoo.

Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, Pennsylvania committeewoman, said the mayor's $1,400 prizes still made Philadelphia's bid the highest and McAdoo came up another $1,500. Mrs. Miller countered with citation of $50,000 in concessions Philadelphia had promised.

Chairman Farley announced a recess of fifteen minutes before the taking of a vote on the convention city. He darted from the platform into the swarm of delegates to make his way to a telephone.

It was reported that he put in a call to the White House to inform the President of the progress of the bidding and to get an expression of choice from the President. As Farley talked Vice President Garner buttonholed Senator McAdoo.

Philadelphia Preferred.

"What's the idea?" Garner questioned. "You know we want to go to Philadelphia. You ought to know better, Bill."

Garner proceeded to other committeemen and committeewomen and urged selection of Philadelphia.

In the roll call the vote went solidly for Philadelphia except that Senator McAdoo cast California's vote for San Francisco and Illinois and Indiana voted for Chicago. As the clerk reached the Mississippi delegation Committeeman Nash announced he released those on the list who had promised to vote for Chicago.

Senator McAdoo rose to move the selection of Philadelphia be made unanimous. Nash seconded the motion and it was carried with cheers.

San Francisco Fair Board Pledges 7½ Million Fund

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Directors of the San Francisco 1938-'39 world's fair today pledged $7,500,000 to finance the exposition. The resolution to raise the funds by private subscription was offered by Herbert Fleishhacker, banker, and adopted unanimously. The money will supplement $6,244,000 in federal appropriations.

ROOSEVELT'S USE OF CLASS HATRED HIT BY HAMILTON

G. O. P. Speaker Assails Jackson Day Talk.

Before the speechmaking John G. Oglesby of Oglehurst, former lieutenant governor and a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, was given a welcome that sounded like a demonstration.

"As an American," said Mr. Hamilton, "I feel I have the right to resent the fundamental unsoundness of the kind of argument which the President is using to justify himself before the people.

Cites Traditional Opportunities.

"Mr. Roosevelt has never seemed to realize that America has always been and still is a country of achievement. The field has been unlimited for both individual and collective effort. Many, many millions have found on these shores opportunity which was denied them in their countries of origin.

"There are no class distinctions in America such as are known in every other country in the world except one—Russia. We have no peasant class at the bottom and we have no feudal aristocracy at the top.

"The worst thing the President has done, or is doing, is an attempt to create the bogey not only of class distinction but of class hatred. He uses all the dogmas of a demagogue in his attempts to make people believe they are the victims of class oppression, yet if every one will stop a moment to think, instead of being hypnotized by a beguiling radio voice, they will realize how absurd the President's contentions are in a country where there is a higher average standard of living than in any country in the world.

Calls Speech Hypocritic.

"When the President talks of privilege he displays his hypocrisy by seeking to flay the imaginary privileges of a few rather than to recognize the very real privileges enjoyed by the many. Things which we take for granted over here and, therefore, do not think of as privileges are really very great privileges which are known to but a few in other parts of the world.

"There is, however, an even greater danger to be feared when those in authority seek to arouse envy and hatred. They are probably the easiest passions to arouse and the hardest to control once aroused. It is easy to make you envious of your more fortunate neighbor, but we should all remember it is equally easy to make our less fortunate neighbors envious of us.

Sick Nation and Panaceas.

"It is a pity that the President has at no time recommended even to those who have faith in him that they make some effort in their own behalf. The President should know that a sick nation cannot be restored to health by quack medicine and panaceas.

"The President last night said the real issue is the right of the 'average man and woman to lead a finer, a better, and a happier life.' Since when has that right been denied?

"The most important and valuable right of the American people is to have their form of government maintained as they themselves have established it."

Political Activity Gathers Steam Here and Downstate

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

While Democrats prepared for a week-end on anti-Horner slate framing, Republicans yesterday launched the first "Borah for President" club in Illinois.

A. V. Smith, former state's attorney of Lake county for 12 years up to 1932, announced he is organizing a club in Lake county to support the candidacy of the Idaho senator for the Republican presidential nomination. Mr. Smith said he will enter the April primary seeking to be elected as a delegate from the 10th congressional district to the Republican convention at Cleveland, pledged to support Borah.

He said his running mate for delegate may be either David H. Jackson or Edgar Cook.

Downstaters Here Tomorrow.

Word from Springfield was that a group of downstate Democrats headed by Bruce Campbell of Belleville, state chairman, will meet at the Morrison hotel tomorrow to take up the preliminaries of picking a candidate to run in the April primaries against Gov. Henry Horner, who declared after the Cook county committee recently turned a cold shoulder to him, "I am still a candidate."

Among the candidates mentioned are Mr. Campbell, John Stelle, state treasurer; Speaker John Devine of Dixon, and Michael Igoe, U. S. district attorney, former congressman at large and former house floor leader at Springfield. The downstate group is to meet separately before entering into a conference with the Cook county group recently named.

In the gossip yesterday was a report that the organization might seek to land a place on the federal bench for Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan and that in such event Mr. Stelle might be slated for lieutenant governor.

Republican Activity Speeds Up.

On the Republican side there was considerable governorship activity. John G. Oglesby, a guest at the Republican round table luncheon in the Hamilton club yesterday, later dismissed a rumor that he might run for lieutenant governor, saying, "I'm going to run for governor and for nothing else."

Arthur J. Bidwill, former state senator, last night announced to his local committeemen at his home in River Forest that he is a candidate for state auditor. Mr. Bidwill's supporters hold that his name on the Republican ticket would enable the Republicans to make the most of their charges against the Democrats that he was thrown out of his seat in the senate by the Democratic majority because he had spoken lightly of the brother of Pat Nash.

At Springfield, two G. O. P. "harmony" movements appeared. A meeting said to represent 50 downstate Republicans named Paul Samuell of Jacksonville, former state Supreme court justice, as chairman, and A. L. Boelborn of Danville, secretary.

Name Conference Group.

A committee was named to confer with the Cook county organization. Members of the committee are Col. George Seaman, Taylorville; Judge James S. Baldwin, Decatur; Edward P. Petrie, Belleville; Mr. Samuell, and State Representative G. L. Johnson of Paxton, former Republican state chairman who was one of the sponsors of the meeting.

In the house at Springfield a group of 14 downstate Republican members signed an open letter asking for a conference with the Cook county committee. The signers said they were willing to unite on a Cook county man for governorship candidate.

In the statehouse discussions, it was said that Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg was regarded as having strength as a possible second choice candidate in Cook.

George Barr Receptive.

At Joliet George Barr, a trustee of the University of Illinois and a brother of State Senator Richard J. Barr, who has been mentioned as a "harmony candidate" by some downstate groups, said he would run if an invitation came from proposed conferences.

Harry F. Hamlin, former legislator and former Municipal court judge, announced last night his candidacy for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor.

HADLEY LABELS HORNER DOORMAT OF BRAIN TRUST

Illinois Now a Vassal, Campaigner Charges.

An accusation that Illinois has been turned over to "the mercy of Brain Trusters like Hopkins, Tugwell, and Wallace," was made by Charles W. Hadley of Wheaton last night as he opened his campaign for the Republican nomination for attorney general. He spoke before the Republican club at Harvey.

"Under Gov. Horner," said Hadley, "the state administration slavishly bent the knee to the power-mad autocrat at Washington. Illinois was reduced from the status of a sovereign commonwealth to that of a province taking its orders from burocrats in Washington. Gov. Horner made haste to comply with the whims of Hopkins, Tugwell, Wallace and the other satraps in the imperial Roosevelt court.

Stresses New Deal Abuses.

"They passed the state NRA law, levied taxes, allowed the army of burocrats sent here from Washington to interfere with the very livelihood and private lives of citizens. They allowed the federal government to drain Illinois of money and meekly accepted in return a pittance in the name of relief. The governor's own figures last week showed that Illinois is paying to the federal government much more than the federal government is returning for relief.

"The governor of this state was treated like a doormat when he went to Washington to beg for relief. They had used him, and now he is of no more use to them.

"Illinois is a vassal province, made so by Gov. Horner and the Democratic administration at Springfield.

"The state of Lincoln, Grant, and Logan is under the thumbs of Hopkins, Tugwell, and Wallace. The state is being taxed to death to pay the cost of the Washington experiments.

Repudiation—for What?

"President Roosevelt himself has deserted Gov. Horner. Our governor cannot even get what he was to get from Washington in return for doing all he possibly could to repudiate the constitutions of the United States and of Illinois.

"It is now being brought home to us very clearly in Gov. Horner's report that Illinois will have to pay all the sums of money advanced by the now hard-hearted Harry Hopkins, and in addition immense sums that have been advanced to pet states under the New Deal. All this of course, is the result of Gov. Horner's listening to the promisers.

"Gov. Horner's experience the last few weeks in his trips to Washington show us plainly what we may expect if the Democrats are returned to power."

90 DAYS FOR A BORROWED RIDE.

Joseph Miller, 23 years old, 4236 Gladys avenue, who took a joy ride in a stolen taxicab ten days ago, was sentenced to 90 days in the Bridewell yesterday by Judge Joseph Graber for driving while intoxicated and tampering with an automobile.

WAYLAND BROOKS URGED TO ENTER GOVERNOR RACE

Young Republicans Want Him as Candidate.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Attorney Wayland Brooks was importuned by a group of young downstate leaders yesterday to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

Lending weight to its request, the delegation presented Brooks with a petition urging him to make the race. The petition was signed by more than 5,000 young people from 120 downstate cities and villages. The signatures were obtained in two days' time from persons less than 40 years old. Mr. Brooks is 38.

Mr. Brooks did not commit himself when the delegation carried the petition to his home at 7614 Eastlake terrace. He told them only that "no one could receive a petition of this kind, coming from the active Young Republicans of downstate Illinois, without a feeling of appreciation and a sense of responsibility. I will be glad to reply to you and the Young Republicans within a few days."

Sure of Strong City Support.

Were Brooks to enter the primary fight, in which there are already six avowed candidates, he would find a sizable bloc of Chicago ward committeemen ready to support him as well as the nucleus of a powerful downstate organization. He is regarded as having few, if any, peers as a campaigner.

R. M. Ingelson of Moline, president of the Young Republican Organization of Illinois, led the downstate delegation to the Brooks home. Accompanying him were Truesdale Smith, Rockford; Edward Alexander, Jacksonville; Park Livingston, Urbana, and Sam E. Dean, Hinsdale. Ingelson said that he had notified his organization he was resigning to devote all of his time to promote the Brooks movement.

"We could have obtained many more signatures than these 5,000 we brought you," Livingston told Brooks, "but we wanted the petition to be representative of your popularity in more than 100 towns in the state. If you will become a candidate, the Young Republicans will really go to work."

Pay High Tribute to Brooks.

The petition's preamble pays tribute to Mr. Brooks' youth, his outstanding war record, his uncompromising support of the constitution and other qualifications for the governorship. It reads:

"As young Americans and Young Republicans of Illinois, we desire to direct your attention to the necessities of our state and country.

"During the last three years, the policies of the federal government, abetted by the servile acquiescence of our state, have almost destroyed the integrity of the state of Illinois as a sovereign state of the United States. The unbridled waste of public money by both the federal government and the state of Illinois has jeopardized the ownership of property in any amount or character, has increased the cost of living and particularly has destroyed the opportunity of young men to achieve economic independence for themselves and those dependent upon them.

Emphasize Pyramid of Taxes.

"Taxes have been heaped on taxes, until the burden is almost beyond endurance. New forms of taxation have been imposed without regard for their effect upon the business and industry of the state or the ability of those persons who were forced to bear the burden of reckless waste. The relief of those numbers of society, who, during the last three years, have been unable to find employment, has been administered as a mere incident of party organization.

"We believe it to be the patriotic duty of every American citizen, regardless of party affiliations, to do his full part in the correction of these evils and the restoration of constitutional government to our state and nation, and freedom and liberty to our citizens.

"We believe, Mr. Brooks, that you, in particular, have a patriotic duty to perform in this emergency. You are a product of rural Illinois. Your boyhood ideals were shaped in the rural schools of our state.

Urgently Ask Him to Run.

"You are a young man with physical strength, mental vigor and moral fibre. You served your country in the emergency of the world war. You have proven your belief in those fundamental principles of our American constitution which must prevail if we are to maintain our present form of government. For these reasons, we call upon you to become a candidate for governor of the state of Illinois on the Republican ticket in the coming state campaign.

"We are entirely aware that under ordinary circumstances this letter would appear presumptuous. We submit, however, that we are facing a desperate emergency, in which every young man and young woman of this state has a particular interest. We have an abiding faith in our institutions of government and in the continued blessings of Almighty God, and in this faith we earnestly invite all good citizens of this state to join us in your support. We pledge to you our every effort and unfaltering support, both in the primary and in the election of 1936."

Topeka, Kas., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Albert Ottinger of New York City, Republican opponent of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the governorship of New York in 1928, today described Gov. Alf M. Landon as "the ideal candidate" for the Republican presidential nomination.

Ottinger conferred with the Kansas governor for more than an hour. The former attorney general of New York state said he found Landon "sound" on government, finance, and other major problems.

"He has a comprehensive knowledge of government and he certainly understands the farm problem," Ottinger said, who was accompanied by Harold Kiroek, New York City attorney.

Another Landon visitor today was Richard Lloyd Jones, publisher of the Tulsa [Okla.] Tribune. He said "without question" the governor will get the Oklahoma delegation to the G. O. P. national convention.

MOSES TO SEEK SEAT IN SENATE; DEFEATED IN 1932

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—George H. Moses, senator from New Hampshire for 15 years preceding March, 1933, will seek the senate seat again.

According to present plans Mr. Moses will enter the primaries Sept. 15 in an effort to defeat for the party nomination Senator Henry W. Keyes, whose term will expire in 1937.

Mr. Moses was beaten in the Roosevelt landslide of 1932 by Fred H. Brown, former governor, by 2,117 votes out of a total of 195,415.

JOHN GILBERT, DASHING LOVER OF FILMS, DIES

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—John Gilbert, dashing lover of the films, whose many romances both on and off the screen thrilled millions of feminine admirers, died in his home here today, alone except for medical aids who were unable to help him in his last hour.

The tall, curly haired Romeo, who was 38 years old and whose real name was John Pringle, died of a heart attack.

The last words he spoke were to his nurse, May Jordan.

Restless During Night.

Miss Jordan, who had been attending him for a week in his mansion in the hills above Hollywood, said the actor was restless last night, rose for a drink of water, and began an incoherent speech at dawn.

She said that she noticed his breathing was labored and stentorous about 7 a. m. and called his physician, Dr. Leo Madsen, describing the actor's condition.

Dr. Madsen sent an emergency call for a fire department inhalator squad, but Gilbert was unconscious when the firemen arrived.

Squad Battles Death.

For nearly an hour and a quarter the inhalator squad worked over the actor, pumping air into his lungs. Dr. Madsen administered adrenalin and other restoratives, but all efforts were unavailing.

Since his divorce from Virginia Bruce, actress and the fourth of his beautiful wives, Gilbert had been living alone in a great, quiet house in the Bel-Air district, between Hollywood and the ocean.

Miss Bruce, the mother of one of his daughters, was prostrated when informed of his death. She divorced him in 1935.

Companion of Miss Dietrich.

Marlene Dietrich, who had been a companion of Gilbert at night clubs and social gatherings for many months, also was deeply grieved. Reports of a romance between the two always had been met with denials, but they admittedly enjoyed each other's sociability.

Miss Dietrich said John had a severe heart spell about six weeks ago, but it was not thought to be serious at that time.

"John had the heart attack while swimming in the pool in his home," the actress said, "but he laughed it off and thought it was merely indigestion."

For many years one of the screen's most romantic lovers, Gilbert ascended to the fans' ranking of the great lover of the films following the death of Rudolph Valentino. His numerous ventures into matrimony with beautiful women enhanced his standing as an exponent of burning love.

Divorced by 4 Wives.

His wives were Olivia Burwell, a Mississippi girl, who left him a few months after their marriage; Leatrice Joy, early motion picture actress, who divorced him a year after the ceremony; glamorous Ina Claire, stage and screen star, who also divorced him, and then Miss Bruce, who obtained her decree last June.

Gilbert's romantic rôles began with "The Count of Monte Cristo" in 1923 and ended with his latest appearances as Greta Garbo's lover in "Queen Christina" and in "Captain Hates the Sea." His start in movies, like many another star, was in "westerns." He was a cowboy in more than one old Bill Hart opus.

His first actual screen work began in 1917 as a cinema cowboy in "The Apostle of Vengeance" under contract with Thomas Ince at $40 per week. Later he became a writer and director. His first good chance came when the Paralta company, for which he was scenarist at $60 a week, failed. He was engaged as leading man to Louise Glaum.

Becomes Screen Lover.

From that day—and impelled upward after rousing successes in "The Merry Widow" with Mae Murray and in "The Big Parade"—Gilbert became the screen's "great lover." After "The Big Parade" he appeared successively in "He Who Gets Slapped," "Flesh and the Devil," and "Love" with Garbo; "The Cossacks," "Four Walls," and "A Woman of Affairs."

These films for M-G-M netted Gilbert in his heyday nearly $300,000 dollars a picture. But they were silent movies. With talking pictures came his Waterloo. Early sound movies recorded his voice squeakily and even his appearance with his one time leading lady, Greta Garbo, in 1934 failed to return him to fortune and glory.

Son of Stage Players.

John was born in Logan, Utah, on July 10, 1897. His parents both were stage players and John's first stage appearance was as a baby in an Eddie Foy play. He traveled with his parents, picking up an education at many places and finally attending the Hitchcock Military academy at San Francisco.

After graduation he became a rubber goods salesman working out of San Francisco. The stage soon lured him back and he joined the Baker Stock company in Spokane, Wash., in 1915, as stage manager. He was fired the first night for running the curtain down on "Alias Jimmy Valentine" before the act was finished, but he got his job back. Soon thereafter the company went broke.

He tried numerous odd jobs and then decided to take a fling at the movies.

Real Romances Fail.

The failure of his romances off the screen was a constant source of wonder to the movie public. After voting him an expert in the art of love making, the feminine fans were at a loss to understand why he couldn't be as successful in real life as he was on the screen.

Miss Burwell left the actor soon after their marriage in 1917 and obtained a divorce in 1921. The next year Gilbert married Miss Joy, who bore him a daughter. She divorced him in 1924. In 1929 he married Miss Claire, a divorce following in 1931. The actor married Miss Bruce in 1932.

SON OF BRITISH DUKE GETS 4 MOS. IN JAIL; PASSED BAD CHECK

NICE, France, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Lord Edward Montague, second son of the Duke of Manchester, was sentenced today to four months in jail by default on a charge of passing a worthless check of £10 [about $50] for payment of a hotel bill.

Young Montague was sentenced last September in London to nine months in prison after a conviction on a charge of theft, forgery and uttering and of receiving a bankers' check for $86.

He was recently rejected for service in the French Foreign Legion. He received much publicity in the United States in 1932 when he was questioned with several other persons in the investigation at Long Beach, Cal., of the slaying of Capt. Walter Wanderwell, adventurer.

N. Y. BAR URGES SENATE TO PUT BAN ON HARDY

Seabury Leads Attack on U. S. Attorney.

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—After a hot debate in which leading members participated the Association of the Bar of the City of New York tonight adopted a resolution urging the United States senate to refuse to confirm the appointment of Lamar Hardy as United States attorney for the southern district of New York. The vote was 321 to 247.

Hardy's right to serve in the office, which he now holds by an ad interim appointment from President Roosevelt, was defended by former Gov. Nathan L. Miller, Bainbridge Colby, former secretary of state, and Frederic Coudert, former president of the bar association.

Seabury Leads Attack.

Against them in the debate, urging the adoption of the report of the committee on the judiciary which criticized the appointment of Hardy on the ground of his prior connection with the State Title and Mortgage company, were Samuel Seabury, Thomas B. Thatcher, chairman of the charter revision commission, and Charles G. Burlingham, former president of the association.

The committee's objection to his appointment was based upon the findings of George W. Alger, Moreland act commissioner, and Abraham Halprin of the state insurance department, who investigated the managemen of the State Title and Mortgage company, with which Hardy was associated from 1927 to 1931 as counsel and director.

Might Be "Embarrassing."

Members of the bar committee took the position that while there was no suspicion of wrongdoing on Mr. Hardy's part, it might be embarrassing to him and to the government if he were called as a witness at the trials in federal court charging the company with using the mails to defraud.

The committee's report was presented to the membership and its adoption urged by Alfred A. Cook, chairman of the committee on the judiciary, who also was counsel to Commissioner Alger in the Moreland act inquiry into the activities of the guaranteed mortgage companies.

Got $165,000 Fees.

It was also brought out that Hardy collected $165,000 in attorney fees from the now defunct mortgage company, and as director was at least partly responsible for the mangement of the company in such manner as to lead to fraud indictments.

Hardy is not a member of the Bar association and was not present at the closed meeting. He has admitted the $165,000 fees but contended his connection with the company was legal and proper.

FROZEN BODIES OF 4 ARE RECOVERED FROM WIND-SWEPT PLAINS

Gillette, Wyo., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Blizzard-swept Wyoming plains today yielded the bodies of four persons, trapped in the raging subzero storm Sunday night.

Searching parties who floundered through heavy ice and snow in a district 25 miles south of here late today found the frozen bodies of Miss Barbara Wagstaff, 38, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Royal.

The body of Tom Wagstaff, 40, rancher and former British newspaper man, was found earlier. He, his sister, and the Royals, members of the same party, were trapped in the sudden storm Sunday as they drove toward their ranch homes after a visit in Gillette.

Tonight in Montana's Absarokee forest, near Livingston, forest rangers prodded cautiously into mountainous snowdrifts hunting the body of Ranger John Norby, believed buried by an avalanche of ice and snow Sunday.

Episcopal Diocese's 99th Convention to Open Feb. 4

Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago announced yesterday that the 99th convention of the diocese will be held at St. Chrysostom's church, 1424 North Dearborn parkway, on Feb. 4 and 5. The pre-convention dinner will be held under auspices of the Episcopal Church club at the Hotel Sherman on Feb. 3. Bishop Stewart announced that he would bestow a number of crosses for distinguished church service at the dinner.

Bride, 21, Slain by Mate, 60, in Divorce Lawyer's Office

Denver, Colo., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Jacob Sherman, attorney, said Frank H. Perry, 60, shot and killed his 21 year old bride, Mrs. Madeline Lena Cassidenti Perry, as they discussed a divorce in Sherman's office today. They had been married about four months. Perry surrendered at police headquarters.

IDENTIFY BURIED MURDER VICTIM BY EYEGLASSES

A suburban police chief's hunch in tracing successfully the ownership of a pair of spectacles led to the identification yesterday of a skeleton found buried in quicklime in Stickney as that of Clyde H. Stimson Jr., 20 years old. Young Stimson disappeared from his home at 5019 West 24th street, Cicero, on Feb. 3, 1931. A bullet hole in the skull gave evidence that he had been murdered.

Two theories were advanced as to the motive of the murder. The first was that Stimson was abducted and slain because he had unwisely remarked that he could identify the bandits who held up a Cicero handbook a week before he disappeared.

Father Blames Vengeance.

But Stimson's father, a railroad switchman, advanced another theory. His son, he said sadly, had fallen in with a gang of hijackers, and had, he believed, participated in a number of holdups. He attributed the murder to vengeance by a bootleg gang.

On information furnished by the father police took into custody two former associates of young Stimson. They were Herman Frankel, 24 years old, 5111 West 25th street, Cicero, and Louis Havel, 27 years old, a resident of the Suburban hotel, 4821 Cermak road, Cicero.

The night Stimson left his home he met Frankel and Havel, the elder Stimson said. Later that same evening gangsters set upon Frankel and beat him.

WPA Workers Find Body.

WPA workers discovered the skeleton of young Stimson on Wednesday as they were filling an old ditch in Stickney between 40th and 41st streets on Austin boulevard. The quicklime had removed all means of identification, except for a metal case containing a pair of women's spectacles.

Recalling the importance of Nathan Leopold's glasses in the Bobby Franks murder case, Police Chief Albert Jares of Stickney set out to trace down this clew. Cicero police suggested that the body might be that of Stimson, whom they knew to be missing. The elder Stimson then told Chief Jares that the glasses might belong to Miss May Blazek, 2426 South Austin boulevard, Cicero, who had attended a movie with young Stimson early on the evening he disappeared.

Identification Made Certain.

Miss Blazek recalled that she had asked Stimson to put her glasses in his pocket, and that he had forgotten to return them to her when he left her. The police then went to the Lorenz Optical company, 2300 Roosevelt road, where Dr. Joseph Morenilla measured the curvature of the lenses and from records determined that they were made for Miss Blazek.

Police were searching last night for Frank Massa, who in 1931 operated a cigar store and handbook at 2509 South 52d avenue, Cicero. Massa's establishment was robbed on Jan. 26, 1931, and young Stimson was present during the holdup.

HUNTS GLASSES, BLOWS UP TOWN HALL; 4 DEAD

Fire Engine Burns Up; Ten Hurt.

BULLETIN.

Pendleton, Ind., Jan. 10 [Friday].—(AP)—A fourth body was dug early today from the ruins of the explosion-wrecked Pendleton town hall and identified by clothing as that of Irvin Taylor of Pendleton.

Pendleton, Ind., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—A Pendleton citizen, attending the meeting of the town board in the village hall tonight, dropped his eyeglasses through a crack in the floor to the basement. A friend lighted a match to help him seek them. An ensuing explosion, presumably of sewer gas, wrecked the two story brick building, put the local fire department out of commission, killed three men, and injured ten others.

The dead are believed to have been Frank Wapienik, a trusty from the state reformatory here, and two transients who had obtained shelter for the night in the police lockup in the basement. Officials believed several others known to have been in the building also were in the ruins.

Recover Bodies of Three.

Three bodies were recovered from the wreckage too burned to be identified.

Members of the village board, whose terms began Jan. 1, were holding their first meeting at the time of the explosion. According to early reports, the only official injured was J. Howard Walker, village clerk and treasurer. The injured were taken to hospitals in Anderson, eight miles away, where physicians said all probably will recover.

Gas is believed to have leaked into the basement of the village hall from a broken sewer connection.

Fire Engine Burns Up.

The Pendleton fire apparatus is housed in the building and when volunteer members of the local department reached the scene they found their engine already wrapped in flames.

Fire apparatus summoned from Anderson extinguished the blaze, but not until the hall had been virtually destroyed. Members of the Republican Veterans' club of Pendleton were attending a political rally in the American Legion headquarters, across the street, at the time of the explosion. They hurried over and carried several of the injured from the blazing building.

Driver Severely Burned in Oil Storage Plant Fire

BURIAL ON LONE PRAIRIE UNLIKELY FOR BIG TEXAN

Edmund Paul Jersig, 340 pound Texan who imagined himself to be a millionaire ranch king, apparently will not be buried on the lone prairie, despite a last request that his body be sent to his native state. A telegram from Jersig's son Gordon of San Antonio asked De Kalb county authorities yesterday to arrange burial at Sycamore, Ill. It was there that Jersig hanged himself in the county jail Wednesday while awaiting trial on a charge of cashing a $15 fraudulent check.

The big Texan had been divorced recently by Mrs. Eleanor Lauderdale Farnum Burke Jersig, former Follies dancer and the daughter of Henry M. Lauderdale, 2430 Linden place, former Chicago banker. Jersig had told her she would rule a $19,000,000 ranch empire with him, and promised her a wedding present of $100,000. The ex-dancer left her husband the day after their marriage when the money failed to materialize.

One of Jersig's four suicide notes left the San Antonio son "562 farms, worth $3,600,000." The body is being held at Sycamore.

FATAL FALL HELD ACCIDENT.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death at an inquest over the body of Frank Carter, 55 years old, who was injured fatally Wednesday in a fall from the window of his third story apartment at 900 Montrose avenue.

NEARBY COUNTIES CUT AUTO DEATH RATE BY 20 PCT.

Report 299 Fatalities in Last Year.

Trafic deaths in the seven counties surrounding Cook county totaled 299 for 1935, a drop of 20 per cent from the 1934 toll, reports completed yesterday by the coroners of the counties show. The decrease is comparable to the one for Cook county where the 1935 total of 1,011 deaths was 238 lower than the 1934 figure.

Notwithstanding the comparable decrease the automobile fatality rate for the more densely populated Cook county area was considerably lower than for the nearby counties, a comparison disclosed.

Comparison of Death Rates.

With a population of 4,225,000 Cook county had a death rate of 23.93 for each 100,000 persons compared to a rate of 36.36 for the neighboring counties with a combined population of 826,000. In 1934 the Cook county rate was 29.56 and that for the neighboring counties 45.82.

County—	Pop. in thous.	1933.	1934.	1935.
Lake, Ind.	276	129	161	97
Lake, Ill.	111	42	58	44
Kane	132	36	25	32
DuPage	99	32	49	39
Kankakee	55	14	18	22
Will	113	39	55	49
McHenry	40	10	12	16
	826	302	378	299

Lake county, Indiana, the industrial district southeast of Chicago, including the cities of Gary, East Chicago, Indiana Harbor, Hammond, and Whiting, showed a drop of 25 per cent in deaths last year over the one preceding. Elimination of grade crossings and more cautious driving as a result of safety campaigns were important factors in this decline, said Coroner Andrew Hofman.

Safety drives were given credit for the decline in Lake county, Illinois, auto deaths. Coroner John L. Taylor explained that state police, county deputies, and police of the various towns and cities had coöperated to cut down the number of fatalities by a more rigorous enforcement of municipal and state trafic codes. Arrests for violations were more numerous during the last year, he said.

Explains Kane County Increase.

An increase in Kane county's death rate was because of accidents occurring outside the county in which victims were taken to hospitals within the county, Coroner Herman J. Vierke explained. Coroner Vierke is head of a county trafic safety council pledged to a reduction in auto deaths for the coming year.

Almost 25 per cent of Will county's 49 deaths in 1935 were at grade crossings, Dr. E. A. Kingston, coroner, revealed. Of the twelve such deaths, five occurred in one grade crossing accident and four in another.

Sixty per cent of all the deaths in 1935 occurred in accidents on route 66 south of Joliet. Widening of this highway to four lanes would reduce the number of accidents, the coroner said. This route has been widened to four lanes between Joliet and Chicago.

HURT AS PORCH COLLAPSES.

Christ Miller, 48 years old, 5021 Winnemac avenue, a carpenter, was injured last night when a two story wooden porch at 4332 North Kenneth avenue collapsed while he was making repairs. He was extricated from the wreckage after an hour's labor by firemen, policemen and neighbors.

CIRCUIT COURT REDUCES DOCKET 20 PCT. IN A YEAR

A decrease of more than 20 per cent in the number of cases pending in the Circuit court on Dec. 31, 1935, as compared to the same date the year before was disclosed yesterday in the annual report of John E. Conroy, clerk of the court. The number of cases at the end of 1935 was 19,770, consisting of 9,912 chancery cases, 6,440 law cases and 3,418 divorce cases. At the end of 1934 the total was 24,780 cases. During 1935, 1,971 divorce cases were disposed of and 2,557 new ones were filed. Last month Judge William J. Wimbiscus of Spring Valley, sitting in the Circuit court, dismissed 2,000 lawsuits which had been pending more than two years without the filing of trial notice.

Auto Sidewipes Zephyr; Chicagoan Is Hurt

Hamburg, Ia., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Two persons were injured when the automobile in which they were riding skidded and sidewiped the Burlington's Zephyr near Payne, Ia., today. The injured—J. D. Swan of Chicago and Carl McAllister of Fargo, N. D.—were in a hospital here tonight. The accident occurred as the men were driving toward Hamburg from Nebraska City, Neb. Their car was demolished.

Saxophones to Moan Less; Clarinets, Trumpets Gain

BOY, 10, IS KILLED AS SLED COASTS UNDER A TRUCK

Crushed as Vehicle Turns Out of Alley.

Millard Geary, 10 years old, 1531 South Harding avenue, was killed yesterday when the sled on which he was coasting slid beneath the wheels of a truck in an alley at 1545 South Harding avenue. The driver of the truck, Harry Cohn, 3853 Roosevelt road, told the Fillmore police that he was about to turn into Harding avenue from the alley when the accident occurred. Cohn took the boy to St. Anthony hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Woman Dies; Driver Sought.

Mrs. Anna M. Armstrong, 63 years old, 1415 East Marquette road, died yesterday in her home from a skull fracture received on Nov. 15 when she was struck by an automobile driven by Harry Valentine, formerly of 1453 Belle Plaine avenue, at 67th place and Stony Island avenue. Police are seeking Valentine, a mechanic, who has changed his address since the accident.

A man partly identified as "H. Williamson" was sought yesterday as the driver of the car which struck Joseph Forst, 47 years old, a junkman who lived at the rear of 6673 South La Salle street, on Jan. 4. Forst refused aid at the time of the accident, and the driver left a note bearing his name. Later Forst was taken to the County hospital, where he died on Wednesday.

Death Toll Reaches 34.

At 4 p. m. yesterday thirty-four automobile deaths had been recorded in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. During the same period twenty-eight were killed and 390 injured in accidents within the city limits of Chicago.

Police Investigate Killing of Salesman in His Office

Police last night were investigating the death of Bernard Schonberg, 24 years old, 4646 North Monticello avenue, a salesman, who was found fatally wounded in his office at 176 South Water market. A pistol from which a shot had been fired was found beside Schonberg and police were seeking to determine whether the shooting was suicide or accidental. An inquest will be held today in the county morgue.

CHARGES FILED TO HOLD PRIGNANO MURDER SUSPECT

Angelo Lazzia, alias Santo Verrusso, held as the principal suspect in the murder of State Representative Albert J. Prignano, was charged yesterday with resisting arrest, disorderly conduct, and having fictitious license plates on his automobile. Capt. John Egan of the Maxwell street police said the charges were placed to prevent Lazzia from seeking his liberty on a writ of habeas corpus while the investigation continues into Prignano's slaying.

Several days ago a habeas corpus writ in Lazzia's behalf was quashed in the Criminal court. He is now under guard in the County hospital, suffering from a stomach ailment. The charge of resisting arrest grew out of Lazzia's attempt to flee when policemen appeared at his home.

Prignano was slain in front of his home at 722 Bunker street on Dec. 29. His widow, Jean, is now reported to be in Waterloo, Ia., and will return when the inquest into her husband's death is reopened.

University of Baltimore Acting President Resigns

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The resignation of Dr. Howell A. King as acting president of the University of Baltimore, was accepted today by the board of trustees. Pressure of outside business was given as the reason for the resignation. He has been head of the school since 1933.

WINSLOW FREED ON BOND; TRIAL SET FOR JAN. 23

Charles S. Winslow, 59 years old, former principal of the Lake View Evening High school, who was suspended on Nov. 27 after the discovery of a shortage of $9,954 in his tuition accounts, was released from the county jail yesterday when he filed a real estate bond of $7,500 before Judge John C. Lewe in the Criminal court. Judge Lewe set Winslow's embezzlement trial for Jan. 23. Daniel A. Covelli, attorney for Winslow, previously had announced that all of the missing funds will be restored. School teacher friends of the principal are collecting funds for the restitution.

SEE BRITISH GOLD WHIPPING ITALY IN ETHIOPIAN WAR

English Bribes Top Those of Duce, Paris Reports.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 9.—British gold, rather than league of nations sanctions or military difficulties on the Ethiopian terrain, have checkmated Premier Mussolini's attempt to conquer Ethiopia, it was declared here today in usually well informed quarters.

Il Duce, according to this version, has been perfectly aware all along of the impossibility of purely military occupation of Ethiopia, and all his warlike gestures are merely stage trimmings to satisfy the Italian thirst for glory. For real results he was counting on bribing the provincial rases [chiefs] over to the Italian side as Ras Gugsa was bribed.

Set Up Silver War Chest.

A huge war chest of silver money was set up for this purpose, and at first the policy seemed to be succeeding beautifully. The Italians thought the way into Ethiopia would be quickly opened by this silver key and counted on these bloodless victories to overcome eventually the doctrinaire objections of the league of nations against their aggression.

As time wore on, however, and no really important chiefs followed Ras Gugsa's example, Il Duce's officers began to get worried. Worry changed to suspicion when Italians found on several occasions that chieftains with whom they had been dickering through secret agents and who seemed perfectly ready to sell out became incorruptible over night.

British Bribes Higher.

The Italians now are sure they have found the reason why their plans have miscarried. The British, who are richer than the Italians, have been paying the same rases bigger bribes to remain faithful to their emperor. Hence, the new found conviction of Italian staf officers in Africa, "You can't carry on a colonial war against England—she is too rich."

With the policy of bribing chieftains to turn against Emperor Haile Selassie failing, the Italian staf has no illusions regarding the hopelessness of straight military conquest. Il Duce therefore has no choice but to continue the disastrous war or come to terms with the league.

The French know this and theoretically they consider that a double policy of coercion and persuasion—postponing the oil embargo once more for a short time, but sending the French Atlantic fleet to the proximity of Gibraltar at the same time—is sure to bring him around in the end.

Internal Situation Bad.

The danger, however, is that Il Duce's situation is so bad that it must be covered up somehow, to prevent an internal collapse. As far as economic difficulties are concerned, Britain will take care of that as soon as Mussolini comes to terms by raising a substantial loan to keep the Fascist régime afloat.

But Mussolini still feels that a spectacular military victory is essential and that there is little possibility of any serious negotiations until the projected Italian offensive has come to its conclusion.

Providing the offensive is successful, the French and British do not mind a little delay, but with the "little rains" starting, it is feared that the Italians may overreach themselves and run into a military disaster which will be the finish of Italy as a great European power.

FIFTH WARSHIP RECALLED

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Further indications that a settlement of Mediterranean and African complications between Great Britain and Italy is shaping were revealed today with the announcement that in addition to four other warships already withdrawn from the Mediterranean the admiralty is now bringing back the Revenge. The battleship is due at Portsmouth tomorrow.

The warship withdrawals, together with the announcement today that Sir Eric Drummond, ambassador to Rome, who is now in England on a vacation, will be back at his post in Rome a week from Monday, were taken to foreshadow that there is little chance of oil sanctions against Italy being applied at Geneva when the league of nations council meets Jan. 20.

Italy Calm.

The whole situation is expected to take a turn after the British cabinet meets next Wednesday. At that time Capt. Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, will be given his instructions on how to act when he goes to Geneva.

A factor which does not tend to support official statements that the warship withdrawals have no political significance is the slight enthusiasm with which the departure of Britain's big ships is greeted in Italy. This is taken to mean that Rome knows what it is all about.

In political circles here it was expected that the British would take a back seat in any league negotiations for peace, letting smaller powers play the leading rôles.

Eden is expected to encourage the league's committee of 13 to find a new basis of peace negotiations which will save Mussolini's face and be such as Emperor Haile Selassie will also accept. With the weather and the war going against him, it is believed now that Il Duce will be in a frame of mind to negotiate.

Meanwhile it was announced here tonight that both Britain and France are inquiring in Washington just what precise meaning should be given President Roosevelt's neutrality declaration. They want various points cleared up before Eden and Premier Pierre Laval of France go to Geneva.

Father and Twins

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Twins, a boy and a girl, were born to Mrs. Genevieve H. Woll yesterday at the Englewood hospital. Mrs. Woll is the wife of Albert Woll, special assistant United States attorney general, son of Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor. Woll, who is a former assistant state's attorney of Cook county, has offices in Washington, but came to Chicago recently to examine the evidence in a federal mail fraud case pending against John Bain, former banker. The Wolls have another daughter, Cynthia, 4 years old.

PARIS STUDENTS PELT ETHIOPIAN AID WITH FLOUR

PARIS, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A pro-Italian student demonstration against Prof. Gaston Jeze, during which he was pelted with bags of flour and books, resulted tonight in the closing of the law school of the University of Paris. Prof. Jeze upheld the Ethiopian side in discussions before the league of nations last year.

The professor, whose classes were interrupted by rioting pro-Italian students in November, attempted to resume his lectures today, but was forced to flee under a barrage of missiles after facing the jeers of the members of his class for 35 minutes.

The pro-Italian students followed the professor to the faculty rooms, where he took refuge, and broke down a door in an effort to find him. They were dispersed, however.

ETHIOPIA CLAIMS FOE CRACKED UP ON BOTH FRONTS

Report 100,000 in Battle; Heavy Rains Continue.

ADDIS ABABA, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Ethiopia claimed a smashing victory on the southern front today to add to a major success in the north.

A strong Italian push in the southern Dolo region, said well informed sources, was thrown back in a battle involving more than 100,000 soldiers.

An official announcement said the Fascist invading northern army had abandoned the Tembien region west of Makale in a "precipitous" fashion. Heavy rains were understood to be washing out roads and adding to the enemy's discomfiture.

Over 100,000 in Battle.

Emperor Haile Selassie's son-in-law, Ras Desta Demtu, commander of the southern armies, was reported to have wired the government that he had frustrated a fresh Italian attempt to invade the rich rift valley west of Dolo.

Participating in the engagement were 60,000 Ethiopian warriors against 18,000 Italians and 25,000 Somalis, the report stated.

These reports served to set at rest the fears of superstitious natives who were greatly alarmed last night—all because of an eclipse of the moon. They believed it "a bad augury and the work of the Italians."

Report New Attack on Ambulance.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 9.—(AP)—An Italian bombing and machine gun attack on an Egyptian ambulance unit Tuesday at Bolally on the southern Ethiopian front was reported tonight by Prince Ismail Daoud, head of the Egyptian Red Cross organization in Ethiopia.

Eight Italian planes, the message said, participated in the attack, "not being satisfied with what they did to an Egyptian ambulance at Daggah Bur." [The Daggah Bur bombardment was reported Jan. 4.].

Reveal Italian Desertions.

[Special to the London Daily Telegraph and the Chicago Tribune.]
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Jan. 9.—Authentic details concerning mass desertions of officers, noncommissioned officers and other Italian soldiers to Jugo-Slavia during recent months can now be revealed.

All deserters escaped in order to avoid being drafted to Ethiopia. The Jugo-Slav press was not allowed to make any reference to the subject.

Deserters Increase.

The number of deserters is steadily increasing. Those who have relatives in Jugo-Slavia are allowed, after careful examination, to live with their families, or in many cases have found employment in factories.

Others are interned in three big concentration camps, one of which is situated at Bistritza, near Skoplje, another at Vorosdin, and one at Novi Mares in Croatia.

In Bistritza the deserters are all officers and noncoms. Altogether it is estimated more than 2,000 men are in concentration camps apart from those allowed to live outside.

Preparations are being pushed to establish a big general camp at Tuzla in Bosnia where all deserters eventually will be concentrated.

Great caution is being exercised to see that Italy does not smuggle secret service agents into Jugo-Slavia among the refugees. Last Friday an Italian woman posing as a refugee was arrested at Maribor on suspicion of espionage.

More Escape to Germany.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUNICH, Germany, Jan. 9.—Large numbers of Italians from southern Tyrol have been arriving in Bavaria for the last few months. These are not regarded here as deserters, but refugees. Most of them are men of military age who fled from Italy to avoid being drafted into Mussolini's armies overseas.

It is learned now that about 1,500 of these men are in Bavaria. They have been taken into the Austrian Legion and are receiving Nazi training.

Carl Patzke, 44 years old, a driver for the Bowman Dairy company, died in his home early yesterday following a birthday party given in his honor. A heart attack was believed to have caused his death.

French Flyer, Air Adviser to Ethiopia, Sails for U. S.

PARIS, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The French flyer, Rene Drouillet, chief aviation adviser to Emperor Haile Selassie, is en route to the United States, it was learned today. Drouillet, who returned from Addis Ababa recently asserting he intended to buy planes and equipment for Ethiopia, sailed yesterday.

REVEAL WILSON WAS FORCED TO SUPPORT ALLIES

Loans to Great Britain Urged by McAdoo.

change would deter the government from entering any objection to the flotation of such a loan in this country, or to the sale by Great Britain of American securities in this country. One of the other of these transactions would seem to be a business necessity at this time.

Speedy Reply Asked.

"As I am in a bit of a hurry to get the information, I would appreciate a telegram indicating what you believe the government's attitude would be. You might send me one of the following telegrams to indicate which of the positions you think the government would take in regard to the flotation of a large British loan in this country, and I will understand your meaning:

"1. Parties [the government] would be favorable to and would encourage such a transaction.

"2. Parties would take no action either for or against such a transaction.

"3. Parties would discourage such a transaction but would not offer any active interference with it.

"4. Parties' attitude would be such as to make such a transaction practically impossible."

Letter Sent to Lansing.

The next letter in the corespondence, marked "confidential," is from Secretary McAdoo to Robert Lansing, who had succeeded William Jennings Bryan as secretary of state less than a month before, after a controversy with Bryan respecting loans and credits to the allies.

"I enclose a copy of a letter from James B. Forgan of Chicago to Vice Governor Delano of the federal reserve board, in reference to the matter of foreign loans in this country," McAdoo wrote.

"The foreign exchange situation is so serious that it may become imperative for some of the foreign governments to establish credits in this country in order that they may continue to purchase freely our farm products and other supplies.

"The attitude of the government, as expressed in the letter of Secretary Bryan to Senator Stone [chairman of the foreign relations committee], Jan. 20, 1915, may seriously embarrass the creation of such credits in favor of foreign governments as are needed to enable them to continue their purchases in this country.

Germany Sells Notes.

"Germany, by the way, disregarded this letter and placed more than ten million of short time notes in this country through Chandler Brothers of Philadelphia. It is not my purpose, however, to discuss that. I only mean to direct your attention to the importance of giving very serious thought to the points raised by Mr. Forgan's letter. I have always felt that it was a mistake for our government to discountenance in any way the establishment of credits in this country in favor of foreign governments, such credits to be employed in purchasing supplies in this country.

"It seems to me entirely inconsistent to say that the purchase of our farm products and manufactured articles and other supplies by foreign governments is lawful and to be encouraged and to say that we discourage and discountenance as being unneutral the credit operations which are an essential part of such transactions."

Letter Sent to Wilson.

Secretary Lansing replied that Gov. Hamlin of the federal reserve board already had sent him a copy of the Forgan letter and that he had sent it to President Wilson on Aug. 25.

"I have read your comments upon the matter of loans to belligerent countries and must say that I concur in your opinion; in fact, from the outset, I have held that opinion on such transactions viewed from the legal standpoint rather than from the standpoint of expediency," Lansing wrote.

Lansing's letter to President Wilson, inclosing the Forgan letter, said:

"I think we must recognize the fact that conditions have materially changed since last autumn when we endeavored to discourage the flotation of any general loan by a belligerent in this country."

Oral Reply Directed.

The correspondence, as well as America's neutrality position, ended with this communication to Lansing from President Wilson, bearing the penciled initials "W. W.":

"My dear Mr. Secretary:

"My opinion in this matter, compendiously stated, is that we should say that 'parties would take no action either for or against such a transaction,' but that this should be orally conveyed, so far as we are concerned, and not put in writing.

"I hope that this is also your own judgment in the matter.

"Faithfully yours,

[Initialed] "W. W."

This letter was dated Aug. 26, 1915, and on Oct. 14, 1915, a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. offered to the public a $500,000,000 issue of Anglo-French 5 year 5 per cent bonds, the first unsecured flotation by the allies in this country.

Two Pro-German Members.

In his letter to President Wilson, urging the importance of extending credits in order to preserve our enormous trade with the allies, Secretary McAdoo declared that "we have two strong pro-German members of the federal reserve board—Messrs. Miller and Warberg." Paul Warberg had been the subject of much discussion earlier in the day's proceeding, when members of the committee were seeking to show that our commercial interests governed our diplomacy and quoted a memorandum Warburg had written for the federal reserve board on Nov. 13, 1916. In it he said:

"If we look at the map showing the respective Wilson and Hughes pluralities, is it not evident that the Hughes corner in the northeast represented the 'war business and prosperity first' corner, the element that did not blush to clamor for a high tarif, even after we had 'hogged it all' and had become stronger than all the rest of the world?

"Fight Not Our Affair."

"And does not the vote in the west and south indicate that a majority of the nation considers this European fight as none of our affair and does neither want us to be drawn into it nor see continued this ungodly war prosperity?

"Is not Europe now ready enough for peace so that we may say to our country: We shall ask the belligerents to state their peace terms and shall do our best to bring them together? If Germany is unreasonable, then you, bankers and investors of the United States, may find that you want to go financing England.

"But if the latter should prove herself unreasonable, then you may find that you will not feel justified in furnishing her the means wherewith to prolong the war. If the administration will make its views known, officially or unofficially, bankers will have to heed the warning. Against Washington's even unofficial advice, these large transactions cannot be carried through successfully."

Views Always Different.

Asked whether he agreed with this position, Mr. Lamont declared that he and Warburg always had different views with regard to prolongation of the war.

"He wanted pressure brought upon Great Britain," the witness said. "We believed that Great Britain was utterly unprepared and that Germany had been preparing for years. We believed that by supplying the allies with materials we were tending to shorten the war very materially."

McAdoo's letter to the President said "that Miller [Dr. Adolph C. Miller, now a member of the board of governors of the federal reserve system] is even stronger pro-German than Warburg. He is a far less reasonable and intelligent man, and more difficult to deal with," McAdoo wrote. "He and Warburg have always been opposed to our banks buying acceptances or accepting for the exportation of munitions although they know that it is perfectly lawful for the banks to do so and counsel of the board has so advised."

The McAdoo Letter.

The McAdoo letter, written from North Haven, Me., and addressed to the President as "Dear Governor," also disagreed with the neutrality policy Secretary Bryan had maintained with respect to loans and credits to belligerents and stated his reasons as follows:

"Great Britain is and always has been our best customer. Since the war began her purchases and those of her allies—France, Russia, and Italy—have enormously increased. Food products constitute the greater part of these purchases, but war munitions, which, as you know, embrace not only arms and ammunition, but saddles, horses, and mules, and a variety of things, are a big item.

"The high prices for food products have brought great prosperity to our farmers, while the purchases of war munitions have stimulated industry and have set factories going to full capacity throughout the great manufacturing districts, while the reduction of imports and their actual cessation in some cases have caused new industries to spring up and others to be enlarged. Great prosperity is coming. It is, in large measure, here already. It will be tremendously increased if we can extend reasonable credits to our customers.

"It is imperative for England to establish a large credit in this country. She will need at least $500,000,000. She can't get this in any way, at the moment, that seems feasible, except by sale of short time government notes. Here she encounters the obstacles presented by Mr. Bryan's letter of Jan. 20, 1915, to Senator Stone in which is stated that 'war loans in this country were disapproved because inconsistent with the spirit of neutrality,' etc., and 'this government has not been advised that any general loans have been made by foreign governments in this country since the President expressed his wish that loans of this character should not be made.'"

Explains British Loan.

In laying the foundation for introduction of the Forgan-McAdoo-Lansing-Wilson correspondence, Senator Bennett C. Clark [Dem., Mo.] had developed an explanation of Mr. Forgan's statement relating to the flotation of a British loan in this country or "the sale by Great Britain of American security in this country."

J. P. Morgan explained that a foreign country may establish exchange in this country in various ways, including the shipment of gold, the sale of goods, borrowing it through the flotation of bonds, and selling whatever American securities it may own.

The long interchange of cablegrams between Morgan & Co. of New York and Morgan, Grenfell & Co. of London told of the necessity of getting favorable "press propaganda in this country" and one cablegram from Morgan, dated June 26, 1915, said:

"Whether caused by German propaganda or simply by the usual idiocy of newspaper men, there has been considerable discussion in the last few weeks in newspapers of how impossible it is for belligerent countries in Europe to pay for the amounts they are taking from us."

Assails Newspaper Men.

Members of the committee showed great merriment when they heard this reference to the "usual idiocy of newspaper men," and Morgan blushed with embarrassment although managing one of his characteristic chuckles. He turned to the row of correspondents and declared: "I didn't know the newspaper men then as well as I do now. I apologize to you all."

The Messrs. Morgan and Lamont were asked by Chairman Gerald P. Nye [Radical, N. D.] what they meant by the much used phrase "educating the public" in the cablegrams relating to the British loan.

"That was to overcome the objections to that type of belligerent loan, wasn't it?" asked Senator Clark.

"And to overcome the ignorance as to its goodness," replied Mr. Lamont.

"There isn't so much ignorance as to its goodness now," commented Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.].

Shows Morgan Up.

The session also brought out the steps taken by Morgan & Co. to become fiscal agents for Great Britain and France, for whom they purchased 3 billion dollars' worth of supplies and made a commission of $30,000,000.

In November, 1914, Basil P. Blackett and Sir George Paish, representing the British treasury, were in this country to discuss exchange stabilization with Secretary McAdoo, and Henry P. Davison approached them on behalf of the Morgan firm. He suggested the advisability of coordinating British purchases through a single agency, to be established by J. P. Morgan & Co.

It was felt that J. P. Morgan might have to go to London in the matter, and Davison, a Morgan partner, cabled Morgan, Grenfell & Co. regarding the possibility of getting an official invitation.

Win French Business.

It finally developed, however, that Morgan's presence was not required, for Davison went over with Blackett and Paish and got the business. Still later the Morgans had a race with Bonbright & Co. of New York for French business and came out victorious, despite the intervention of Parmely Herrick, whose father, Myron T. Herrick, was ambassador to France.

A letter from Herrick, manager of the Cleveland office of Bonbright & Co., to former Senator F. C. Walcott, member of the firm, said, in part:

"I know that father would gladly help in this matter on account of my interest in your company and I think he already has told Ambassador Jusserand about Bonbright & Co. and of my interest in it.

The Paris office of Bonbright & Co. was getting frantic over the Morgan activities about this time and cabled to New York on June 22, 1915, that it was imperative to clinch bargain before Morgan partner pulls ace from sleeve."

Members of the committee endeavored to learn what "ace" Mr. Morgan had up his sleeve, but to no avail.

"The British government was greatly interested that there should be no competition between the agencies buying for the French and the British governments," Morgan declared. "This was the attitude of Mr. Lloyd George [then minister of war munitions]. He told me so."

"So you didn't need the ace in your sleeve?" asked Chairman Nye.

"No, sir. I didn't have one," Morgan replied.

OPPOSED HIS SON IN GOING TO WAR, BUT HE DID, SAYS MORGAN

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—J. P. Morgan told a senate investigating committee today that he did not like America's entry into the world war because it meant that his son, like the sons of many other fathers, would be called into battle.

While conceding that his big banking house profited hugely from war business, he said:

"Do you suppose that because business was good I wanted my son to go to war? He did, though."

His son was Junius S. Morgan Jr., who won a commission in the navy and served aboard a destroyer patroling the minestudded British channel on submarine duty. Aged 26 then, he now is a Morgan partner.

Munitions Firms Do Not Make Wars, Briton Testifies at Quiz

LONDON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A charge that Commander Sir Charles Craven, high official of the Vickers munitions interests, took an attitude that "the more munitions in the world the merrier for the world" was made today at the British munitions investigation.

Sir Philip Gibbs, novelist and member of the royal commission on private manufacture of arms, made the accusation, adding that he believed Craven regarded with contempt all efforts to restrict world armaments.

Craven, in reply, minimized the danger of armament sales, and said: "I do not agree that armament firms create war."

Commission Adjourns.

The commission adjourned until Jan. 22 after questioning Craven, the managing director of Vickers-Armstrong, Ltd., and director of Vickers, Ltd., for the second successive day.

On both days the correspondence between Craven and the Electric Boat company of New London, Conn., came under the investigators' fire.

Although saying he would have worded his letters differently if he had known they would be made public, Craven asserted they contained nothing "which would not bear the closest investigation."

One of the letters, containing the phrase, "My friend at the admiralty will help us," has drawn special attention from the United States senate munitions investigators.

Charges "Levity of Mind."

Sir Philip Gibbs, facing Craven today, declared:

"I suggest that throughout the correspondence with Lawrence Y. Spear, vice president of the Electric Boat company, you showed a certain levity of mind in regard to the business you were doing."

He asserted armament makers conducted "a dangerous trade, the continual extension of which had very grave effects on the world."

Following Craven's statement that he did not believe war was created by armament firms, Gibbs pressed his point.

"You do not think your wares are any more noxious or dangerous than boxes of chocolate or sugar candy?" he asked.

"Well," replied Craven, "I nearly lost my eye with a Christmas cracker, but I never lost it with a gun."

Discussing possible bribery in the arms trade, the munitions official declared he did not believe that "any goes on which would create alarm," but he added that "roughly speaking, the farther you get away from here, the looser business morals are."

DAVIS' SWEETHEART IDENTIFIES SAWYER AT BREMER KIDNAP TRIAL

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Edna Murray, gangland sweetheart of Volney Davis, took the stand late today at the Edward G. Bremer kidnaping trial in federal court and testified that one of the first persons the Barker-Karpis gang saw on its arrival in Minnesota in 1933 was one of the three defendants, Harry Sawyer, former St. Paul bootlegger.

Sawyer, together with Cassius McDonald and Willie Weaver, is on trial charged with conspiracy in the $200,000 abduction of Bremer in January, 1934.

The Murray woman was brought here from the woman's reformatory in Missouri where she is serving a 25 year term for robbery.

Fourteen witnesses arrived today from Havana, Cuba, to testify as prosecution witnesses. Through them the government plans to tie McDonald to the kidnaping.

The government lost one of its witnesses today with the death of John Deere, pastor of St. Michael's church, Prior Lake, Wis., and close friend of the Bremer family. Father Deere was to have related his receipt of a ransom note.

LAW AFFECTING TOWN BOUNDARY LAND HELD VOID

Judge Albert E. Isley of Newton, Ill., sitting in the Cook County court, yesterday held unconstitutional a law passed by the state legislature last July which provided for the disconnecting of territory from towns and villages. The law would have permitted any owner of unsubdivided land, on the boundary of a village or town, to petition the County court to have his land placed outside the town limits.

Judge Isley ruled that the law provided an "arbitrary classification" in limiting its application to owners of more than 20 acres and that it deprived taxpayers of towns of their rights without due process of law because they would receive no notice if the town did not contest the petition. The act is void, the judge ruled, because it unlawfully delegates legislative powers to the courts.

Judge Isley's decision was given on two petitions filed by 17 owners of 460 acres in the west and northwest portions of the village of Niles, seeking to be disconnected from the village.

SUBURBS MOVE TO ADOPT NEW DAYLIGHT TIME

Hope for Single Zone All the Way to New York.

BY LLOYD WENDT.

Cities and towns which border on Lake Michigan from Kenosha, Wis., to Michigan City, Ind., are considering plans to follow Chicago in the adoption of permanent daylight saving [eastern standard] time, a survey yesterday showed.

Michigan already has eastern time by a state law. State Representative Carl Woodward of Michigan City announced that he would ask Indiana to take similar action at the next session of the legislature. The Chicago time change is effective March 1.

If Indiana takes this step eastern time would prevail all the way from New York to Chicago except for a 70 mile strip of western Ohio extending from the Michigan line to the Ohio river, which would still be on central time. Officials pointed out that this strip would also be included in eastern time if the interstate commerce commission receives favorably Chicago's petition for a westward extension of the official eastern time zone to include this city.

Act to Reopen Michigan Case.

The petition was filed on Tuesday by City Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes. In it Mr. Hodes asked that the commerce commission reopen the Michigan case of 1931.

It was in that year that Michigan enacted its law adopting eastern standard time and also sought to have the railroads and other interstate carriers operate on the same time. The commerce commission rejected this latter plan, however, because Chicago, the western terminus for the major eastern railroads, was using central time and confusion was feared.

Now that Chicago is to go on eastern time it is hoped that the commerce commission will approve the westward extension of the official eastern time zone. Such action would end for Michigan the disparity between its own time and railroad time and would also weld the eastern time zone into a compact unit.

An End to Confusion.

Furthermore, it was pointed out, a uniform time zone between Chicago and New York would mean that railroads, air lines, markets, and banks in these two great cities and in all the intervening communities would function on the same time basis, putting an end to the confusion that now exists.

In Wisconsin, too, there is activity for adoption of eastern time in the wake of Chicago's action. The Kenosha post of the American Legion has advanced a proposal that the cities of Wisconsin unite in demanding the repeal of a state law which now prohibits any change from central time.

Most of the towns in the Illinois counties of Lake and McHenry, bordering Wisconsin, have indicated that they plan to follow Chicago in the eastern time move.

Winthrop Harbor and Zion City will certainly follow, said village officials yesterday. The North Chicago council has voted to instruct its city attorney to draft an eastern time ordinance.

All North Shore for It.

Mayor Mancel Talcott of Waukegan said that he expects Waukegan to adopt eastern time. Lake Forest has adopted the plan by a unanimous vote of the city council.

Mayor William Dooley of Highland Park said he favors the change and believes the suburb's residents do too. Lake Bluff and Highwood expect to adopt the time change.

Woodstock and Crystal Lake expect to follow Chicago.

Mayor Charles H. Bartlett of Evanston predicted that this suburb will adopt the time change, although no proposal is now before the city council. Harry C. Kinne, village president of Wilmette, forecast similar action there, and the Kenilworth council expects to take favorable action at its meeting the first Monday in February.

William B. Moulton, village president of Winnetka, declared that permanent daylight saving time is favored there, and F. D. Siefkin of Glencoe saw that village following without formal action.

Niles Center voted to adopt eastern time some weeks ago. The Park Ridge council will vote on the plan Jan. 21. Mayor G. W. Kinder of Des Plaines has instructed the city attorney to draft an eastern time ordinance there.

Plan Before Indiana Cities.

To the southeast the Indiana industrial cities of Gary, Hammond, and Whiting all have eastern time proposals before their councils, with action expected before Chicago changes time on March 1.

In Michigan City, where a newspaper poll revealed 1,525 for eastern time and 1,041 against it, with sentiment for the change in all factory employé groups, Mayor R. C. Fedder said that action on the change will await the outcome of a referendum.

Joliet and Kankakee are reported opposed to eastern time, but the southwest suburbs—Harvey, Chicago Heights, Flossmoor, Homewood, Tinley Park, and South Holland—expect to follow the Chicago time change on March 1.

"I'm sure Calumet City will follow Chicago in adopting eastern time," said Mayor William S. Zick. Mayor Frank Bruggemann of Harvey and Mayor John Rice of Blue Island declared that both those cities desire eastern time. Palos Park has already adopted fast time by unanimous vote of the council.

To the west James Howe, village president of Oak Park, declared that sentiment for eastern time is strong in that suburb. In addition, Lyons, Maywood, Melrose Park, River Forest, Wheaton, and Lombard are planning to follow the rest of the metropolitan area in adopting the time change.

Aurora Plans Referendum.

Mayor C. M. Bjorseth of Aurora said that a referendum will determine the attitude of that city toward eastern time. In Elgin it is expected that a petition urging the change will be presented to the city council soon.

Geneva, St. Charles, and Batavia expect to adopt summer daylight saving time in the spring and to delay a decision on making the time change permanent.

Lake Zurich Sends Protest Against Moving Rand Rd.

William A. White, president of the village of Lake Zurich in Lake county, announced yesterday that residents of the village have sent petitions to Gov. Horner and representativs of the Eighth senatorial district in the legislature protesting against plans of the state highway department to reroute Rand road so that automobile trafic will be diverted from the village. The highway department is surveying a route passing south and east of Lake Zurich to avoid a railroad crossing and a stretch of winding road on the present route through the village.

FLAT LOOTED; $415 LOSS.

Police were searching yesterday for a burglar who broke into an apartment at 1722 South Michigan avenue and stole pictures, clothing, and jewelry belonging to Jose Valis, a Mexican student. Valis estimated his loss at $415.

Mother Tells of Her Conduct

ANN COOPER HEWITT.
[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

HEWITT HEIRESS' SHOCKING NOTES TOLD BY MOTHER

Paid to Regain Letters to Chauffeur, She Says.

Hackensack, N. J., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—An affidavit by Mrs. Maryon Cooper Hewitt McCarter that she was forced to pay "thousands of dollars" to recover "shocking letters" her daughter, then 17, wrote to their chauffeur, with whom the girl was infatuated, was added today to the mass of charges in the legal battle between the mother and daughter.

The affidavit was revealed by Mrs. McCarter's attorney, William V. Breslin, and in it the mother said she made the affidavit with "hesitancy and regret" and only because of the bitter attacks against her by her daughter, Ann Cooper Hewitt, now 21.

Tells of Infatuation.

The mother affirmed she never had expended any of her daughter's moneys for her own purposes or pleasure, and that while she had gambled in Europe and America she had never lost any of Ann's money.

"About four years ago, while we were living in Riverwood, Cal., Ann became infatuated with the chauffeur," the mother affirmed.

He persuaded her to prepare to run away with him and then encouraged Ann to write letters to him. It was necessary to secure possession of those letters. I did so.

"The letters were of a character which justified their immediate destruction. They contained locks of hair of Ann's and a great many references to things which should not be written about.

"Paid Thousands," Says Mother.

"I paid thousands of dollars in currency to secure these letters and to break up this infatuation.

"From time to time since that date I have had to use special means for blocking what seemed to be infatuations on the part of Ann. Mostly these have occurred with men in uniform, regardless of their station."

Tracing her daughter's life from her premature birth, Mrs. McCarter said the girl had been in delicate health while she was a child, and added:

"She developed certain unfortunate little habits which undoubtedly came from her bad physical start. I had to have her treated for these habits as well as for the more important physical deficiencies."

Tells of School Troubles.

She said she had difficulty persuading Ann to go to school and that after she did, it was "exceedingly difficult" to keep her there, adding:

"She always would complain to me that the teachers were unkind to her and that the other pupils abused her and treated her cruelly."

However, the mother said, investigation showed "she made her own difficulty and that she seemed to be deliberately trying to make it impossible for her to be kept in school."

Affidavits on file in the Chancery court at Trenton, N. J., state that when Miss Hewitt was undergoing an operation for the removal of a ruptured appendix the doctors performing the operation discovered a condition which caused a severe disturbance and made a corrective operation imperative, it was revealed today.

The affidavits were made by Dr. Samuel G. Boyd and Dr. Tilton E. Tillman, who with Miss Hewitt's mother are the defendants in a $500,000 damage suit filed by Miss Hewitt, who charged that the doctors performed a sterilization operation on her without her knowledge or consent, as part of a plot on her mother's part to gain control of her fortune.

It would appear from the affidavits filed by the doctors that the operation which they describe is the one on which Miss Hewitt now bases her suit. Chancery files also reveal that Nov. 29, 1934, the court was asked by Mrs. McCarter for a special allowance of $15,000 to cover the expenses of an operation.

Affidavits set forth that the actual cost of the operation was $5,292.69 and that the remainder of the $15,000 was needed for the expense of convalescence.

Search of the files also reveals that for more than ten years the court has been petitioned at intervals by Mrs. McCarter for the trust fund of Miss Hewitt, the mother petitioning as the guardian of her daughter.

FREE SAUNDERS, DERBY WINNER, IN KILLING CASE

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The indictment charging Willie [Smoky] Saunders, jocky who won the 1935 Kentucky Derby, with being an accessory to the murder of Mrs. Evelyn Sliwinski, was dismissed here today in Criminal court.

Walter Schaefer, 25 year old racing stable exercise boy from Chicago Heights, Ill., today stood acquitted of the murder of Mrs. Sliwinski, who was killed by an automobile after a wild party here the night of Oct. 20.

A jury in Criminal court found Schaefer "not guilty" after deliberating an hour and 48 minutes last night.

Mrs. Agatha Mackison, fourth member of the midnight round of night clubs and drinking that ended in Mrs. Sliwinski's death, was the principal prosecution witness.

RANSOM MONEY PASSER WRITES TO CLEAR BRUNO

Gov. Hoffman Recipient of Faulkner Note.

der, and you will not rue the day when you granted commutation, for clemency I cannot possibly invite, because I cannot come out in the open.

"You are comparatively young yet and you might live to see the day when the whole truth will likely come out perhaps as a deathbed story. As far as Condon is concerned . . . You would be well advised to take his assertions with a grain of salt. He has reasons.

"Having done my duty as I see it before me, and assuring your excellency of my highest regards and my firm belief in your highest integrity, who will know now how to act in matters Hauptmann,

"I am closing, most respectfully,
"J. J. FAULKNER."

Await German Documents.

The Faulkner note to the governor will be amplified with documents arriving here tomorrow from Germany on the liner Europa, it was learned tonight. This new evidence is expected to sustain Hauptmann's charge that his dead furrier friend, Isidor Fisch, was "in on the job." Hauptmann consistently has maintained that he was merely the scapegoat in getting rid of some of the money.

The $2,980 which turned up at the time of the gold embargo was, next to the $15,000 found in Hauptmann's Bronx garage, the largest lump sum of the Lindbergh bills found.

Federal authorities and New Jersey state police tried in every way to trace Faulkner's identity, but without success. Hauptmann's chief counsel, during the trial, Edward J. Reilly, argued the Faulkner angle, declaring it proved other persons than Hauptmann received and passed Lindbergh money.

Bruno Had $49,985.

State Attorney General David T. Wilentz, however, placed accountants on the stand to show that even if the money was passed in Faulkner's name, Bruno's financial records showed that he actually spent or hoarded approximately $49,985 from the time Dr. John F. [Jafsie] Condon paid the ransom in St. Raymond's cemetery, Bronx, up to the day of his arrest.

Earlier today Prosecutor Hauck questioned David H. Moore, 60 year old farmer, whose property is a mile and a half from the Lindberghs' former estate near Hopewell. Moore, Hauck said, told him that while construction was in progress on the Lindbergh property in the spring of 1931 he saw a woman he now recognizes as Mrs. Hauptman, and a man in a car parked in that vicinity.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of state police, read from police records to show that Moore's story had been investigated and discarded long ago.

Unlikely to Call Hauptmann.

[Copyright: 1936: By the Associated Press.]

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 10 [Friday].—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's insistence he has nothing new to tell decreased today his chances of escaping the electric chair. Gov. Harold G. Hoffman said it was "extremely" doubtful the Court of Pardons tomorrow would make the unprecedented move of sitting at the prison and hearing the last plea of the man condemned to die a week from tonight for the kidnap-killing of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.

Unemployment in Germany Shows December Increase

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 9.—Unemployment in Germany increased in December, 1935, by 522,000 as against an increase of 251,000 in December, 1934. At the end of 1935 the total of unemployed was 2,507,000.

Directs Boys' Club

MISS MABEL VERA SONES.

Miss Mabel Vera Sones, 28 years old, of Keokuk, Ia., a social service worker, has been elected managing director of the Lincoln park branch of the Chicago Boys' clubs, it was announced yesterday. The branch, which is at 1725 Orchard street, has a membership of 5,004. Miss Sones said that she "knew no reason" why a woman couldn't head a boys' organization.

MISS ANNA CAN BE PRETTY HARD ON BIG BURGLARS

Miss Anna Kain, 60 years old, housekeeper in the home of Herman M. Horwitz, 2246 Ridge avenue, Evanston, weighs about 100 pounds. But she was amply large enough to rout a tall colored man who broke into the Horwitz home last night.

After the man had fled Miss Kain reported her feat to the Evanston police.

"When I got back to the house after a trip to the grocery," she said, "this man was standing in the front hall. He saw me and put his hand on his pocket, as if he had a pistol. I went up to him and hit him in the face. He didn't like that and ran to the back door. It was locked and I followed him and slugged him a couple more times. So he turned again and ran back to the front door and out. If I could have run a little faster I'd have held him for the police."

Mr. Horwitz and other members of the family were absent when the encounter took place. Miss Kain estimated that the burglar weighed 200 pounds.

LYING IS NORMAL IN SMALL CHILD, SAVANT ASSERTS

Mothers have nothing to fear in the lies of their young children, Dr. George J. Mohr, psychiatrist of the University of Illinois medical school, declared last night before an audience of 300 at Fullerton hall in the Art institute.

Instead, Dr. Mohr said, lying is a natural and normal method whereby the pre-school age child works through certain problems in social growth.

"The child who says, 'I can knock my father flat,' is merely saying that as an outward manifestation of the competitive, half hostile feeling he suddenly has for his father, when he is uncertain of his relationship to him or his family," Dr. Mohr said. "Naughtiness is another means whereby a child seeks to reassure himself about himself.

"It is a painful situation for the child, but an instinctive one, and tends to culminate at the age of 5 or 6."

Dr. Mohr's talk was the second of a series sponsored by the Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene.

Chart Detailed Inquiry; Favor No Theory.

Investigators, having exhausted their repertory of quick stabs at a solution of the murder of Dr. Silber C. Peacock, widely known specialist in children's diseases, and found them unavailing, yesterday decided to chart the course of their search for the killer over a long period.

Assistant State's Attorney Marshall Kearney and the police continued their questioning of patients and other persons who knew Dr. Peacock. They still were busy at this task up to midnight.

"We have not found anything to justify taking any one into custody," said Mr. Kearney. "But we are proceeding methodically in a search for clews."

Ask Friends to Aid.

It was indicated that all the doctor's patrons, all his professional friends, and all the nurses at the hospitals in which he worked would be asked to volunteer anything they know that would suggest a line of investigation.

"We are starting from scratch again," said Capt. John Prendergast, chief of the uniformed police.

He indicated that there was no favored theory, although it was his personal belief that the call which summoned Dr. Peacock from his apartment at 5555 Sheridan road on Jan. 2 to "attend a sick child" was from a person known to the doctor.

"Possibly a professional man, possibly a regular patient," said the chief; "anything is possible. In this new phase of the investigation we plan to overlook nothing. It does seem that Dr. Peacock violated the usual rule of caution if he answered a call from a perfect stranger, but even that is not out."

Brokerage Account Revealed.

It was disclosed during the day that Dr. Peacock had for some months maintained a moderate sized brokerage account with A. C. Perrill & Co., 231 South La Salle street. Alger Perrill, one of the partners in the firm, said that the account seldom ran over $2,000 and that the doctor was in the habit of making small turns to take small profits.

"On Dec. 20 he ordered the account closed and told us to put his balance into some sound stock," said Perrill. "This was done and we turned over to him 100 shares of the stock purchased. At that time Dr. Peacock appeared to be under a strain, but I don't know the cause of it."

Joseph Wilimovsky, ballistics expert for the coroner's office, declared yesterday that the bullet which killed the physician was of .38 caliber.

Hunt for Death Bullet.

Lieut. Otto Erlanson of the detective bureau's homicide squad yesterday started to question residents of every building with the number 6438 on north-south streets from Kedzie avenue to Damen avenue. The call that took Dr. Peacock to his death purported to come from a "G. Smale" at 6438 North Whipple street and his body was found in his car in the 6300 block on North Francisco avenue, only a few blocks distant.

BRITAIN, FRANCE, GERMANY SEEK RUSSIAN TRADE

London Offers Loan or Credit to Reds.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Great Britain is competing with France and Germany in a keen race for soviet markets. It was reported today that the British government has under consideration proposals to stimulate Anglo-Russian trade by granting the soviet either short term credits or a loan, the amount of which is being mentioned in financial circles at around 100 million dollars.

The ministers apparently have agreed in principle that steps shall now be taken to expand British exports to Russia. The question of whether the bait will take the form of credits or a loan will be decided by the cabinet next week.

Stirred by New Lineup.

The new political lineup in Europe also is seen by some as an incentive toward closer relations with Moscow.

Should the cabinet adopt the loan plan it is probable the issue would be guaranteed by the British government and a provision made in the agreement with Russia for a rakeoff from the soviet interest payments for British holders of pre-revolution Russian bonds.

If the loan were raised at 3 or 3½ per cent and Russia agreed to pay 6 or 7 per cent, the difference would go to Russia's creditors. The sum realized would be infinitesimal compared with soviet indebtedness, which, apart from the national debt of the czarist government, is estimated at around 1 billion 250 million dollars. One provision in any loan agrement would be that the whole proceeds must be spent in this country.

Germany Seeks Deal.

The Russian government is at present negotiating with France for credits amounting to 65 million dollars. The French government is willing to grant credit, but it is believed the banks are fighting shy. Germany also is angling for Russian trade despite the animosity toward the soviet régime, and is ready to give credits on generous terms.

Russia now ranks as the second largest gold producing country in the world, and the willingness of the three governments to provide trading facilities is seen here as a reflection of the big improvement which has taken place in Russia's credit in recent years.

HANKEL DENIES WIFE'S CHARGES OF MISCONDUCT

Fred C. Hankel, orchestra leader, took the witness stand yesterday before Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan and denied charges of his estranged wife, Mrs. Olive Hankel, 1257 Argyle street, that he had been guilty of misconduct with other women. Hankel is contesting a separate maintenance suit brought by his wife and has filed a cross bill for divorce.

Among the women named by Mrs. Hankel was Mrs. Gertrude R. Walker, estranged wife of Wirt D. Walker, who was a defendant in a $100,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Mrs. Hankel. In this suit the court directed a jury to return a not guilty verdict.

NAVAL PARLEY FIXES MONDAY FOR OWN BURIAL

Jap Demand for Parity Ruins Conference.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The five power naval conference today fixed Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock as the time for celebrating its own funeral.

The American delegates are set to go home following all day talks which the British delegates, including Foreign Secretary Capt. Anthony Eden, Viscount Monsell, first lord of the admiralty, and Sir A. Ernle M. Chatfield, admiral of the fleet, had with the Japanese delegates, Admiral Osami Nagano and Matsuzo Nagai.

Japan Stumbling Block.

The British desperately sought to persuade the Japanese to discuss other aspects of naval limitation without having a showdown first on naval parity as the Tokio delegates now insist.

These conversations represented the last effort to save the conference from collapse and apparently resulted in failure. The Japanese promised to consult Tokio, but expected no authorization to change their present attitude.

Awaiting results of this appeal to Tokio, the meeting of the conference scheduled for tomorrow was canceled, and this in itself is regarded as significant.

Ready to Go Home.

At the long conversations with the Japanese the British finally consented to let the Japanese bring up again their common upper limit proposals. However, as these already have been rejected by every one, their discussion on Monday is not expected to lead anywhere. Neither is the discussion expected to leave anything ahead of the conference except to pack up and go home with each nation free to build as many warships as it needs and can afford.

It was believed that in case the Japanese quit the conference Monday and go home, the other four powers might continue discussions on plans for exchange of information about naval programs and other minor details to save on expenses.

MRS. MORROW IN ENGLAND; TAKES AUTO FOR WALES

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow and her daughter, Constance, were believed en route to Wales tonight to join the Charles A. Lindberghs after a secretive landing here today.

Baron Acquitted by Peers, Freed as Reckless Driver

LONDON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Lord de Clifford, 28 year old baron of ancient lineage, was discharged in Old Bailey court today from a charge of dangerous driving arising from an automobile accident. The prosecution offered no evidence. The house of lords on Dec. 12 acquitted Lord de Clifford of a charge of manslaughter, arising from the same accident.

NAZI POLICE NAB U. S. WRITER FOR JEWISH AGENCY

Raid His Rooms and Take Passport.

BERLIN, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Secret Nazi police conducted a search late today of the boarding house rooms occupied by Boris Smolar, chief European correspondent of the Jewish Telegraphic agency, taking his passport and later ordering him to report to police headquarters tomorrow for a hearing.

No reason was given for the police action. Smolar, who is an American citizen, informed the American consulate general of the incident.

Ordered to Speak German.

While the police were going through Smolar's papers, Elias Tobenkin, American publicist who is on his way to the United States after a tour of Asiatic Russia, happened in to Smolar's quarters. When Smolar attempted to inform him in English of the proceedings he was ordered to speak German only.

Smolar accompanied the agents to the police station, where he was released with the understanding that he report in the morning.

Outlines Plans to Move Jews.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The Central British fund for German Jewry tonight outlined its plan to transfer some 250,000 Jews and their money from Germany to other lands.

The announcement said it was authorized by Sir Herbert Samuel, Viscount Bearsted, and Simon Marks, three British Jewish leaders, who will sail for New York Jan. 15 aboard the Majestic in connection with the emigration plan. It said:

"The object of the mission to the United States is exploratory. The delegation will seek to take counsel with all sections of those interested in America, with a view to preparation of a scheme to promote the emigration of Jews from Germany, and to assist emigrants in starting enterprises and finding occupations in their new homes.

"It is intended to formulate a definite scheme after consultation with various Jewish bodies, not only in America but also in Palestine and elsewhere. Any scheme for these objects will clearly require the raising of a large sum."

GERMANS EXHIBIT NEW AIR LINER; TRAVELS 250 M.P.H.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 9.—What is claimed to be the world's fastest passenger plane, the Heinkel HE-111, was demonstrated to the public for the first time today at Tempelhof airport.

The plane is equipped with two 660 horsepower motors, giving a speed of 250 miles an hour, but these will be replaced by two new German motors of 880 horsepower. When they are installed the plane will have an estimated maximum speed of 256 miles per hour and cruising speed of 220 miles per hour with a full load and ten passengers. The plane, it is said, can climb 3,000 feet in two and a half minutes and fly 940 miles without landing.

Go to the nearest grocery store or delicatessen. Pay the regular price for one can of Gebhardt Chili con Carne CON FRIJOLES. Serve it tonight in steaming bowls, on Gebhardt's Tamales, or in any way you like chili best.

If you sincerely do not believe it is the best Chili con Carne you ever tasted, write your reasons on the label, with your name and address, and mail before midnight Wednesday, January 22, 1936, to Gebhardt Chili Powder Company, San Antonio, Texas, who will return twice what you paid.

Enjoy taste-tempting bowls of this finest of all Chili con Carne NOW while Gebhardt's "DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK" OFFER IS IN FORCE!

The best Chili con Carne you ever tasted! This is a strong statement—it takes in a lot of territory! There are two ways to back it up—with words—and money!

We could take only the first method—by telling you in words how Gebhardt's Chili con Carne is made. How we use only the portions of choice Government-inspected beef that make the best Chili con Carne—the most expensive beef cuts available for the purpose! How we impart the exclusive Gebhardt's Mexican flavor by adding just the right blend of genuine Ancho chili peppers and rare native spices! How, in Gebhardt's Chili con Carne CON FRIJOLES, we use only choice varieties of Mexican style beans!

We could tell you that the beef, and the beans, are combined in just the right proportions and are cooked directly in golden-enamel lined cans—in giant steam pressure kettles—in sanitary, snow-white kitchens! We could tell you that you'll find 1/3 to 1/2 more meat and better meat in Gebhardt's. These true word-pictures are enough to whet keen appetites for savory, appetizing bowls of Gebhardt's Chili con Carne.

But—we are backing up words with money—with our daring "Double Your Money Back" Offer!

We couldn't afford to make this offer if we didn't know we have a quality product—if we were not sure that Gebhardt's years of experience as the leader in the field of prepared Mexican food products had taught us how to make Chili con Carne that suits the great majority of tastes!

But we do make this offer in order to bring to you more forcefully—by immediate trial—the real enjoyment of eating genuine Gebhardt's Chili con Carne. In all of the years of depression Gebhardt's has not lowered in the least bit the outstanding quality of this finest of all Chili con Carne.

We offer to prove to you that the high quality of Gebhardt's is worth the slight additional cost over ordinary products, by our daring "Double Your Money Back" Offer!

TWO WEEK OLD BABY ABANDONED; $25 SENT TO PAY FOR ITS CARE

A two weeks' old girl, abandoned with Mrs. E. L. Nichols, 2573 North Clark street, a week ago by a young woman who gave her name as Mrs. Ruth Elder Temple, was taken to the Columbus hospital yesterday by the Sheffield avenue police. Mrs. Nichols, who notified the police, said the young woman rented a room at her house and shortly afterward announced she was going for a walk. She did not return. On Tuesday Mrs. Nichols received a money order for $25, apparently to care for the child.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

WHAT NEXT?

Mr. Roosevelt in his Jackson day speech referred briefly, with no other comment, to the Supreme court AAA decisions, majority and minority, as two of the most momentous opinions ever rendered in a case before the Supreme court of the United States. "The ultimate results of the language of these opinions will profoundly affect the lives of Americans for years to come." Mr. Roosevelt intimated that he would have something to say after his study of the opinions.

What turn the New Deal's search for constitutional amendment would take has been a matter of speculation ever since Mr. Roosevelt after the NRA defeat in the courts gave his opinion that the constitution was a horse and buggy. It is still a matter of speculation, made more lively by the overturning of the Agricultural Adjustment act and by the brief reference Mr. Roosevelt has made to the latter setback for the peaceable revolution. It would seem probable that the type of amendment proposed might be revealed in Mr. Justice Stone's dissent in the recent case—that is, an amendment redefining the power of the federal government under the general welfare clause and making a specific, newly defined delegation of power permitting the use of taxing powers in the manner the majority of the court held to be prohibited.

If such is to be the issue it will indeed make the case one of the most momentous that has come before the American people, because, as Mr. Justice Roberts, in the majority opinion, pointed out and illustrated, there will be nothing much left of the original constitutional restraints upon central government if authority be delegated to use the taxing power in any affair regarded as one of general welfare and thus to regulate, control or destroy without the present restraints.

This would be a battle to the finish, with the entire structure of the American nation and most of the liberties of its people at stake.

FINANCING THE BONUS.

The rapid progress of the bonus bill through congress is universally forecast. The probability is that even if the President vetoes the measure it will be passed over his veto. There is little doubt now that the bonus will be approved; the one question still to be settled is what shall it be paid with.

The answer is obvious. The bonus should be paid from the 4 billion 800 million dollar relief fund voted at the last session. If that course is adopted the objective of increasing the nation's purchasing power will be served without adding an additional charge to the federal treasury and without increasing the federal debt beyond the point to which the nation is already committed.

Instead of spending the money for boondoggling it should be spent for the bonus.

PLANNING NEUTRALITY.

Neutrality has a nice sound. It seems to say peace. Sometimes the peacemaker gets the hardest wallop of the fight. But the new theory of American neutrality is supposed to keep the United States out of the street where the fighting is. Whenever a war starts this country is supposed to put its hands in its pockets and walk around the corner. Supposition and facts frequently are made of different materials.

A belligerent with money to buy and means to carry materials he desperately needs naturally will hold a grudge against the trader who refuses him. He cannot make much of a point in protest if his opponent is in the same fix and if both knew in advance of the restrictions this country would automatically put on sales of war materials. Mr. Roosevelt has wanted the authority to pick and choose, discriminating against the belligerent the American government regarded as the aggressor and the breaker of the peace. That would be a way of making war and a sure way of making enemies.

War profits have been linked with munition makers and damned accordingly, but the political pressure for a share of the money drained out of a country will come from simpler souls and more admired characters. If Canadian wheat growers and Brazil cotton planters were getting rich on three dollar grain and thirty dollar staple while American docks were idle the American growers would think themselves badly used and would try to do something about it. Bootlegging would be one thing.

The experiment in neutrality made here and coinciding with the war in Africa has revealed some of the difficulties inherent in the undertaking, only some because Ethiopia isn't seeking our markets and Italy can't pour out money in profusion. Even at that the Roosevelt administration has done some high handed things such as refusing the protection of the government to citizens engaged in trade not prohibited by law and warning them not to do things legally within their rights. Can the American people remember another time when the flag over a peaceable trader had no meaning in Washington policy?

If congress is honest in the revision of the temporary neutrality act it will not allow arbitrary decisions of the White House and the Washington departments to go where the law doesn't. If an American is to be denied the protection of his government the terms on which he will lose it should be stated in the law.

ANNUAL BUDGET FICTION.

After a wild régime of spending, in which the outgo of the national government has exceeded the income by approximately 4 billion dollars each year, the President has announced in his annual budgetary message that the deficit in the year which ends June 30, 1937, will be reduced to a billion dollars.

If President Roosevelt had by his past performance given evidence that he was loyal to the budget system of financial management and was willing to follow a policy of retrenchment consistently, a wave of enthusiasm would now be sweeping the country. But that is far from being true. Each succeeding budget of the Roosevelt administration has been little more than a piece of political fiction. A review of the preceding budgets will show that this characterization is completely justified.

On Jan. 4, 1934, the President sent to congress a budget in which he indicated that expenditures in the year ending June 30, 1934, would be in excess of 9 billion dollars, resulting in a deficit of the staggering sum of 7 billion dollars for that year. At the same time he announced a plan to reduce the deficit to 2 billion dollars in the year following and to bring the budget completely into balance in the year ending June 30, 1936. It was then recognized by informed observers that the President had greatly overstated what could be spent even by a wildly spendthrift government. The same persons believed and declared that it was doubtful that the President, having embarked on the primrose path of spending the money of posterity, would keep within the available means in 1936 or in any other year of his administration.

A year passed. In his budgetary message of 1935 the President showed that little credence was to be placed in the statements about economies. For the budgetary deficit for 1935 had not been reduced to two billion dollars. And instead of a balanced budget which he had promised for the year 1936 he admitted that expenditures would be as much in excess of income in that year as they ever had been. He again used the trick of overestimating what was to be expended, so that he could in his most recent budgetary statement report a reduction.

In the current budget the President now takes credit for the fact that there has been expended something less than he had previously threatened. The President who increased the national debt of the country by 11 billion dollars pats himself on the back because it wasn't 13 billion. The balanced budget is coming, he again promises. In the year ending June 30, 1937, he now says the deficit will be only a billion dollars.

Because of his past budgetary record the President's new pledges of economy have to be heavily discounted. He has written fine words before about budget balancing without changing his subsequent course of conduct. It is further to be noted that in the new budget the relief requirements have not yet been taken into account. He will tell about them two months from now, when a better political perspective can be had. Perhaps the willingness of Mr. Roosevelt to reduce expenditures, even though the reduction may be hypothetical, may be taken to indicate that he is taking the Literary Digest poll seriously. If he is not to have the control of the spending he is content to have government conducted on a smaller scale.

THE GRATITUDE OF DICTATORSHIP.

The ingratitude of republics has been a familiar reproach since classical times. How well it is merited is indicated in a number of recent dispatches from Berlin.

There are several thousand horses in Germany which served with the kaiser's armies in the world war. Though they are very old, many of them are still obliged to do heavy work. Each of these animals has been given a small sack of oats and a large medal by a grateful dictatorship.

The same dictatorship has ordered the widows of several hundred men killed in the war to move from government owned flat buildings. The German republic erected these buildings after the war in order to provide low cost dwellings for the widows and orphans of men who died for Germany. [Republics, it will be remembered, are always ungrateful.] Herr Hitler has now dispossessed these impoverished women in the middle of winter. The Nazi dictatorship can no more forget that these women are Jewish, as were their husbands, than it can forget the heroism of the horses.

Editorial of the Day

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

If Senator Borah should be nominated and elected next year, he would be the oldest man to be elected President in our national history, for he will be 71 next June 29. But the stalwart senator from Idaho is fond of breaking precedents, and the thought of being the oldest person to reach the nation's highest office in 150 years probably has no terrors for him.

The oldest President at the time of election was William Henry Harrison. He was chosen in 1840, at the age of 67. He died exactly one month after inauguration, of pneumonia. Eight other Presidents have been inaugurated after the age of 60, including Washington, Jefferson, Madison, and Monroe in their second terms, as well as John Adams, Jackson, Taylor, and Buchanan. Since the civil war older men have been less the fashion, and none over 60 has been elected in that time.

Even among the defeated candidates, none has been quite as old as Mr. Borah. La Follette tops the list, having been a candidate at 69. He died the following year. Henry Clay made his second unsuccessful race at 67. The youngest President, on the other hand, was Theodore Roosevelt, who came into office at 42, but was not elected President until he was 46. The average age at inauguration has been 55½ years. Before the civil war the average was nearly 59 and since the civil war 52½.

All of this is not in itself an argument against the candidacy of the sturdy Idahoan, who is approaching 71. For all we know, he may be the stamp of those ageless Frenchmen, such as Georges Clemenceau, who was much too dynamic for his younger rivals and colleagues as he neared 80. And President Thomas Masaryk has just retired to enjoy his 86th birthday in quiet!

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

NOW THAT THE CANDIDATES for President, the silver throated orators, the high browed statesmen, and the politicians have done their duty to Old Hickory Jackson, he's all through for another year. So set 'em up in the other alley. The next birthdays on the calendar are those of Lincoln and Washington. Lincoln will receive most attention from the Republicans, but both Democrats and Republicans will prove that G. Washington belonged to their side. But the Republicans say the fact that George never told a lie proves he wasn't a Democrat and the Democrats point out that the fact that George cut down only one of his father's cherry trees shows he wasn't a Republican. For if he had been a Republican he would have cut down the whole orchard and set fire to the barn and then run around trying to throw the blame on the Democrats.

THE LITTLE WINDS.

(For a Music Teacher.)

I think of Bach and Beethoven
As beautiful remembered flowers
Sprung tall beneath a singing sun
That burned in far immortal hours.

They are long dead. And yet Mozart
And they and Schubert are not lost;
Still breaks their beauty on my heart,
Still stalks each gay and golden ghost.

For O the little winds that come
And lift the sweet and throbbing seeds
To sound of violin and drum
Across Time's dull and clutching weeds

And scatter them in lovely lands
And hover while each bloom uncurls
Of Chopin bright in boyish hands
And Wagner in the throats of girls.

"THE NEW DEALERS are so dazed they are running around in circles since the AAA blew up," says a newspaper item from Washington. But the New Dealers have always been dazed and running around in circles. I should think they'd do something different now—walk on their hands, stand on their heads or chase each other up and down trees and telegraph poles. They have always been unique, those New Dealers, and I am certain they can think up something besides running around in circles as they've always done.

‡

THE ALPHABET has been knocked out of the administration. Cheer up, New Dealers; there's plenty more alphabets. What's the matter with the Greek alphabet, or the Russian, or Choctaw, or Egyptian? Look around; there's plenty of alphabets. Grab some of 'em and start in naming things all over again.

CHIQUITO.

(A Mexican Silhouette.)

They called him "Chiquito"
The wonderful one,
For his eyes were like diamonds
And his hair like the sun!
He danced every night
Beneath the bright stars,
To the strum and the moan
Of seven guitars.
He wore velvet slacks
With a bright crimson sash,
And a black satin blouse
With nonchalant dash.
He swayed with the rumba
From toes to gold curls,
And threw tyrant kisses
To coy blushing girls.
Young women and old ones
Were wild about him,
When they saw him dance
Their bright eyes grew dim.
Alluring, ethereal,
A thing set apart,
He lent love and romance
To each female heart.

One day at a butcher's,
Where pork chops are sold,
I met young Chiquito,
The lovely, the bold.
I thought that my heart
Would stir at the sight
Of this brilliant star
In the broad daylight.
But my eyes did not blink
Nor my heart skip one beat
As I hurried out
To the Mexican street.
And I turned from romance,
Though summer was ripe,
When I saw Chiquito
Buy two pesos of tripe.

"ICE BREAKER Ship Made Ready to Clear Mackinaw Straits of Ice in Spring."—Headline. There's one cheerful item of news yesterday, anyhow. It proves that under the snow, and back of the blizzard, and in spite of the ice and the cold there are some faithful optimistic souls getting ready for Spring. So it must be, in spite of all our doubts and fears, that sweet, young Spring is waiting around the corner. Ah, how true was the old saying we used fondly to repeat at this time of year, "If Winter comes, then Spring's not far behind."

NO LAXATIVES IN APPENDICITIS.

ALTHOUGH skilled physicians, capable of making an accurate diagnosis of a case of appendicitis, are available in almost every community, deaths from this preventable disease continue to mount. The reason is that we do not give enough attention to that ordinary symptom—pain in the abdomen. It is common and hence may be disregarded. At the outset we may lay down the rule that when abdominal pain—and this should include stomach ache, cramps, or soreness—continues for a few hours, an investigation should be made. More often than not inflammation of the appendix is either present or lurking in the offing.

Speed is essential in acute appendicitis just as it is in many disease conditions. For example, in diphtheria, if antitoxin can be given early, life will be preserved. If it is used after the infection has produced a poisonous toxin, a gallon of serum may be without avail. An appendicitis victim who can reach a good hospital within 24 hours of the onset of pain has very little chance of passing into the next world, unless his case is mismanaged. If he waits 48 hours he has a 5 per cent chance of interviewing St. Peter. After 72 hours the death rate is above 10 per cent.

In a clear-cut case of appendicitis the final outcome depends largely upon the home remedies that have been applied before the physician has had an opportunity to intervene. If the sufferer has been given a laxative the angel of death has been greeted effusively and been offered a comfortable seat. Abdominal pain—with or without nausea, vomiting, and constipation—is the one cardinal symptom of inflammation of the appendix. Yet how many will reach instinctively for a laxative or a cathartic on the assumption that the symptoms point toward a mild indigestion. The erroneous assumption is that the patient will be quite all right as soon as the bowels have been emptied. Regardless of the type of laxative—castor oil, milk of magnesia, or epsom salts—the effect is much the same. The infection is spread, peritonitis invited, and not infrequently the abscess formed in the appendix is ruptured. Pain is a warning that something is wrong. If it follows an indiscretion in diet, or the consumption of infected food, the ensuing diarrhea and vomiting will quickly empty the digestive tract. Nature will endeavor to free the bowel from its poisonous contents.

Whenever the appendix becomes infected leucocytes—the white cells of the blood—gather in force to destroy the bacteria. Movements of the intestine cease and if food is given vomiting usually follows. In many cases nausea and vomiting form a part of the picture.

Each year approximately 20,000 deaths occur in the United States from this disease. Three-fourths of the fatal cases received laxatives for the relief of abdominal pain. Appendicitis is primarily a disease of youth. Forty per cent of all cases occur between the ages of 10 and 20 and the average age of those attacked is 27 years.

We can conquer the problem if each of us will remember that pain in the abdomen, nausea, a slight headache, and complete loss of appetite should be regarded as prominent signs of the disease. Reason dictates strict adherence to the following rules:

1. In abdominal pain that continues for two or three hours, a laxative should never be given. No attempt should be made to empty the bowel, even by enema.
2. Nothing should be given by mouth, not even a sip of water.
3. The patient should be in bed and allowed to assume the most comfortable position. The presence of the disease may sometimes be recognized by the posture of the patient who will lie with the knees drawn upward in an effort to relieve the pressure of the abdominal muscles on the inflamed area.

HEMOPHILIA.

Mrs. J. M. writes: Would it be dangerous for a woman who is a known bleeder to become pregnant?

REPLY.

There are two general types of blood diseases that may be important as related to pregnancy. The first type shows a marked reduction in the number of blood platelets, which gives rise to the condition known as thrombocytopenia. The second type has to do with fragility or permeability of the capillaries, a condition that has probably resulted because of the lack of vitamins, the presence of severe toxins, or so-called anaphylaxis. Either of these diseases constitutes a hazard to women in relation to menstruation and pregnancy. If there is a lack of blood platelets and hence a prolonged bleeding time, much may be done by means of transfusions of small amounts of blood injected under the skin or into the muscle. If severe hemorrhage occurs during menstruation from this cause it is sometimes necessary to produce temporary sterilization by means of X-ray treatments.

Occasionally removal of the spleen is advised.

PAIN IN SIDE.

L. W. writes: I have a dull pain on the right side, especially after a full meal. 1. Does this sound like gall bladder trouble? My father had this disorder. 2. What would be a proper diet to prevent trouble there?

REPLY.

1. The pain of which you complain may be due to gall bladder disease, but there are many other causes of like symptoms. The best plan would be to have a careful medical checkup.

2. The diet recommended would have to be determined by the nature of your illness.

NEED EXAMINATION.

Mrs. C. T. writes: I am 50 years old and weigh 198 pounds. What would cause the following symptoms: Hands going to sleep while reading or sewing, sighing and inability to catch the breath, great fatigue?

REPLY.

The symptoms described indicate the necessity of a thorough examination by a competent physician. He should give special attention to the heart and perhaps prescribe a reducing diet.

TALKING TO SELF.

J. O. writes: My 2 year old daughter, who is of a happy nature, is always talking to herself, even when playing with other children. Is this injurious?

REPLY.

The child is merely thinking out loud and this will pass as she grows older. The habit will probably aid her in self-expression.

IT WILL NOT.

A. H. writes: Will olive oil applied to the face every night make hair grow?

REPLY.

No.

PROPERTY DIVISION.

Forest Park, Ill., Jan. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A owned some bonds which were negotiable and she had one of her daughters, B, with whom she lived, place bonds in a safety deposit box, access being had by both. About a year prior to A's death she wrote to another daughter's husband telling him what disposal of the bonds she wished to make upon her death. 1. This was merely an open letter telling him that the bonds were to be divided between four daughters. About six months later the daughter with whom she lived wished to purchase a home and A gave her the bonds to be used as payment. The daughter asked A to put this [2] offer in writing, so the rest of the daughters would be satisfied, but it was not done. Thus the bonds were disposed of by A before her death and after the letter to her son-in-law was written, and there is no further proof on the subject. 3. Now the daughter finds she cannot repay the amount of the bonds. 4. Could you advise proper legal steps to take? 5. Can this daughter have any legal hold upon the property which B is purchasing on contract and which is not paid for yet? R. S.

1. This letter would not be binding as a will.
2. The word offer is hardly appropriate for a completed gift.
3. You have said nothing about an agreement to repay.
4. If there was an agreement to repay and the creditor wishes to enforce it, the first step would be to employ an attorney.
5. Depends on the facts.

SETTLING ESTATE.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My sister passed away Oct. 29, 1934, and the case is still in Probate court. 1. Can the attorney charge fees of 5 per cent on notes or contract and savings? 2. Can he demand it before it is out of court? 3. What can the executor charge? I have collected all the money but am not executrix. I did tell the executor all I did, which was favorable at all times. 4. Does the lawyer or judge specify the amount in fees for the lawyer or executor? 5. Can I settle with the executor without the attorney's consent? 6. There was a bill of the title company lawyer which was sent to me and I paid it. 7. Can costs be charged twice? 8. Can personal property tax be collected, and how much? If a bill comes in must it be paid? 9. How much would it be on about $5,000—$1,000 in cash and the rest in notes and contract? M. W.

1. The attorney's fee would depend largely on the wording of the agreement employing him. We would say that 5 per cent was high on an ordinary estate.
2. It would seem proper that a reasonable fee should be paid at the time of closing. It is not clear what you mean by "before it is out of court."
3. The Illinois statute says not over 6 per cent of the personal property. Four per cent would be nearer the average allowance.
4. The ordinary course is for the executor and his lawyer to prepare the final account showing the proposed allowance. Objecting beneficiaries will have an opportunity to be heard on their objections.
5. Yes, to the exact question that you ask.
6. No question asked.
7. In general, no.
8. In general, yes.
9. The best source of information as to the personal property tax is the assessor's office.

BUENOS AIRES.—So long a time has elapsed since anything has been heard of the projected trans-Andine railway from Salta, Argentina, to Antofagasta, Chile, that most people had begun to think the scheme was dead and buried. Argentine taxpayers in general sincerely hoped that it was.

For some reason this railway was the apple of the late President Yrigoyen's eye, and his government spent a lot of money on the line [then known as the Huaytiquina railway]. A rosy future was predicted for it by his supporters. Primarily, it was intended as a means of transporting cattle from Salta to the northern provinces of Chile, where horned stock is scarce—or nonexistent—though what the railway was to bring on the return journey is not quite clear.

After a certain amount of work had been done it was suddenly decided to change the destination of the line to Socompa, but it was never revealed why such a wilderness as Socompa should be chosen as a railway terminus. Then the whole thing was abandoned and it has been reported that millions of dollars' worth of material have gone to ruin.

Chilean protectionists and cattle breeders looked with a cold and hostile eye upon the idea and probably would have scotched the Chilean section of the line anyway.

But reports have lately come from Salta to the effect that the authorities there are again changing the projected route of the line, thereby indicating that more money is to be sunk in it.

Since the midmountain section of the trans-Andine railway which united Buenos Aires and Santiago was washed away, nonairminded travelers must ride mules or go by sea round Cape Horn. There is little likelihood the line will be rebuilt. The directors have stated flatly that until a wholesale rebate in customs tarifs is established in both countries they are not prepared to spend money on such work, as existing tarifs have effectually killed the railway as a paying concern.

High protective tarifs have thus put a stop to what might be a flourishing cattle trade from Argentina to Chile, and of Chilean produce to Argentina; have ruined one railway and rendered another unnecessary. At the same time there is considerable agitation among the interested parties to have such tarifs increased—not reduced.

CHEMISTRY.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—It was certainly a great surprise to me upon reading your editorial Sunday, entitled "Chemistry," to know there was a scarcity of chemists and chemical engineers. To me it seems that exactly the opposite is true, that the field is overcrowded and offers few opportunities for new men to enter.

Since the time of my graduation from Armour Institute of Technology as a chemical engineer I have tried repeatedly to get connected with companies with which I might practice my profession, to no avail. The chances for interviews come very few and far between and when they do the position requires a man of experience. How one is to obtain experience is the problem with which I and every college graduate in any field are confronted.

Because of the fact that I could not get located in my own field I have been forced to accept a machine job requiring none of the education and knowledge which I possess.

I am not the only one in this predicament. The placement departments of the leading chemical societies and engineering colleges have on file hundreds of names of men who have been waiting for long periods to obtain a position. The thing which strikes me as being very strange and peculiar is the fact that most of these men are college trained and capable chemists for whom you state there is such a great demand.

Edward W. Schmidt.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Ye gods, Tribune, have a heart! Your editorial on chemistry is as far from the truth as the star Arcturus is from Kokomo, Ind.

After nearly thirty years spent in corralling the elusive atoms, making them sit up on their hind legs and bark, etc., certain undeniable facts have pounded themselves into my subconsciousness, to-wit:

Chemistry is the most overcrowded, most underpaid, and most overbunked profession today. In 1933 there were over 2,000 chemists, chemical engineers, etc., in the Cleveland area out of work. Today in Chicago there would be more than that number if most of them had not been forced to emigrate to the Ozarks, live with their wives' relatives, etc. Tribune ads recently had an opening for a chemist at $80 per month; getting right into the bellhop classification, you see.

Now six years of study and preparation will not make a good dentist out of a clumsy bungler who should be herding cows. Just so in chemistry. The public, however, soon shuns the bungling, slipshod dentist, whereas it is unaware of the wash boiler chemist. In fact, many of the latter rise to the top in the profession through the medium of back slapping, petty politics, marrying the boss' daughter, praying before the industrial Buddhas, wearing the right kind of pin, etc.

As a result of these conditions many industrial research laboratories throughout this country spend six years in solving a problem which a real clear-headed chemist could solve in two years or less time. But who cares? The ultimate consumer foots all the bills and so the system goes merrily onward.

A COALITION JUDICIAL SLATE.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—If the Republicans have any backbone and are red-blooded they will put up a fight to break the coalition system of electing judges of the Circuit, Superior, and Municipal courts. They have nothing to lose and everything to gain. In that way the Republicans could put some well qualified men on the judicial ticket and the people would be given a chance to select their own judges. Why should the people take judges hand picked by politicians? As a matter of fact, why should the politicians be interested in foreclosing the people from selecting their own judges?

Martin Watson.

SPEAKING OF MORAL OBLIGATIONS.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—Since the Supreme court decision against the AAA there has been a lot of moaning among New Dealers about the "moral obligation" to the farmers. How does that obligation approach in validity the moral [and legal] obligation to the holders of the government's gold bonds?

Vermont, Ill., Jan. 6.—You asked for it; here it is:

They say most people have no better than the mind of a 12 year old child, and this takes in editorial writers, too. You are like a schoolboy slinging mud, as we call it, at the President of the United States because he has handed you the truth and you can't take it.

Have you told all the investments or gambles you have made that you could not control? Still you like the money and the dollar is your idol. You are good at giving jabs, but you can't take them. You are taking this one because I am handing it to you.

Every one knows you are for big business; that is where you get your money. You are not letting loose of any of it, either.

His acts are not any more unconstitutional than the moneyed interests' are and have been for the last forty years. They have been using their money as power to drive the laboring man to lower levels to make another dollar; starving people to death from the want of work to make another dollar; making him work for less than the foreign born element or not work at all just for the want of another dollar. Is this constitutional? You know it is not, but yet it has gone on and you said nothing about it. Now cry, baby.

THE FAT [MEX.] OF THE LAND.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—A recent visit was made by my wife and two children to my wife's folks in the country. At the breakfast table bacon and eggs were served.

The father remarked that he had gone to town the day before, and he was complaining about the price of bacon, which he said was 43 cents a pound and that it was sliced with a safety razor; in fact, he stated, "Go slow on the bacon."

At the same time they were serving butterine as they sold all their cream to the butter factory, and fresh eggs were sold to the city folks at 45 cents a dozen. Then he brought home storage eggs for the table.

At the same time he had made a deal with the government not to raise hogs and was getting paid not to plant corn, or any product that would cause overproduction.

PUTTING AN IDEA TO [illegible]K.

Litchfield, Ill., Jan. 7.—Th[illegible]ne of Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley to liquidate the indebtedness of the Democratic party by taxing Democrats up to $50 a plate at the Jackson dinner suggests another idea.

Why not tax every man and woman who voted for Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932 approximately $300 each and thus liquidate in part, at least, the additional indebtedness to which Roosevelt has subjected this country?

The same scheme might be extended to the election next November.

BYRD ASKS STUDY TO CUT OUT MAZE OF U. S. BUREAUS

Urges Survey to Overhaul Federal Machinery.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—A resolution calling for a senate investigation of the federal government's machinery with a view to complete reorganization in the interest of economy was introduced today by Senator Harry F. Byrd [Dem., Va.]. He asked that a committee of five be set to make the survey.

After referring to the Democratic platform of 1932, which promised to reduce government costs by 25 per cent through abolition and consolidation of commissions and offices, Senator Byrd said:

"This condition of top-heavy and overlapping boards and bureaus—bad enough in 1932—is much worse now. We have today at Washington the most complicated and costly burocracy in the history of our country. The only relief is drastic reorganization and simplification of the federal government."

Hastings Twits Democrats.

Senator Byrd said that a majority of the Republicans in the senate voted for such large items of expenditure as the 4 billion 800 million dollar relief bill passed at the last session of congress.

"The Republican party may criticize now, but cannot escape responsibility for support given these measures when enacted," he added.

Daniel O. Hastings [Rep., Del.], in an ironic speech from the floor, reproached the Democrats for failure to carry out their economy pledges and gave his version of what President Roosevelt should have said in his message to congress last Friday night.

"The candor which should guide us in our dealings with each other permits me to tell you that the state of the Union is not so good," he said the President should have told the joint session which heard the message.

"Can't Explain Fiscal Failure."

Keeping throughout his speech to the figure of the address he said Mr. Roosevelt should have delivered, he added:

"I cannot quite explain to the congress what it was that went wrong with my fiscal plans. I must say to you frankly that we know not whither we are going."

Senator Hastings broke into verse to end his address. He said the President should have left this final thought with the members of congress:

"Borrow and spend—in November to win,
Let's squander 10 billions; come, pals, pitch in.
Do not hesitate, do not fear;

Robinson Cites "Challenge."

"The senator from Delaware is bold—I cannot say arrogant, the rules of the senate do not permit—when he rises here and assumes to speak for the President of the United States," he said. "The President in his address, which the senator has impliedly criticized, made a challenge to the senator from Delaware of which the latter has taken no notice:

"'If you are against the measures that have been taken, then why do you not propose their repeal?'

"He may attempt impliedly to ridicule the President's message to congress if he pleases, but deep down in his heart he cannot escape the conviction that the message rang from limit to limit of this country and contained a challenge which he has neither the courage nor the ability to meet."

HOUSE IS READY TO PASS BONUS MEASURE TODAY

Bill Expected to Win by Wide Margin.

be passed over a presidential veto if one is rendered. But I warn you that there's a limit to this nation's credit. When we spent 30 billions to get where we are now and then keep increasing this deficit the crash is coming."

But this gloomy note failed to darken the cheerful views taken by the preponderant majority. Democrats and Republicans alike seized the opportunity to draw applause from the veterans in the galleries with their assertions that they had always been for a cash bonus and were proud to vote for one again.

The majority quickly crushed most of the amendments proffered. Representative Allen T. Treadway [Rep., Mass.] suggested payment of the bonus out of the four billion dollar works relief fund, pointing out that this would be a real relief measure and not strain the national credit any more than it was already strained. He gathered some Republican support to this amendment but it was defeated, 118 to 43.

Other Amendments Lose.

Several other amendments of a minor nature were defeated by a voice vote. The proposal of Representative Vito Marcantonio [Rep., N. Y.] to make impossible the removal from relief and works progress rolls of veterans receiving a cash bonus was ruled out of order by the chair.

Rough shod tactics were adopted to speed the measure to a final vote. Many members left the chamber as the hands of the clock neared 5 p. m. with the understanding that an adjournment at that hour would be taken until tomorrow. The leaders, however, pushed the bill to the amendatory stage and only the insistence upon a quorum call by Republicans brought a majority back to hear the final action.

In their speeches, the congressmen frequently referred boastfully to the admitted fact that both house and senate were ready to pass the bill over a veto by President Roosevelt if he should take such action. A number expressed the hope that the President would see the light and approve the measure, thus avoiding a congressional rebuff.

Harmony Is Unusual.

Seldom has the house been in such harmony on a national measure. Many members paid verbal homage to the officials of veterans' organizations sitting in the galleries and representative William P. Connery [Dem., Mass.] introduced a new note by introducing Commander James E. Van Zandt of the Veterans of Foreign Wars to the cheers of the congressmen. Commander Van Zandt bowed graciously to the representatives below.

Almost all the oratory was "for the sake of the record." The members listened in boredom as one after another arose to make impassioned appeals for passage of the measure for which a stupendous majority was already conceded.

Representative Malcolm C. Tarver [Dem., Ga.], was one of the few Democrats to follow Sumners' example and he also spoke of the subject uppermost in the minds of all the statesmen but scrupulously avoided by most—the fact that opposition to the bonus in an election year meant political suicide.

Points to Mounting Debt.

"It would be good politics to support this bill, but where's the money coming from?" Tarver asked. "The national debt is growing by leaps and bounds. As an individual, I know that if I kept spending beyond my revenue, sooner or later the sherif would be knocking at my door. A nation must expect the same."

The session ended on a general note of satisfaction with Democrats lauding Republicans for their coöperation and Republicans praising Democrats for their unselfish motives.

6 U. S. JUSTICES AT WHITE HOUSE FOR RECEPTION

Roosevelt Halts Hunt for Farm Solution.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—Special.]—President Roosevelt tonight temporarily halted his feverish search for a substitute farm subsidy program and held a reception in the White House for the Supreme court which outlawed the AAA last Monday.

Six justices attended the reception, an annual function since the early days of the republic. Four of these—Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Roberts, Vandevanter, and Sutherland—voted against the administration, and the other two, Justices Stone and Cardoza, cast their votes for the administration's program.

Slight illness kept Justices Butler and McReynolds at their homes. Justice Brandeis, who also voted for the AAA program, said he would not attend, as he consistently has avoided formal social affairs in recent years.

Confers on Farm Plan.

The President devoted the afternoon to a conference on the problem the adverse decision has thrust upon him. With him met Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Attorney General Cummings, Treasury Attorney Oliphant, AAA Administrator Davis, RFC Chairman Jones and Acting Budget Director Bell. The conference continued for more than two hours.

At its conclusion Wallace said the only thing that was certain "is continuation of the series of conferences." The others, with the exception of Administrator Davis, refused to discuss their meeting with the President.

"We are studying this thing from all angles; trying to think fast and act deliberately," Davis said. "That no plan can be determined until after the farm groups meet tomorrow is certain. We will consider with the farm groups every possible alternative.

Jones Questioned on Loans.

"I look for legislation to be presented within the next two weeks for appropriations to carry out crop benefit obligations incurred in 1935."

It was revealed that Chairman Jones was summoned to the conference to give his opinion as to whether or not RFC loans made to agriculture could be continued as a result of the court's decision. No decision was reached on this question, it was said.

United States Solicitor Stanley Reed, who presented the administration's case on the AAA to the Supreme court, declined to discuss the substitute plans under consideration.

During the day the Commodity Credit corporation announced it would continue making loans on cotton, corn, and other commodities until a complete study of the decision is made. Outstanding commodity loans of the corporation total 300 million dollars.

Peek Offers Program.

The first suggestions for consideration of tomorrow's farm gathering came from a late member of the administration who attacked its trade policies.

Their author was George N. Peek, associate of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, who was forced out of the AAA by No. 1 Brain Truster Tugwell and more recently from the Export-Import bank when he clashed with President Roosevelt on the Canadian trade treaty negotiations.

Peek said that to meet the immediate situation congress should appropriate funds to make good existing contracts, farmers should be given the full benefit of the domestic market and the administration should adopt a common sense trading policy designed to dispose of surpluses in foreign markets.

GRANGE HEAD OPPOSES CONSTITUTION CHANGE FOR MAKING AAA VALID

Topeka, Kas., Jan. 9.—(AP)—L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, voiced vigorous opposition today to a constitutional amendment for validating the outlawed AAA.

At the same time he insisted a new farm program should include payment of AAA contracts in force at the time the Supreme court ruled the act unconstitutional.

The farm organization leader, who will attend a Washington conference called by Secretary Wallace to map a new farm program, said an amendment is "not desirable" and not required.

Addressing a meeting of the Kansas board of agriculture, Taber said it was "unthinkable" for the government not to pay AAA contract signers.

Court Puts $70,000 Tax Judgment on Oliver Ellis

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday issued a default judgment of $70,604 against Oliver J. Ellis, former Chicago Heights slot machine czar, who is now in Leavenworth penitentiary, to cover his income tax liabilities for 1926, 1927, and 1928. A year ago Ellis pleaded guilty to charges of violating the income tax laws and was sentenced to a year and a day in the federal penitentiary. He was subject to release several weeks ago, but elected to forgo his good time allowance in order to complete a cure at the prison.

BRITISH EXPERT BLASTS MYTH OF DRAKE FORTUNE

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

In a final effort to kill forever the myth of "the Drake estate," which has cost credulous American citizens millions of dollars, the government yesterday, at a cost of $8,000, put on an expert in British law and court history. This witness, Charles Challen, London barrister, entered explicit and formal denials to every one of the so-called claims of the Drake estate swindlers to an English fortune.

With this testimony the Drake estate mail fraud case, which has been on trial before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan and a jury since Nov. 18, reached the end of its first stage. The government rested its case during the afternoon and at the same time moved the dismissal of two of the forty-one defendants, Claire Hartzell, wife of Canfield Hartzell of New York, and Henry Zeitner, a justice of the peace from Tripp, S. D.

Move for Acquittal Today.

At the opening of court this morning a motion for a directed verdict of not guilty will be made by Attorneys Edward Hess and George Crane for the remaining thirty-nine defendants. The jury has been dismissed until Monday to permit the argument and disposition of these motions.

With the strength of the government case fully disclosed it was felt in the courtroom that a few, but not many, of the defendants would escape by this route. The issue in the case is that of intent to defraud. The circumstances in evidence against each defendant will be called up separately when the motion for acquittal is made. The defendants remaining in the trial are expected to go on the witness stand in the effort to prove their innocence of such intent to the jury.

Nails Down Hartzell's Story.

The government has spent about $75,000 to date to stop the further collections of Drake estate "donations" from the gullible farmers of the middle west. Each one of the claims, which may be called lies, of Oscar Hartzell, the chief defendant and promoter, was nailed down hard yesterday in the testimony of Mr. Challen.

This barrister from Gray's court, London, a holder of degrees from Cambridge, was retained by the government last Sept. 3 to investigate the legal phases of the Hartzell claims. He has been working at it ever since at $50 a day plus expenses. He detailed each method in law by which a claimant to any of the estate left by Sir Francis Drake might start action. No such action had ever been started in England, he testified.

Blasts Hope of Heirs.

There is no record in any court or department of any fund to be distributed to Hartzell or any other Drake claimants. The only thing bearing on the case, he said, was the case of Drake and Drake in 1887, in which a rental fund of 59 pounds 9 pence [approximately $295] was held in the pay office of the English crown. There was left no loophole for a claim by his testimony, through any will probated or unprobated, or through any petition to the crown outside the courts.

Prof. Arthur Lyon Cross of the University of Michigan, eminent scholar of the Elizabethan period of history, who testified for the government on Wednesday that there was no record in history of any child of Sir Francis Drake, was cross-examined at the opening of yesterday's session by Defense Attorney Hess.

Quizzed on Drake Family.

He was questioned concerning litigation that had arisen between Jonas Bodenheim, who was given a manor in the Drake will, and Thomas Drake, a brother of Sir Francis, who succeeded to most of the property. The suggestion was left here that the defense would raise some sort of a doubt regarding possible claims of Bodenheim's descendants.

Mr. Challen was qualified by the prosecutor, Assistant United States Attorney Austin Hall, as an expert on law issues in any Drake estate matters. He said he had observed the original Drake will in the vaults of Somerset house, London, and that a correct copy had been introduced in this trial. The will, he said, is still in force.

"If Sir Francis Drake had left a child could the descendants of that person have any right to the property disposed of in this will?" asked Hall.

No Chance for Suit.

Mr. Challen then explained that under the statute of limitations any claims as to personal property must be filed within six years, and that claims on real property are void after 12 years. There are qualifications as to concealed fraud in the matter of real property.

Q.—Today could any person in England maintain an action to recover any property from the Drake estate under that provision? A.—No, it would be quite impossible. After 300 years it would be thrown out as frivolous and vexatious.

Prosecutor Hall read from exhibits in the case, from letters signed by Oscar M. Hartzell, in which the defendant stated that in 1922, when he first began to live off Drake victims' money, he had brought the Drake genealogy up to date and that the "highest powers" had passed on his claims and had made full arrangements with the heir. The witness said that he had visited the College of Arms and Heralds in London on this matter.

No Hope from King.

The prosecutor read further from the evidence showing that Hartzell had told his followers that a settlement was due in a month [that was in 1923], that an order had been issued in which it was stated that the money "would be handed on to said Hartzell with as much speed as is convenient to his majesty."

Q.—Can the king or his representative make any order disposing of property? A.—No. The king cannot. The executive has no such power. England is governed constitutionally. The treasury could not pay out such money without parliamentary authority. It would have to be debated.

Q.—Was there any such action taken by parliament to pay such moneys to Hartzell? A.—No.

Nails "Ecclesiastical" Story.

Referring to further statements by Hartzell to his dupes that his claims were allowed by the "ecclesiastical courts," the witness said that these courts had no jurisdiction in property disputes.

If there were records of any proceedings in behalf of Hartzell or a Drake heir in the proper English courts, the witness said, the records would be in the home office.

Further, Mr. Challen explained that he had searched the Supreme court pay office and had found no record of any Drake fund. He said that a person who had taken money by robbery could not recover money from another person who had assisted in that robbery. This might dispose of any possible heirs of Jonas Bodenheim, in addition to the bar of statute of limitations.

Cross-examination Brief.

Attorney Hess cross-examined briefly. His main point was that there were remedies outside the courts in the English law by a petition to the king. The witness admitted this, although he said that the statute of limitation would apply here, too, in real property. He said that a government department can pay a claim if it is thought just, even though the claim has expired under the law. In this respect the government is like an individual.

"The king is outside action at law," he said, "but if anybody seeks redress a claim may be brought by petition of right. It would be filed in the home office. The attorney general would decide whether it was worthy of submission to the courts."

On redirect examination Mr. Challen said that no such petition had been filed in the home office in the Drake matter, and that in any event no such claim as that talked of by Hartzell could be paid by taking property away from British citizens unless they had their day in court.

The actors have been drilled in their parts by Miss Charlotte Wolff. Song and dance acts, short skits and chorus numbers are on the program. B. Rimskie, president of the benefit association, will preside at the dinner.

CHRIS PASCHEN FINISHES 2 YEAR TERM IN PRISON

Christian P. Paschen, former city building commissioner, yesterday completed a two year sentence for income tax evasion in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas., but was still held in prison for failure to pay a $20,000 fine and $1,500 in court costs.

United States District Attorney Michael L. Igoe advised United States Commissioner J. K. Codding of Kansas that an investigation shows Paschen to be insolvent. Mr. Igoe recommended that Paschen be permitted to take a pauper's oath. This step would gain his freedom in 30 days.

Paschen was sentenced in July, 1932, for failure to pay $43,000 in income tax for 1926. He appealed, but the sentence was affirmed and he was committed to prison in June, 1934.

Murray Humphreys, former Capone lieutenant who was released from Leavenworth on Wednesday after serving 18 months for income tax evasion, failed to appear before Probation Officer Walter K. Urich in Chicago yesterday as scheduled. He will probably appear today, Urich said.

SLAYER BANDIT SHOT TO DEATH DRAWING 2 GUNS

Wife Says He's Detroit Radio Killer.

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Robert J. Moore, alias James Lyons, alleged killer and bank robber, died in Epworth hospital here this afternoon a few hours after he was shot down by deputy sherifs. He had reached for his guns when they surprised him in a filling station west of the city.

Officers said they traced him to a tourist camp adjoining the station through information obtained from his wife, Mary Moore, who is now serving a prison sentence at Shakopee, Minn., for bank robbery.

Mrs. Moore also told St. Paul authorities that her husband confessed to her he killed Jerry Buckley, Detroit radio commentator, at Detroit in 1930, and fatally shot Peter Karaba, a storekeeper, in a robbery at Moquah, Wis., in 1931.

Fire as He Draws.

Five deputies who found Moore in a tourist camp cabin said they fired when he attempted to draw two guns. They found a rifle and 200 rounds of ammunition in an automobile which police said was identified as a car stolen at Welcome, Minn. The deputies also found tools used by bank robbers, a deputy sherif's badge, and boxes of roofing nails, apparently used to retard pursuit.

The automobile Moore had been using was equipped so that the rear window might be opened for firing at pursuers. Among his effects were newspaper clippings describing a bank robbery on Dec. 19 at Twin Lakes, Minn., for which his wife is now serving 5 to 40 years, and clippings on a robbery at Hunter, N. D., in 1932, for which he was being sought by the South Bend deputies.

At the hospital, where he was taken suffering from bullet wounds in the abdomen, Moore requested that his mother, Mrs. A. H. Buhler of Mackinaw, Mich., be notified. After Sherif Roy Wolfe left the hospital to telegraph her, Moore asked that the sherif be called "and I will clear up 10 to 12 bank robberies for him," He died, however, before Wolfe returned.

Says He'd "Better Die."

"What's the difference," Moore told hospital attachés when he knew he was dying, "I had better die. If I live I will get a long stretch in prison."

Moore's reported confession of the two killings to his wife was revealed in St. Paul by Superintendent Melvin C. Passolt of the Minnesota crime bureau. She told of them in a signed statement made at the time of her arrest for complicity in the robbery of the Twin Lakes, Minn., bank.

Mrs. Moore said she met her husband when he worked in a restaurant at Farmington, Minn., and married him at Wakefield, Mich., June 18, 1931. She asserted that he was a fugitive from justice then, although she didn't know it, for he later told her he was wanted in Detroit for the murder of the radio commentator.

Leaves Her Second Day.

She said the next day after their marriage her husband left their room in a Wakefield hotel and told her he was going to Ashland. He returned a day later and they started for Menominee, Mich. The following Sunday, when they were in Rhinelander, Wis., she read in a newspaper an account of the slaying of the Moquah, Wis., storekeeper on the day her husband supposedly was in Ashland.

"On the trip from Rhinelander to Minneapolis," Mrs. Moore said, "I asked him about the Moquah killing and he said he drove up to the place for gasoline, then asked the man for cigarets and followed him into the store where he held him up.

"The man was facing the wall when Moore shot him in the back of the head, killing him. I recall that at Wakefield my husband was practically broke."

MAYOR M'NAIR HAS HIS OWN TROUBLES, BUT SKIPS BRIDGES

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Mayor William M. McNair today personally handled the case of Marie Mayer, 21.

"I have lots of troubles, too," the mayor told her in fatherly tones, "but I don't go around jumping off bridges. Every one thinks his own troubles are the worst."

He dismissed the charge of disorderly conduct and told Miss Mayer, a housemaid, to let him know later how she gets along. Then he called a police car and sent her home.

SUES ATTORNEY AND POLICE FOR $50,000 DAMAGES

A suit for $50,000 was filed yesterday by Mrs. Elsbeth P. Sheffield of Quitman, Ga., who charged a conspiracy to hold her up to public disgrace as the result of her arrest in Oak Park on Oct. 5, 1934, on charges of disturbing the peace and disorderly conduct.

The bill, filed in federal court by the law firm of Cassels, Potter and Bently because of diversity of citizenship, named as defendants, Attorney Robert E. Cantwell Jr., Justice of the Peace Louis Gibson, Oak Park; Albert Grotte, James W. McFeeley, and Robert Bickel, Oak Park policemen, and Mrs. Clara Pannkoke, 170 North Harvey avenue, Oak Park, who is Mrs. Sheffield's sister-in-law. Cantwell acted as attorney for Mrs. Pannkoke in litigation with her former husband, Dr. Otto H. Pannkoke, over custody of their son.

Mrs. Sheffield's petition alleges that she was arrested and placed in jail in the suburb. She was found guilty by Justice Gibson and was fined $25. Taking an appeal to the Criminal court, she was found not guilty by Judge Denis E. Sullivan on May 20, 1935, and the charges were dismissed.

BOMBINGS USHER IN CUBAN VOTING; TROOPS ON GUARD

Mariano Gomez Favorite for Presidency.

BULLETIN.

HAVANA, Jan. 10 [Friday].—(AP)—A series of bomb explosions ushered in Cuba's national elections today, wounding at least eight persons as the island republic's 2,000,000 voters chose a president and all other officers for a constitutional government. Six bombs exploded in the hours just before the polls opened at Santiago, where the eight persons were injured seriously. All police, soldiers, sailors, and firemen throughout the island went on "continuous duty."

HAVANA, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Two thousand soldiers, scattered throughout Cuba, were ready tonight to preserve order in the election tomorrow of the republic's first constitutional president in 2½ years.

Miguel Mariano Gomez, twice mayor of Havana, was expected by informed observers to defeat Gen. Mario G. Menocal, twice president of Cuba. A third candidate, Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, former provisional president, made no campaign and it was thought he would not poll many votes.

Higher Court Won't Interfere.

Since former President Gerardo Machado fled from the island in August, 1933, Cuba has had only provisional presidents.

The possibility that the election might be postponed was eliminated when the Supreme court refused today to interfere, as was requested by a petition from "25 or more citizens."

The petition questioned the constitutionality of the electoral law and of the formula for political peace drawn up by Dr. Harold W. Dodds, president of Princeton university.

Defers Decision.

The court decided it would consider the constitutionality of the two laws at some date after the elections.

Maj. Gen. A. H. Blanding to Head Guard Bureau

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today appointed Maj. Gen. Albert H. Blanding of St. Augustine, Fla., as chief of the war department's National Guard bureau. He succeeds Maj. Gen. George E. Leach, whose four year term recently expired.

DR. WEISS WAS NOT HUEY LONG'S SLAYER, HIS FATHER CHARGES

Baton Rouge, La., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Dr. C. A. Weiss today made public a letter he wrote Gov. O. K. Allen asserting that Senator Huey P. Long was not killed by the former's son, Dr. Carl Weiss, but "in all probability" by one of the late senator's bodyguards.

Dr. Weiss, who has kept silent since Long was shot in a corridor of the Louisiana statehouse last Sept. 8, made public his letter denouncing what he said was an attempt by the governor and the latter's political associates to link the son with a conspiracy.

"You know as well as every thinking man and woman that these charges are without any foundation," Dr. Weiss told the governor, "and are but political lies and propaganda uttered for political purposes and to add suffering to the family and friends of the dead."

Dr. Weiss, who said Gov. Allen had ignored his letter, wrote the chief executive that the latter "well knew" that Long was shot "as a result of a personal difficulty and that in all probability was not shot by my son, but by one of his own bodyguards."

The doctor said there was no doubt but that his son had been "ruthlessly assassinated by hirelings of the state bureau of identification after being overpowered and disarmed by them."

Seize 20 Gaming Machines in Police Raids in Suburbs

Fourteen taverns, poolrooms, and restaurants in Melrose Park and Elmwood Park were raided by the Morton Grove county highway police yesterday and twenty slot machines and pin games were confiscated. No arrests were made but proprietors of the stores were warned not to instal other machines.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

"Candy" for Horses.

January 9, 1936.

EVERY horse running in the pasture at the Tribune experimental farm near Wheaton has a "sweet tooth," according to the men at the farm. Stalks of atlas sorgo are just like so many sticks of candy to these horses. For the last three weeks work horses and colts at the farm have been given a daily treat of atlas sorgo, a crop of the sorghum family grown in the test plots at the Wheaton farm last summer.

The atlas sorgo stalks are thrown out sparingly with corn stover each day. The roughage is scattered in the pasture and workers have noticed that the animals will pick out the cane stalks first, leaving the corn stalks until last. The horses not only relish the grain that grows in big bunches at the tip of the atlas sorgo plants but they eat the blades and chew every piece of stalk they can find.

While only a few short rows of the atlas sorgo were grown at the Wheaton farm last summer, they yielded several hundred pounds of roughage. Some of the stalks were stripped of their blades before the frosts came last fall and were saved to be tested for sorghum. Recently some of these canes were taken to Washington, Ill., where they were crushed, the juice squeezed out and made into delicious sorghum by William Hess, an expert molasses maker.

Atlas sorgo has been successfully raised on the Tribune farms during the last two years. During 1934, the year of the severe drouth, a good tonnage of this crop was produced in test plots at the Yorkville farm. It made an excellent showing again this last summer under entirely different moisture conditions; there was plenty of rain throughout the growing season.

The Tribune farms brought the seeds here from Kansas where atlas sorgo has been successfully grown for several years. The crop is expected to be more widely grown in Illinois and other states because it yields a big tonnage of feed that can be used as it comes cured from the field or cut and blown into a silo. The plants make good silage. Growers are fairly sure of a crop even in dry years.

Atlas sorgo has been grown in this part of the country as far north as southern Wisconsin, where it has yielded a fair tonnage of silage material.

Several hundred pounds of Sudan grass were produced at the Wheaton farm last summer. The crop was left in the plots for exhibition purposes until late and then cut and cured for hay. The plants grew to a height of 6 to 8 feet, demonstrating that a big tonnage can be produced in this part of the country. Although some of the stalks were coarse, it was found live stock like them. The small batch grown last summer was fed to horses at the farm recently. They ate all of the plant excepting the coarsest stems. Where the crop is not held for exhibition purposes it can be cut and cured into hay before the stalks become coarse and then live stock will eat practically every part of the plant.

Feeding tests made at the farm with the Sudan grass indicate that horses prefer it to corn stover. The Sudan grass was fed in the pasture where it was scattered with corn stover.

After the Sudan grass was harvested a second growth sprung up around each one of the old plants. This second growth also produced a fair amount of good roughage.

FINDS 'RELIGION' OF NATIONALISM PERILS SCIENCE

Prof. Ogburn Warns Universities.

Prof. William F. Ogburn, sociologist of the University of Chicago, ventured a business forecast last night for the high education industry, not for the next year, but for the next half century. Speaking at the annual dinner of the university faculty in the Shoreland hotel, he promised his fellow pedagogs an expanding market for their product. At the same time he warned them to gird themselves against attempts of the new "religion" of nationalism to impose the teaching of propaganda in place of knowledge.

C. B. RANDALL.

Harold H. Swift, president of the university board of trustees, presided at the dinner. He announced the election of Clarence B. Randall, vice president of the Inland Steel company, to the board of trustees.

Predicts Gain in Enrollments.

By 1970, Prof. Ogburn predicted, the United States will have reached a maximum population of about 155,000,000, which may decrease thereafter. While this will mean an ultimate decrease in the elementary school population, the increasing percentage of high school attendance, which rose from 40 per cent of eligible pupils in the middle 1920's to more than 60 per cent at present, indicates an increase in potential college students, he said.

"Whether we like it or not," predicted Dr. Ogburn, a closer union between government and business is being forced everywhere, in both democratic and autocratic countries, by advances in technology and communications.

"I pass over the burning question as to who is to control this union, merely noting that the university is likely to suffer," he said.

The New Religion—Nationalism.

"With this union will come a social philosophy of an emotional nature, a nationalism that is more than economic self-sufficiency and that is like a religion. This new religion of nationalism already has its supreme being, the totalitarian state, made familiar by the Fascists; its sacred literature, in Russia the writings of Karl Marx.

"The decline of the family and church means pressure to transfer some of the responsibility for personality to the schools. The college thus becomes a fertile field for the religion of nationalism. I see little freedom for social science.

"The social science that is in conflict with the religion of nationalism will be forbidden as truly as in an earlier age the science which declared that the earth was round was interdicted by religion.

Victory May Take Centuries.

"Science will ultimately win, but it may require centuries. One comforting thought is that universities have been more enduring than kingdoms and nations. May the world continue to view them as citadels of freedom."

The new university trustee, Mr. Randall, is president of the Winnetka board of education and of the Harvard club of Chicago. He is 44 years old, a lawyer, and a world war veteran, and has been associated with the Inland Steel company since 1925.

NO ALKALIES FOR ACID INDIGESTION

MILLIONS have found they do not need to drench their stomachs with strong, caustic alkalies. Physicians have said this habit often brings further acid indigestion. So much more safe and sensible to simply carry a roll of Tums in your pocket. Munch 3 or 4 after meals—or whenever troubled by heartburn, gas, sour stomach. Try them when you feel the effects of last night's party, or when you smoke too much. Tums contain a wonderful antacid which neutralizes acid in the stomach, but never over-alkalizes stomach or blood. As pleasant to eat as candy and only 10c at any drug store.

URGES NATIONAL FINGER PRINTING TO BALK CRIME

National finger printing as a means of keeping criminals under surveillance, combating communism, and protecting honest citizens was advocated by William A. Rogers, former chief of the bureau of identification of Clinton prison, Dannemora, N. Y., in a luncheon talk yesterday before the Kiwanis club in the Hotel Sherman. Rogers is now head of the Juvenile Police Schools of America.

"There are 120,000 killers—more murderers than we have clergymen—on the streets today, being sought by the police," Rogers said. "We need a national method of learning their identities. That can best be done by their finger prints, which never change from the cradle to the grave.

"The greatest blessing of this nation would be to have a finger print registration of every citizen. It would be of inestimable benefit in case of accident or amnesia and there could be no hospital mixups of babies if that were done."

11 Go on Trial in Poland for Red Plot to Annex Vilna

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VILNA, Poland, Jan. 9.—Charged with plotting a revolt in Polish white Russia in order to annex this district and Vilna to soviet white Russia, three assistant professors and eight students of Vilna university faced a district court today. The trial is expected to last a week.

RAPIST GETS 13 YEARS; MOTHER OF GIRL JAILED

Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle of the Criminal court yesterday sentenced George Casford, 32 years old, to 13 years in the penitentiary on a charge of rape. Mrs. Zara Wilson, 38 years old, was sentenced to a year in the Bridewell and fined $100.

Testimony disclosed that Casford was living with Mrs. Wilson at her home in Glen Ayer, near Glenview, and that she permitted him to misconduct himself with her 14 year old daughter. She was charged with contributing to the delinquency of the girl.

'BUCK PASSING' ON MINNEAPOLIS LICENSES TRIED

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The game of "buck passing" which the Minneapolis city council committee on health and hospitals apparently tried to start yesterday with David R. Arundel, state liquor control commissioner, when it voted to send 85 liquor licenses to him for investigation before the council had acted on renewals, today found Arundel noncommittal.

Action of the committee was based upon the grand jury warning last Saturday that racketeers virtually controled the liquor trafic in this city.

Under the state liquor control law approval by the commissioner follows that of the city council. Departure from this rule, council members said today, was intended to expedite investigation and approval or rejection of renewal applications.

Arundel said that he had not been officially informed of the committee's action and consequently "can't make any statement."

Other officials said there was nothing to prevent Arundel's office from making the investigations, then postponing approval until action had been taken by the council.

AUTO COUNTING PROVES BOON TO SUPERDOGGLERS

The collective identity of the 250 strangers who have been taking notes at street intersections on the city's boulevards has been established.

These note takers are employés of the Works Progress administration who have been given the task of counting automobiles that whiz by on the boulevards. According to Otto Jelinek, trafic engineer of the Chicago park district, they get $55 a month each for this mathematical job.

"They are making a survey on all the boulevards under control of the district," said Mr. Jelinek. "When they are through we will have data that should be useful in determining what trafic regulations could be used to cut down accidents."

Physician Becomes Curious.

A physician residing on Washington boulevard near Central avenue discovered a detachment of counters standing in the lobby of his apartment building yesterday morning. When he asked what they were doing he was informed they were counting automobiles.

"You can't count 'em very well from here," said the medical man.

"There's plenty outside to do it," said the spokesman for the mathematicians. "We're staying on out of the cold for a while."

The doctor investigated and discovered this was true. In the four blocks west of Central avenue were 46 of the checkers, all under the direction of supervisors who sat in automobiles. The counting was proceeding slowly, as most of the checkers had their hands in their pockets, according to the doctor.

Extras for Any Contingency.

Mr. Jelinek explained that sometimes as many as eight men are assigned to one intersection, with one man counting passenger cars, a second taxicabs, a third buses, and a fourth trucks, one man for each of the intersecting streets. Then there are also "relief men" present to take the places of the active counters if any personal contingency arises, he said.

"Naturally, we understand that the idea is to put as many men to work as possible," Mr. Jelinek said. "Although the men should not have entered a private building, they might have been driven in by the weather."

Mr. Jelinek was told that a "checker" reported that he and a score of other WPA workers were excused from duty three days in a row in front of the Field museum because they could not be equipped with "tallies," or counting devices.

On the fourth day a foreman instructed them to count the cars on Leif Eriksen drive as best they could, but later returned and took them to a 10 cent burlesque show.

600 STATEVILLE CONVICTS BUSY BOONDOGGLING

Six hundred convicts in the penitentiary at Stateville took up boondoggling yesterday when Warden Joseph Ragen assigned to them the task of covering muddy spots in the prison yard with crushed rock carried in gallon pails.

It is estimated that the work will require several months. There are sixty-four acres in the yard. The stone is carried to Stateville by truck from the quarry at the old Joliet prison.

"We could do the job in a few days with wheelbarrows and trucks, but the men need exercise and work," Ragen said.

Hurls Cuspidor

Louis Herzfeld, 59 years old, clerk in the court of Municipal Judge Joseph B. Hermes, was seriously injured yesterday when he was struck on the head with a brass cuspidor in a mélée in the courtroom. Abraham Krieger, 70 years old, wielder of the cuspidor, was charged with assault with intent to kill in a warant issued by Judge Hermes.

The fight occurred during a court recess. Krieger, who owns a second hand shop at 1369 Lake street, had been arraigned on a charge of receiving stolen property, made by James Karageorge, 540 South Homan avenue. The case was continued to Jan. 16 over the protest of Harold Marowitz, Krieger's attorney.

"If you were a good lawyer you could win this case," Marowitz is reported to have said to Louis H. Dembo, Karageorge's attorney, "but you're not."

"At least I'm not crack brained," Dembo retorted. Marowitz and Dembo then struck each other, and Krieger, swinging the cuspidor at Karageorge, missed and hit Herzfeld instead. Herzfeld, who lives at 3743 West 15th street, suffered a fractured skull and was taken to Mount Sinai hospital. Judge Hermes cited the lawyers for contempt hearings. Krieger will appear on the assault charge today.

200 AT U. OF C. PLAN CHAPTER OF 'STUDENT UNION'

Two hundred students of the University of Chicago met yesterday in the Harper library assembly room on the campus to start a chapter of the American Student union. Alvin Pitcher, a divinity student, was elected president of the group, which will ask the university for a charter.

At the annual convention of the national organization at Columbus, O., on Dec. 29 a resolution endorsing the "Oxford pledge" was adopted, 244 to 49, after a heated debate. [The pledge takers refuse to support the United States in any war it might conduct.] The organization also demanded abolition of the R. O. T. C. Members of the union who opposed these steps declared they brand the organization as radical.

Waukegan Township Cuts 1935 Tax Levy to $150,000

Supervisor Harry Pillifant of Waukegan township announced yesterday that the 1935 tax levy for the township, which includes the city of Waukegan and part of North Chicago, has been reduced from $215,000 to $150,000. This will reseult in a decrease in the tax rates of 31 cents for each $100 of assessed valuation of property. Pillifant said that $65,000 appropriated for poor relief had been cut from the levy because the county has now taken over relief administration.

ACTS TO CLEAR RELIEF ROLLS OF WPA ELIGIBLES

Many Aren't Showing Up for Jobs, Lyons Finds.

Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, yesterday announced a survey intended to remove from the relief rolls all family heads eligible for Works Progress administration jobs who have not reported for work and who cannot supply sufficient reason.

"We intend to purge the rolls to make sure that no persons for whom WPA jobs are available can continue to receive relief," Mr. Lyons said. "A state-wide survey will be made to determine whether all eligible employables have been certified for WPA employment, and to remove all those who have failed to report for work without good cause."

A Difference of 30,000 Men.

There is a difference of 30,000 between WPA assignments and those on the job. Ralph H. Burke, deputy administrator of WPA, said that undoubtedly a number of men given assignments have obtained private employment, and that many are ill and cannot report for duty.

Robert J. Dunham, state administrator of WPA, said last night that there has been an "absence of mutuality" in efforts to get relief clients onto WPA projects. Case workers on the IERC, seeing the diminishing "market" for their services, may not always have applied their best efforts to speed up the transfers, he said.

Three relief stations in Cook county, the Elmwood Park, Northwest, and Stockyards stations, have already been closed due to WPA employment, Mr. Lyons said, and five more are to be closed by the end of February. He added that 980 IERC staf employés were dismissed during December, the largest number ever to be discharged in a single month.

Meanwhile, at Washington, Harry L. Hopkins, federal works progress and relief administrator, defended the WPA wages paid in Illinois as being adequate. The IERC estimates, however, that $322,000 will be required in January to give supplementary relief to 32,000 WPA families who find their "security" wages inadequate.

Hopkins declared that the fact that Gov. Horner had finally called a special session of the legislature to raise additional relief funds showed that Illinois could provide the money.

THREE ESCAPE UNHURT WHEN ARMY BOMBER PLUNGES 2,000 FEET

Mineola, N. Y., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—An army bombing plane carrying a crew of three crashed today near the Mineola railroad station when the motor stalled. The occupants crawled unhurt from the wreckage. The plane was smashed beyond repair.

The plane was engaged in a bombing practice flight. Maj. E. J. Carpenter, pilot; Capt. D. T. Craw, nationally known polo player, and Staf Sergeant E. A. Sell were up about 2,000 feet when the plane got into trouble.

Several thousand persons saw the plane fall swiftly. It dipped toward Mineola High school. Dr. M. I. Robins, who lives opposite, said the plane skimmed the schoolhouse roof by twelve feet. Nearly all of the 1,000 pupils ran to windows.

The plane snapped high tension wires of the Long Island railroad amid a shower of sparks that threatened to ignite it and then nose dived into the high grass and soft dirt of an open field.

The bomber overturned and broke in half. The engines were flung clear of the wreckage.

Three Killed in Crash.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 9.—(AP)—A pleasure flight ended in the death of three persons today in the crash of a cabin monoplane near the municipal airport. The dead were Earl Beauvais, 32, a private pilot and owner of the plane; his wife, Olivia, 30, and a friend, Charles W. Scott, 25, all of St. Louis.

SANITARY BOARD TO CUT BUDGET BY 22 MILLION

Sharp Reduction Made in Operating Costs.

Operating expenses of the sanitary district for 1936, as reflected by its corporate fund appropriations, will be only $5,497,297, as against appropriations of $6,717,063 last year, it was announced yesterday by Ross A. Woodhull, president of the sanitary board.

He released the tentative budget for 1936, which he predicted will be passed without major changes by the trustees at their meeting Thursday. The 1936 appropriations for all purposes total $71,225,637, a reduction of $22,610,756. In addition to operating expenses these appropriations cover the district's sewage disposal construction project, financed by federal loans and PWA grants, bond redemption and interest charges, and pension costs.

Refunding Brings Saving.

The refunding of the district's outstanding bond issues during 1935 resulted in a reduction of tax levies for corporate and bond and interest purposes from $19,527,000 for 1935 to $16,199,148, Mr. Woodhull said. These levies will probably be revised downward before they are extended.

Under the refunding plan approximately 97 per cent of the outstanding serial 20 year bonds were exchanged for new bonds which are callable only as tax collections are received. All of the bonds which were in default, as well as the interest on defaulted bonds up to Dec. 16, 1935, have been paid.

New Plant Nearly Ready.

Operating appropriations for the present year have been reduced by more than a million dollars despite the fact that the district has finished its Calumet sewage treatment plant, and will put it in operation this year. Operating costs of this plant will be approximately $500,000. The reduction in the total of corporate appropriations was due to savings in the general and fixed charges account.

At the board meeting yesterday bids were opened on equipment for the southwest sewage treatment plant in Stickney, cost of which was estimated by district engineers at $318,000. The bids were sent to Chief Engineer William H. Trinkhaus for tabulation. Previous bids on the project were rejected by the board.

SCHOOL BUDGET APPROVED

The city council yesterday approved the board of education's 1936 budget of $70,852,633 and tax levy ordinance of $68,877,269. It further approved the board's ordinance authorizing the issuance of 1936 tax anticipation warants not to exceed 75 per cent of the levy and at an interest rate of not more than 6 per cent.

The council meeting was attended by Frank S. Righeimer, counsel for the school board, who said steps would be taken at once to sell corporate fund tax warants in order to meet the teachers' pay roll for the first half of January.

Attorney Righeimer said that although the statutes permit the school board to issue warants up to 75 per cent of tax levies, the board probably will not issue an amount greater than about 55 per cent.

Michigan Liquor Monopoly Sales Gain by 8 Million

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The state liquor control commission made gross sales of $22,975,040 during 1935, according to figures revealed today, a gain of $8,131,363 over 1934.

The common sense thing to do . . . .
use a daily aid to build good general resistance

People used to wait until common winter ills bothered them, and then look for a means of getting over them. Many today, however, take a more sensible view.

They figure that a little effort spent on advance precautions against winter ills may save much discomfort later. They use certain measures, while they are well, to help them remain in good health.

It's been found that winter ills attack more people in mid-winter than any other time. One reason is because the general resistance of many people is lowest during January and February.

Too much indoor living, too little fresh air and exercise deplete their physical forces. They are more susceptible to winter ills; so they use a daily aid in building general resistance—Adex.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY · BAKERS OF THE FAMOUS RITZ CRACKERS

I'll Never Tell

By Roy Vickers

SYNOPSIS.

Julius Saranack is murdered in his home, Hillfoot, in Callingham, England. Eight uncut diamonds of no great value are missing. Two days previously Torrance Esdale, childhood sweetheart of Gerald Saranack, the murdered man's nephew, had appealed to her American boss, Hartlandt Massiter, to give Gerald an engineering job in Mexico. Gerald is expected back from Spain in two days. Massiter tells Torrance the job to be filled requires a married man. Though they had quarreled before he left, Torrance writes Gerald in care of his uncle, telling him of her plans for their marriage. Next morning Uncle Julius calls on Torrance with the news that Gerald has married an English girl in Spain. Torrance asks Massiter to give Gerald the job regardless. That evening she goes to Callingham to try to retrieve her letter before it reaches Gerald. She gains entrance to the house, which is apparently deserted, obtains the letter. Then she hears voices, hides, and watches as a girl comes in.

INSTALMENT V.

THE BRIDE OF MYSTERY.

From an expensive-looking bag the woman took some small tool. Then she bent over the fireplace. The fairylike fingers pried out a brick which must have been loosened beforehand. Whatever she had been counting now went into the cavity and the brick was replaced. Again the brick must have been treated, for it fitted flush.

There was more activity with the bag, then a scraping sound. And presently Torrance understood what was being done. The brick was being recemented into the surround of the fireplace.

The stranger bent and, with ringed hands, scraped some dust from the grate—patted it onto the new looking cement. Light as thistledown, she drifted back into the hall and gave a low whistle.

Torrance heard the front door being unbolted without any attempt at silence. Then the light of the hall was switched off—then the front door was shut on its latch. Torrance came out of her hiding place, cramped and absolutely at a loss.

"I didn't know Uncle Julius kept anything worth burgling! Besides—were they burglars? As far as I could see they weren't taking anything out of the house—they were hiding something in it!"

She owed it to Uncle Julius to take action. But that would mean explaining her own presence here, her own burglarious entry by the pantry window.

She couldn't explain it.

"It's not much good my rummaging about. Whatever they were doing, those people had no right to do it." She went to the telephone in the hall and called the local police.

"I have reason to believe," she said, "that a burglary has been committed at Hillfoot, Landkey road. Will you go 'round, please?"

"We'll come at once, miss. What's your name, please?"

"Thanks very much," said Torrance. "Goodbye!"

She was barely clear of the house when she heard a car drive up and thought how very quick the police had been.

But it was not the police—it was the servants returning from their holiday. The police did not come until ten minutes later. There was a certain amount of talk at cross-purposes before the police forced an entry to the house and found the dead body of Julius Saranack, strangled to death on the upper floor.

By eleven Torrance was back at her flat and burning her letter to Gerald in her own sitting room fire. During the whole of the previous night she had imagined herself doing that, and had thought that to see each line shrivel and char would be a separate agony. But it was not so. She could watch it burn without any feeling at all. . . . She could even, without any more than a sick loneliness, sit down and write another.

"Dear Gerald, Uncle Julius told me yesterday that you were married. He told me very little more than that she was an English girl you met in Spain. I needn't tell you that it's your happiness that matters most to me, of everything in the world.

"It's just possible I can give you a job for a wedding present. You won't mind taking it from me now, I hope. If you want it—and it's a quite exceptional one—will you ring me up? Because you'll have to go and see the boss at once. Ever so much love to you both.—Torrance."

She went out to post it herself. It would arrive at Callingham by the first post—probably before Gerald himself.

By the time she had got into bed she was exhausted. She had run the gamut of her emotions and could feel nothing but the need for sleep.

But the next morning, as she dressed, her emotional being was wide-awake. Thanks to Mr. Massiter and her own ability in reclaiming the letter, she had escaped humiliation. But the aching loss remained.

She would have to stay in all day, waiting for Gerald's call. And quite possibly he would say that he was bringing his wife to see her. She went and looked at herself in the glass.

"Good heavens, everyone'll ask me if I'm ill! I'll have to put on more make-up." A heavy make-up at breakfast was not according to her schedule, but this time it simply had to be done. She was just putting the finishing touches when her maid knocked at the bedroom door.

"Mr. Saranack's here, Miss Esdale."

"I'll come."

She was able to smile at him quite naturally when she came into the sitting-room.

"You're awfully early, Gerald. But, of course, I'm glad you came."

Her first thought was that he was ill. His young springy body looked limp, his blue eyes desperately bright, as though he had been drugged. He gave her the ghost of a smile. He looked anything on earth but a happy bridegroom and she thought of tales in which men were blackmailed into marriage. "You've heard, haven't you?" he asked, almost in a whisper.

"Yes, Gerald." And although she was desperately trying to feel nothing, to show nothing, her hands went out to him with the movement of a mother to a loved child in trouble. "I wrote to you, to Hillfoot."

"Yes, I have it here. . . . I can't think of anything at the moment, of course, except Uncle Julius."

"Uncle Julius?"

"I landed in London about six this morning and bought a paper. I took a car down there and found the police in charge. They let me take your letter. . . . My God, you don't know what's happened to Uncle Julius? Do you? Do you?"

Behind him the door was opening. Someone—someone very delicately made and daintily dressed—was coming in. Torrance passed a hand across her eyes and stared. This must be Gerald's wife. Yes. But this was—this was—

"Uncle Julius is dead, Torrance. He was found last night about half-past nine. Murdered. Strangled."

"O, was he?" murmured Torrance, in the flat voice of complete non-understanding. And she went on staring into the innocent gray eyes of the girl who had come to slip her hand into Gerald's; the girl, who at nine o'clock last night had cemented a loose brick invisibly into place beside Uncle Julius' dining-room grate.

"This is—my wife," said Gerald. For a moment the drugged look went from his eyes. He glanced down at the dark head brushing his shoulder and the color sprang to his face. "Annabelle, this is Torrance."

The girl leaned a little closer to him. She left one hand in his, the other she put out to Torrance. It was a lovely gesture. A lovely hand. Torrance took it.

"Miss Esdale, you won't feel like getting acquainted yet, with this awful news just hurled at you—ah, but Gerald darling, indeed you should have broken it gently. . . . But when you feel steadier and we can have a real talk, we're going to be the very dearest friends. Aren't we?"

Torrance moved her lips. They made no sound at all. The delicate hand of Gerald's wife still lay appealingly in hers—but wasn't it too smooth, too fine? Oughtn't it to be rough with cement? Gritty with dust?

"O, Gerald, quick! She's fainting!"

Household Hints

If any of these pointers are new to you, clip and paste this in your Household Hints Notebook:

1. Add vinegar to water when cooking eggs with cracked shells. The acid prevents the albumen from boiling out. A teaspoonful of salt has the same effect.
2. To sour sweet milk immediately: add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice to a cup of milk.
3. To shell pecan nuts: drop in boiling water; let stand until cool. The nuts are then easily crushed from end to end.
4. In measuring molasses or honey: grease measuring container.
5. Scalding milk: rinse pan with cold water before adding milk. This prevents sticking.

Housewives Urged to Buy Pot Roast of Beef

The committee on marketing information of the meat council of Chicago issued the following report for the guidance of housewives purchasing meat in Chicago retail meat stores:

"Pot roast of beef is recommended to Chicago housewives as the most economical meat buy over the coming week-end. Some retail meat dealers also are featuring pork loin due to recent decline in the price of this cut of meat."

Substitute Beef Liver Used in Ground Form

Beef liver can very easily be substituted for the tastier calf liver when used in ground form as in liver loaf, and such dishes as liver and pate.

Mix Soda and Pumice for Marble Cleaner

To clean marble use 2 ounces of soda, 1 ounce powdered pumice stone, and one ounce finely powdered chalk. Sift these together, mix with water, rub over marble, and then wash off with soap and water.

NATURE AND USE OF BROWN RICE ARE DISCUSSED

Delectable Dishes Employ Its Hearty Flavor.

New Cookery Book

MARY MEADE'S newest meat cookery book, "Modern Meat Lore," is full of economical recipes for various kinds of meat. The book contains marketing tips, the definition of meat cookery terms, and clear and concise arrangements. This 52 page book sells for 20 cents, or 23 cents by mail. BY MARY MEADE.

Every so often up pops a question about brown rice—just what is it, or how it is cooked. Proving, of course, that this diamond-in-the-rough needs publicizing.

Brown rice is not, as some questioner recently suggested, something you can make from regular white, polished rice, by a mysterious "browning" process. It's a natural product. In fact, it is the result of the first step in rice milling. After the hulls and foreign bits are removed from the rough rice the millers have what they call hulled, or brown rice. [Most of it is then hulled and "brushed" to produce polished white rice, but a part is marketed just as it is.]

The bran coating on the brown rice gives it a rich, hearty flavor, slightly sweet. Because this coating is rich in fat, and minerals, and vitamin B, it's decidedly important for its nutritional values.

And now about cooking brown rice. It may be cooked just as is white rice if you like, stirring one cup of brown rice into two quarts of boiling water with a teaspoon of salt, lifting and stirring it occasionally with a fork during cooking. It takes about twice as long to become tender as does white rice—from 30 minutes to an hour. To shorten this cooking period many cooks prefer to soak the brown rice in lukewarm water for an hour to soften the bran, but you can choose the method which is the most convenient at the moment. After cooking, the brown rice is drained and fluffed just as is white rice.

In general brown rice goes into almost any dish in which white rice is used, but it's especially good in combination with meats, or vegetables, or with nut meats. [Children are pretty sure to like it as a breakfast cereal, with brown sugar and cream, and what it does to a plain rice pudding is something you ought to find out soon.] And here are a few we've dubbed as particularly fine among the many possibilities.

Ricetti.

2 cups cooked brown rice
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons minced onion
½ pound chopped boiled beef tongue
2 hard cooked eggs
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper

Melt the butter, add the onion, and cook to a light brown over a low heat. Add the cooked rice, chopped tongue, chopped hard cooked eggs, and seasonings. Stir lightly over a low heat until thoroughly hot, and serve as a main luncheon or dinner dish.

Brown Rice and Carrots.

1 cup uncooked brown rice
6 medium carrots
2 cups medium white sauce
1 tablespoon butter
3 tablespoons grated cheese

Cook the brown rice in two quarts of boiling water until tender. Drain and dry. Cook the carrots until tender and dice or cut in crosswise slices. Combine the carrots and rice with a well seasoned white sauce and turn into a buttered oven dish. Dot with butter, sprinkle with grated cheese, and bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes.

Honey Brown Pudding.

2 cups cooked brown rice
2 eggs
½ cup honey
½ cup chopped, pitted dates
1 cup milk

Pat a loose layer of cooked rice into a buttered oven dish. Cover with chopped dates, drizzle with honey, and repeat until all these ingredients are used. Combine the beaten eggs and milk and pour over the layers. Bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes.

MERRY FAHRNEY DENIES PLANNING TO WED A PRINCE

Merry Fahrney, 24 years old, patent medicine heiress, last night denied published reports that she will make her third marital venture on Jan. 28. Miss Fahrney, the former wife of Hugh Parker Pickering and of Frank Eiszner, is at the Ambassador West hotel.

The reported husband-to-be is Prince Troubetskow, 34 years old, a Russian, who was leading man for Pola Negri during the silent screen days, but Miss Fahrney was emphatic in her denial of a prospective marriage with him.

"I haven't seen Prince Troubetskow for two and a half years," she declared. "I understand that he is coming to America in March, but I most assuredly am not marrying him."

The report was that Prince Troubetskow would land in New York on Jan. 23 from Paris and would go immediately to Florida to wed Miss Fahrney.

PRICE OF BREAD WILL STAY UP AS TAX COMES OFF

While the processing tax of approximately half a cent on a loaf of bread was stopped when the United States Supreme court overthrew the Agricultural Adjustment administration, representatives of 1,000 bakery owners declared here yesterday that they do not believe the price of bread will be lowered. Eugene Lipp, president of the executive council of the Associated Bakers of Greater Chicago, meeting in the Hotel Sherman, said that the bakers have been operating on close margins of profit, or without any profit, because ingredients they use have increased from 40 to 300 per cent in cost.

SCHWAB'S MOTHER 93 YEARS OLD; HEALTH IS GOOD

Loretto, Pa., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Pauline Farabaugh Schwab, mother of Charles M. Schwab, the steel magnate, will celebrate her 93d birthday tomorrow.

Friends say she is in good health.

Mrs. Schwab was born in Cambria county, where her son once drove a stage coach.

She has seen him rise to the presidency of the United States Steel corporation. Now, at 71, he is board chairman of the Bethlehem Steel company.

The steel man's mother is the widow of John A. Schwab, who died May 5, 1924.

Dress Takes Fire as She Watches a False Alarm

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Loretta Schmide, 28, leaning from a window today to see firemen answer a false alarm, ignited her own dress against a stove. Terrified, she ran into the street. The firemen extinguished the blaze. She was badly burned.

COOKIE BOOKLET HELPS PREPARE WINTER SNACK

Unusual Recipes Provide Something Different.

Toasted sponge sticks with a cup of hot chocolate—pecan jumbles with hot fruit punch—the very things to please the winter caller or to give the happy ending to an informal evening game of bridge. Nothing more elaborate than a soothing hot beverage and a crunchy cookie or two is needed for refreshment at times like these and certainly nothing meets with greater approval.

One of the greatest desires among hostesses is to serve something "different," and if it's unusual cookie recipes you want for occasions like the above, just resolve right now to order Mary Meade's booklet. "Filling the Cookie Jar" for your kitchen library. You'll be immensely pleased with it and find each of the 28 recipes a real delight.

Tribune Recipes

CHEESE PEANUT ROLL.

2 cups cooked rice
1 cup grated cheese
1 egg
½ cup chopped peanuts
1 teaspoon salt
1-3 cup buttered cracker crums

Combine all ingredients except crums. Use enough milk to hold together, shape, roll in buttered crums, and bake in moderate oven [350 degrees F.] for 25 minutes. Place on hot platter, and serve with hot tomato sauce.

APPLE HAM CASSEROLE.

Slice of ham, one inch thick
2 cloves
1 tablespoon onion juice
Tart apples
Brown sugar
1 tablespoon butter

Rub ham well with brown sugar and place in baking dish. Stick cloves into ham and add 1 tablespoon onion juice. Slice enough tart apples to cover the ham. Sprinkle apples with 4 tablespoons brown sugar and dot with butter, cut in bits. Add one cup boiling water, and bake in moderate oven until tender.

DATE LOAF PUDDING.

3 eggs
1 cup sugar
⅔ cup fine cracker crums
1⅓ teaspoons baking powder
1 cup sliced dates
1 cup chopped nut meats

Beat eggs until very light, add sugar and mix thoroughly. Add cracker crums mixed with baking powder, stir in the dates and nut meats. Place in a loaf shaped pan and steam 45 to 50 minutes. Serve with whipped cream. Very nice hot or cold.

ORANGE MARMALADE PUDDING.

1½ cups stale bread crums
1 cup orange marmalade
2 eggs
1⅓ cups milk

Butter pudding mold. Put bread crums and marmalade in mold in alternate layers. Beat eggs slightly, add milk and pour mixture over ingredients in mold. Set aside for 10 minutes. Place cover on mold, cover with piece of oiled paper and steam 1½ hours. Unmold and serve hot with lemon sauce.

CHEESE FONDUE.

1 cup milk
3 eggs, separated
1 cup bread, cut in small cubes
1 cup grated cheese
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter

Scald the milk and combine with the bread, cheese, salt, butter, and beaten egg yolks. Beat the egg whites until stiff and fold into the mixture. Pour in a buttered baking dish and bake in a pan surrounded with hot water for 25 minutes in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.].

FOOD PRICE CUTS FOLLOW LIFTING OF PROCESS TAX

Week-end Shoppers Will Find Markdowns.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Quick adjustment of prices by city and suburban merchants has given consumers an opportunity to benefit immediately from elimination of federal processing taxes, the week-end survey of food prices indicated yesterday. The processing taxes, levied on many agricultural commodities, were knocked out Monday in the Supreme court's decision outlawing the Agricultural Adjustment act.

Most stores have cut prices on products made from hogs, wheat, corn, peanuts, and rice, which were burdened with processing taxes under AAA. Pork and flour headed the list of lower priced foods.

Throughout Chicago and surrounding suburbs shoppers will find in many butcher shops today and tomorrow that most pork cuts have been reduced as much as 2 cents a pound. Many interpret this as the amount the consumer is getting, at least this week, in the adjustment of prices to take care of the processing tax of $2.25 a hundred pounds on live hogs paid by packers to the federal government under the AAA program. Cured ham is lower.

Flour Now a Bargain.

Flour is leading in the downward revision of prices on products made from wheat. Merchants began slashing flour prices early in the week. For today and tomorrow retailers are cutting their prices as much as 16 to 28 cents on a 24½ pound sack, depending upon the grade and brand. Some merchants have gone even further, cutting the price as much as 38 cents a 24½ pound sack under last week's prices. This was a greater reduction than was anticipated by many to take care of the AAA processing tax of 30 cents a bushel on wheat. Flour may be advanced in price again soon, when millers and merchants have time to adjust their trading to meet the new price schedule.

Evidence of retail price reductions on products made from corn already are beginning to show up. Corn starch, for example, is a cent a pound less in some stores. The processing tax on corn was only 5 cents a bushel.

Most Fish Prices Lower.

Although not carrying a processing tax, leg of lamb is lower in price. Some butchers are offering it at as much as 4 cents a pound under last week's prices. Most kinds of fish are lower in price than a week ago.

Other food items made from farm commodities that carried a processing tax included peanuts, rye flour, corn syrup, and rice. All of these foods are lower in price in many stores as a result of the processing tax being taken off.

From the standpoint of the shopper the decision of the Supreme court killing the AAA act also had a favorable effect on prices of foods not burdened by processing taxes.

Comparatively few foods have been increased in price since last week. Butter is up in some stores and not in others. Most beef cuts, including steaks and roasts, are slightly higher. Some retail meat markets have added 1 cent a pound to the price of chickens used as fryers and broilers.

Green beans, green peas, and head lettuce are lower this week.

Good News from Markets.

Good news for consumers comes from the live stock markets. The big boost in prices of hogs and pork that was in the air the first of the week seems to have less momentum now than was expected. Light and butcher fat hogs are 15 to 25 cents higher than a week ago and butcher hogs weighing 200 to 300 pounds are 25 to 50 cents a hundred higher. But on Tuesday hog prices were 25 to 40 cents a hundredweight higher than they were yesterday, according to federal reporters.

Lower retail pork prices may be expected soon. Yesterday packers sold loin of pork at from $2 to $3 a hundred pounds under last week's prices. Shoulders, picnic hams, and spareribs are from 50 cents to $1 less than a week ago.

Fat lambs are 50 to 75 cents a hundred pounds lower. Dressed lamb is 50 cents a hundredweight lower.

Little Change in Cattle Market.

Good to choice cattle were reported unchanged to 25 cents higher, and short fed cattle 25 to 50 cents a hundredweight higher than last week. Common cattle are about the same in price. Packers, however, were offering beef yesterday at about the same level asked last week. A downward price tendency is showing up on medium to good beef.

Another encouraging note is that the quality of meats, particularly beef, has been improving rapidly during the last few months as a result of the good feed farmers are using in finishing their live stock for market.

In selling eggs that have been held in cold storage this winter merchants generally have been more careful about labeling them "cold storage" eggs to distinguish them from fresh eggs, as provided for in the state's cold storage law. This practice has been encouraged by the Chicago Better Business bureau.

Plain Labeling Urged.

The bureau has urged merchants to comply with the law by plainly and conspicuously marking eggs as cold storage eggs and avoid advertising as fresh any eggs which have been held in cold storage for a period of thirty days or more.

Officials of the division of foods and dairies of the state department of agriculture say they expect retail merchants to live up to the provisions of the cold storage law in marketing eggs and other cold storage foods, but that no special effort has been made to enforce it this winter. Instead, state food inspectors have turned to the state food laws and regulations and are emphasizing the purity of foods whether or not they have been kept in cold storage.

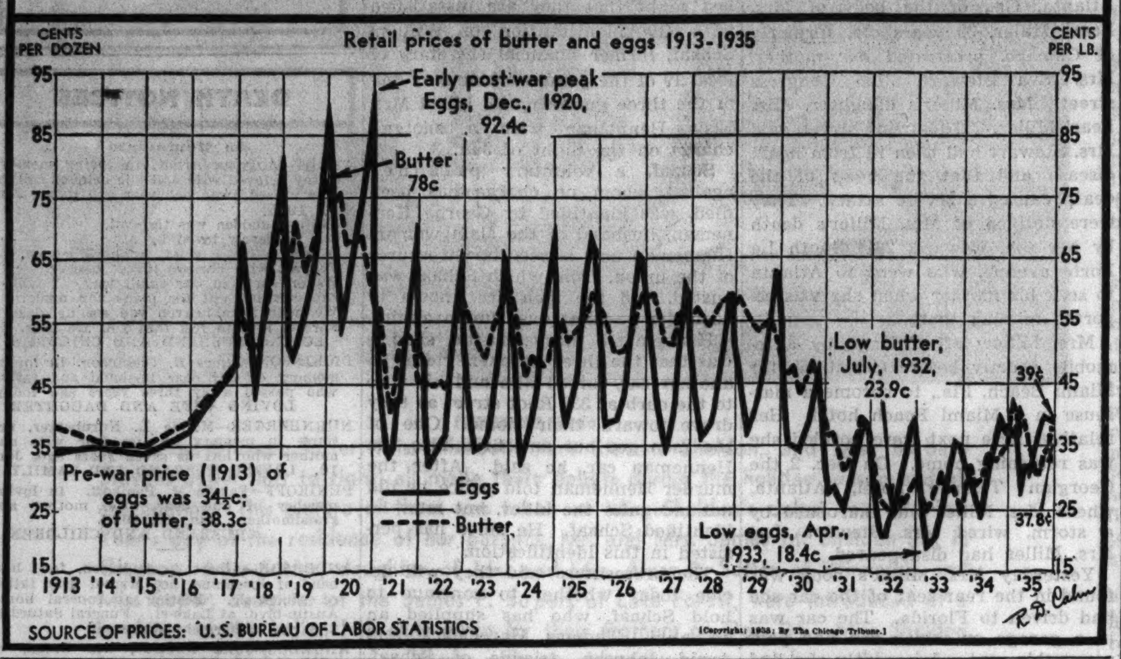
How the Price of Butter and Eggs Fluctuated Since 1913



SOURCE OF PRICES: U. S. BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS

[Copyright: 1936: By The Chicago Tribune.]

TRIBUNE RECIPES

POTATO BEAN LOAF.

- 2 cups cooked kidney beans
- 1-3 cup milk
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons butter or savory meat drippings
- 3 cups hot riced potatoes
- ½ cup milk
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon butter
- Pepper to taste

Press the beans through a sieve or a ricer and blend them with the meat drippings, the ¾ teaspoon of salt, and the 1-3 cup of milk. Place the mixture in a well oiled baking dish and pile on top the riced potatoes which have been blended with the remaining ingredients. Place in a hot oven until heated through and brown. Serve with spicy tomato sauce.

ROAST LEG OF LAMB WITH PINEAPPLE MINT SAUCE.

- Leg of lamb
- Salt and pepper
- ½ cup pineapple sirup
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- ¼ cup chopped mint leaves or a few drops of mint flavoring

Roast the leg of lamb as usual, that is, season it with salt and pepper, place it cup side up on a rack in an open roasting pan, and allow it to bake at a temperature of 300 degrees F. until it is done. It requires thirty to thirty-five minutes per pound for roasting. An hour or more before serving combine the pineapple sirup, vinegar, mint leaves, and about ¼ teaspoon salt. Allow this to stand in a warm place and serve as a sauce with the roast lamb.

CREAM OF BEET SOUP.

- 1 medium onion
- 1 teaspoon butter
- 1¼ cups water
- 1¼ cups finely chopped beets
- ½ cup meat stock
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Pepper
- 1¼ cups thin cream
- 1 tablespoon vinegar

Cut the onion fine and cook in the butter until soft and yellow. Add the water, beets, and meat stock and heat to the boiling point. [If meat stock is not available, a beef or chicken bouillon cube may be dissolved in ½ cup of boiling water.] Add the salt, and pepper, and cream, and again reheat to the boiling point. Remove from the fire, add the vinegar, and serve at once.

BACON AND CHEESE OMELET.

- 6 eggs slightly beaten
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Pepper and paprika to taste
- 6 tablespoons milk
- ½ cup diced bacon
- 1 cup grated snappy cheese

Blend the eggs, milk, and seasoning. Brown the bacon in a hot skillet and add the egg mixture. Cook over a low heat until firm, shaking occasionally to insure even cooking. When done, spread with the grated cheese, brown quickly, fold over, and serve garnished with crisp watercress.

BAVARIAN CREAM.

- ¼ cup cold water or milk
- 1 tablespoon gelatin
- 1 cup milk
- ¾ cup sugar
- 2 egg yolks
- Salt
- 1 cup double cream, whipped
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Soak the gelatin in the cold water for at least five minutes. Scald the milk with ½ cup of sugar. Add the eggs well beaten and mixed with the rest of the sugar and salt. Cook over hot water until the mixture will coat a metal spoon. Remove from the fire, add the soaked gelatin, and strain. Set the dish in ice water and stir until it begins to thicken. Fold in the whipped cream and vanilla. Chill thoroughly before serving.

CANDIED GRAPEFRUIT PEEL.

- Grapefruit peel
- 2 cups granulated sugar
- 1 cup water

Keep the peel covered with water until ready to candy it. Drain, cover again with cold water, and simmer until tender. Drain and cut with scissors or knife into ¼ inch strips, about 3 or 4 inches long. Cook sugar and water to a soft ball stage [234 degrees F.] or until the peel is clear. Drain and roll the peel in granulated sugar. Allow to dry for a short time before packing in a covered container until used.

ORANGE BETTY.

- ¾ cup bread crums
- ⅓ cup orange juice
- 1 egg
- ¼ cup sugar
- ½ tablespoon butter
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- Cold water

Soak bread crums in cold water for twenty minutes. Squeeze dry. Combine with orange juice, sugar, egg yolk, melted fat, and salt. Fold in stiffly beaten white and bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] until firm. Serve with orange sauce made by boiling together ½ cup hot water, ½ cup orange juice, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ tablespoon butter, ½ cup sugar, and ½ tablespoon cornstarch.

HONEY WALNUT CAKE.

- ½ cup butter
- ½ cup honey
- ½ cup sugar
- 3 eggs
- ¾ teaspoon vanilla
- ½ cup walnut meats [chopped]
- ½ cup cold coffee
- 1¾ cups flour
- ½ teaspoon soda
- ⅓ teaspoon salt
- ⅓ teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ cup cocoa

Cream butter, add honey, sugar, and egg yolks and beat until light. Add nut meats and vanilla. Sift dry ingredients together and add alternately to creamed mixture with the coffee. Fold in egg whites and turn into buttered layer cake tins. Bake in a moderate oven for 35 minutes.

CARROT, SWEET POTATO GROWN AS HOUSE PLANTS

Sweet potatoes, carrots, and parsley are three vegetables that may be grown indoors as decorative house plants during the winter, according to faculty members of the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca.

Sweet potatoes grow rapidly and produce a vine similar to the morning glory. They are best planted an inch deep in a pot of garden soil. The soil should be kept moist. The sweet potato may also be planted in a jar of water.

Train Vines on Wire.

For something out of the ordinary, a large sweet potato may be hollowed out and suspended by wires in the window. The potato should be filled with water, and the vine may be trained up the wires or allowed to trail down across the window.

Carrots may be treated in the same way. Plant the root in soil in its normal position. If most of the top is cut back, new growth starts quickly and will be more vigorous.

Carrots Grow in Water.

Carrots also thrive if started in a jar of water or if they are hollowed out, watered from the inside, and suspended with wires.

Parsley may be transplanted from the garden in the fall or started from seed in pots containing garden soil. Parsley is a decorative plant, and the tops may be clipped from time to time for garnish and seasoning purposes.

Boiling Kidneys for Pie Removes Strong Flavor

In using kidneys for meat pie and other types of dishes tone down the strong flavor by bringing kidneys to boil in successive cold waters.

HAMLET MARKS BIRTHPLACE OF TEXAS' FREEDOM

Declaration Signed There 100 Years Ago.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington-on-the-Brazos, Tex., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—This crossroad village of three gasoline stations, a general store and postoffice and a dozen or so frame houses is the "cradle of Texas freedom." It was in this town, of about as many years as it has population, that the Texas declaration of independence was signed March 2, 1836.

The Tribune roadster came here this afternoon, as thousands of other visiting motorists will do this year while Texas is observing the centennial of its freedom from Mexico. Filling station attendants in Houston, asked about the roads, said they never had heard of the town. However, it was a headquarters of Stephen F. Austin's colonists for fifteen years before Houston was founded.

One hundred years ago March 1 there met in this hamlet, about the same size then as it is today, fifty-eight representatives of the 30,000 Americans who had settled in this part of what then was the new Republic of Mexico.

Independence Is Declared.

Their seventeen day conference, hurried by the approach of Santa Ana's troops, was eventful in the history of the United States. The declaration was a citation of grievances, setting forth that Santa Ana, as dictator president of Mexico, had destroyed the rights of the country's residents under Mexico's new republican constitution, and that secession as an independent sovereignty was essential to the protection of lives, liberty and property.

David G. Burnet was chosen president and Lorenzo de Zavala, a Mexican, was named vice president. Sam Houston was selected to command the volunteer army. A descendant of this first vice president until a few months ago was president of the Texas Society of Chicago. He recently moved to Dallas, and was succeeded by Dr. J. P. Simonds of Northwestern university.

This town, designated on some maps simply as Washington, was found 79 miles from Houston by way of U. S. 290 and Texas 6 to Hempstead, thence on Texas 6 to Navasota, and thence about six miles on Texas 90.

Monument Marks Site.

Off the highway a few hundred feet is a gate to a state park. A monument that looks like a tombstone marks the site of an uncompleted blacksmith shop where the delegates convened in a state park of 50 acres on the deep clay banks of the muddy Brazos river.

There is a frame building that is a reproduction of the national [Texan] capitol of 1942. There is a bit pretentious and little used brick assembly building erected in 1932.

"When the railroads were built they missed us," said T. B. Conner, 77 year old caretaker of the park and farmer in these parts for the last half century. "And when the highways were built, the federal routes missed us. The river hasn't been used for barging cotton since the war between the states."

That's the story of Washington-on-the-Brazos.

Henry Schulenberg Dies; Resident Here 69 Years

Funeral services for Henry Schulenberg, 81 years old, a resident of Chicago for 69 years, who died Wednesday, will be held tomorrow afternoon in the chapel at 63d street and Harvard avenue. Interment will be at Graceland cemetery. Mr. Schulenberg was born in Hanover, Germany, and came to Chicago in 1867, when he was 12 years old. For more than 50 years he was in the saddlery and trunk business on the south side. He lived at 1463 East 68th street. He is survived by his widow, Barbara, and a daughter.

Last of Six Who Carried Lincoln from Theater Dies

Turtle Creek, Pa., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The last of six men reputed to have carried Abraham Lincoln, mortally wounded, from the Ford theater in Washington died at his home today. He was 90 year old Jacob J. Soles, veteran of service with Thompson's battery, independent Pennsylvania light artillery. He always maintained John Wilkes Booth escaped after the assassination of the civil war President. He refused to accept the general belief that Booth died in a flame-swept barn while seeking refuge.

Enoch Olson's Funeral Today; Veteran Railroader

Funeral services for Enoch Olson, 55 years old, of Steward, Ill., Lee county, an employé of the Burlington railroad for 35 years, who died Wednesday, will be held this afternoon from the Methodist church in Steward. Burial will be in the Steward cemetery. Mr. Olson was first employed by the Burlington road as a telegrapher and later as a chief dispatcher. Surviving are four brothers and four sisters.

Dr. Charles Jennings Dies; Noted Detroit Physician

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Dr. Charles Godwin Jennings, 78, former president of American Pediatric society, the American Congress of Physicians, and the American Therapeutic society, died today of pneumonia in Jennings hospital. He was a member of the Army Medical Reserve corps in the world war, serving as chief cardiologist at Camp Grant, Ill.

Will F. Jackson, 85, Dies; Noted Landscape Artist

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Will F. Jackson, 85, widely known landscape artist and curator of the Crocker Art gallery since its founding in 1885, died today.

OLSON'S HEALTH PRIME FACTOR IN POLITICAL PLANS

May Not Be Able to Campaign.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Whether Floyd B. Olson, Farmer-Labor governor now serving his third term, will be in the political arena this year is the question overshadowing other considerations in Minnesota.

Several months ago Olson announced that he would be a candidate for the United States senate then held by the blind Republican, Thomas D. Schall. Since that time Schall has died, fatally injured when struck by an automobile in Maryland, and Olson himself has undergone an operation. In that operation surgeons of the Mayo clinic at Rochester examined the governor and found his condition inoperable. They said it should be treated medically. What they found has never been fully told. Whether he will be well enough to enter the campaign is not known.

To Return in Week.

Still silent himself as to his plans, Olson is preparing to return to Minneapolis in a week. Today he was near his old gay self, freed from a flood of visitors and concentrating on recovering from the exploration operation of last week.

Olson still has visions of running for the senate in accordance with the plan under which he recently appointed Elmer A. Benso nto complete Schall's unexpired term. It was then understood that Benson would be Farmer-Labor party candidate for governor this year.

Many Cares Pushed Aside.

Temporarily pushed aside are the other difficulties which have beset him in the past month—the special sessio nof the legislature, which today moved to set up a sales tax in direct opposition to his views; the state's relief problems, labor strife which has sent national guardsmen into Minneapolis and Cloquet, and affairs of moment occuring in Washington.

He concentrates on the effort at personal recovery, and on the success of that, if it is possible, hangs the political outlook in Minnesota.

Seize $1,300 Bonds, $1,040 Check in Woman's Purse

Mrs. Molly Jastromb, 5732 Winthrop avenue, reported to the West North avenue police last night that while she was walking in North Leavitt street between Potomac avenue and West Division street one of two youths snatched her purse and fled. The purse contained two American Bond and Mortgage company bonds valued at $500 each, three other bonds of the same company valued at $100 each, and a check drawn by the Greenebaum & Sons Investment company for $1,040 in favor of Mrs. Jastromb.

Baxter Beaumont Dies; Funeral Company Head

Baxter Beaumont, 29 years old, president of Beaumont, Inc., undertakers at 912 West Madison street, died yesterday in his home at 6742 Belmont avenue. He had been ill of heart disease for nine months. He was past worthy patron of Mount Clare chapter of O. E. S. and of A. F. & A. M. lodge, No. 1040. He is survived by his widow, parents, and two brothers. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow in the Masonic temple, 6910 Fullerton avenue. Burial will take place at Jonesboro, Ill.

Lyman Strickler, Eastern Rail Official, Dies Here

Lyman Strickler, 60 years old, freight service supervisor for the eastern division of the Pennsylvania railroad, with offices in Philadelphia, died yesterday in the Palmer house from a heart attack. Mr. Strickler had been in Chicago for several weeks as an expert for the Reconstruction Finance corporation studying bankrupt railroads. He is survived by his widow, a son, and a daughter, who live in Philadelphia. The body will be sent there today for burial.

Rites for Raymond Kirk Will Be Held Tomorrow

Funeral services for Raymond Kirk, 55 years old, wealthy insurance broker, who was killed in an automobile accident in Lincoln park on Wednesday, will be held tomorrow afternoon in the chapel at Rosehill cemetery. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery. Mr. Kirk was vice president of Rollins, Burdick & Hunter, insurance concern at 175 West Jackson boulevard, and a grandson of the late James S. Kirk, soap company founder.

Dana Society Will Honor Memory of Dr. Henius

Memorial services for Dr. Max Henius, Chicago chemist, president of the Wahl-Henius institute, who died on Nov. 13 from injuries in an automobile accident while visiting in Denmark, will be held at the University of Chicago chapel on Sunday by the Dana society of Chicago.

Charles Russell Loomis, Artist and Poet, Is Dead

Duxbury, Mass., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Charles Russell Loomis, 68, painter and poet, died at his home here today. He was best known for his water colors and oil paintings of landscapes and portraits.

CHICAGO WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN A GEORGIA GARAGE

Word of the discovery yesterday in Atlanta, Ga., of the body of Mrs. Pearl Miller, 39 years old, formerly of Chicago, prostrated her mother, Mrs. Eva Stewart, 3106 Congress street. Mrs. Miller's daughter, Miss Pearl Miller, 2827 Burling street, said Mrs. Stewart had been ill from heart disease and that the news of the death caused a severe attack. They were notified of Mrs. Miller's death by her son, Edward, 2014 South La Porte avenue, who went to Atlanta to seek his mother when she was reported missing there.

Mrs. Miller left Chicago by automobile shortly before Christmas for Miami Beach, Fla., to become a masseuse in a Miami Beach hotel. Her relatives here next were notified she was returning home. On Dec. 2 the Georgian Terrace hotel, Atlanta, where Mrs. Miller was marooned by a storm, wired Mrs. Stewart that Mrs. Miller had disappeared.

Yesterday Mrs. Miller's body was found in the rear seat of the car she had driven to Florida. The car was in a garage on which she had paid a month's rent. Apparently she had been dead three days. Bruises on her face mystified Atlanta authorities, who were uncertain whether the death was caused by carbon monixide poisoning or whether Mrs. Miller had been slain. Her friends here said she was not despondent and had no reason to take her life.

4 DIE IN CHAIR AT SING SING AS POLICE SLAYERS

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Shortly after 11 o'clock tonight the Sing Sing electric chair snuffed out the lives of Newman Raymond Jr., Ray Orley, Thomas Rooney, and Amerigo Angelini, youthful gunmen, for the murder of a policeman in a New York City luggage shop holdup Jan. 18, 1935. The quadruple execution required less than fifteen minutes.

Kentucky Outlaw Executed.

Eddyville, Ky., Jan. 10 [Friday].—(AP)—Neal Bowman, 33, notorious Ohio and Kentucky outlaw, was executed in the Eddyville state penitentiary electric chair shortly after midnight for the murder of Comer Franklin, his 17 year old companion in crime. Bowman maintained he was innocent to the end and refused religious consolation.

Texas Electrocutes Slayer.

Huntsville, Tex., Jan. 10 [Friday].—(AP)—Fred Hill, colored, was electrocuted in the state prison here early today for the slaying of Will Foster, Austin street car operator. Foster was killed in a robbery which netted his assailant $2.

DIVORCED WIFE OF U. S. ENVOY TO RUSSIA DIES AT 41

PARIS, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Louise Bryant, 41, widow of John Reed, American who became a soviet hero, and the divorced wife of William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador to Moscow, died at a private hospital on the left bank Monday, it was disclosed today.

Miss Bryant, a native of San Francisco, collapsed because of a cerebral hemorrhage while climbing the stairs of a hotel. She was taken to the nearby hospital where she died. Since her divorce she had been living quietly in Paris.

The death of the well known communist, who made a reputation as a journalist in Moscow in 1920, was kept secret while arrangements were being made through New York for her funeral in Paris.

$18,000 Given to Mayor for Crippled Children

Mayor Kelly yesterday received an $18,000 check from D. F. Kelly, president of the Fair store, as the share allotted the four public schools for crippled children from admission fees paid by persons who visited the Colleen Moore dollhouse at the store. The fund will be administered for the board of education by Mr. Kelly, James B. McCahey, board of education president; William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools; Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, and Miss Techla Doniat, principal of the Spaulding school for crippled children.

DOUBT IS CAST ON IDENTIFICATION IN MURDER CASE

Assistant state's attorneys indicated last night that they are dissatisfied with the identification of William Schaaf, former financial secretary of local 19 of the painters' union, as one of the three gunmen who killed Mrs. Elsie Henneman with a shotgun charge on the night of Jan. 3.

Schaaf, a voluntary prisoner against whom no charge has been filed, was identified by George Henneman, husband of the slain woman. Henneman now is secretary-treasurer of the union, from which Schaaf was ousted, and the men are known to be bitter enemies over union affairs.

Henneman's story of the slaying was that the three gunmen, riding in another car, forced him and his wife to the curb at 333 Root street as they drove toward their home. One of the men got out and fired into the Henneman car, he said. After the murder Henneman told police he did not recognize the killer, but later he identified Schaaf. He since has persisted in this identification.

The prosecutors said they will decide today whether to continue to hold Schaaf, who has supplied an an alibi. Thomas Harcharick and Arvin Johnson, friends of Schaaf, were released last night.

DR. DANIEL TETER DEAD; 30 YEARS IN PRACTICE HERE

Dr. Daniel P. Teter, 70 years old, a practicing physician in Chicago for 30 years, died yesterday in his home at 4726 Beacon street. Funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. tomorrow in Graceland cemetery chapel. Burial will be in Graceland.

Dr. Teter was born in West Virginia and was graduated from the Baltimore Medical school, Baltimore, in 1885. He came to Chicago a short time later and for 30 years practiced medicine with offices at Lincoln avenue and Irving Park boulevard. He was on the stafs of Cook county hospital, the Swedish Covenant hospital, and Martha Washington hospital.

FIND BOY AFTER TWO NIGHTS IN PAINTED DESERT

Indio, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Twelve year old Alfred Altman, whose "joke" caused a search by scores in the lonely painted desert, was found today near the spot where he disappeared Tuesday.

Alfred, son of Joseph Altman, Brooklyn, N. Y., salesman, told searchers he wandered away from his governess' automobile 'as a joke."

"I heard you calling me yesterday afternoon,' he said after the 48 hour hunt ended. "But I just didn't feel like talking to anybody. I want some breakfast right away."

Dr. C. S. Johnson, Mecca physician, said the boy suffered no ill effects from hunger and two nights spent in the desert cold.

Dowie's Coachman Dies Two Days After His Wife

John I. Johnson, 78 years old, of Winthrop Harbor, former coachman for John Alexander Dowie, founder of the religious colony at Zion, Ill., died yesterday of pneumonia. His wife, Mary, 59 years old, had died of the same disease on Tuesday in St. Therese's hospital at Waukegan. Funeral services for the couple will be held tomorrow in the Grace Missionary church in Zion. Mr. Johnson was born on one of the Shetland Islands and accompanied Dowie around the world on one of his evangelistic tours. A son, John T. Johnson, and a daughter, Mrs. Jennie Fossland, both of Winthrop Harbor, survive the couple.

$150,000 Left to Widow by Dr. William J. Butler

The will of Dr. William J. Butler leaving an estate estimated at $150,000 to his widow, Mrs. Lillian E. Butler, 118 South Hamlin avenue, was admitted to probate yesterday by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to the probate judge. Dr. Butler, physician and a member of the medical staf of Loyola university, died last Nov. 8 in Gainesville, Fla. He was 61 years old.

Alumnae Group of Old School May Disband

Dearborn Graduates Will Meet Thursday.

BY JUDITH CASS.

TO any one who believes in tradition and who has enough sentiment to wish to keep alive the spirit of the past, the invitations received yesterday from the Dearborn Seminary Alumnae association occasioned a moment of sadness, for they stated that at the fifty-fifth annual meeting there would be discussion of continuance of organization and that action would be taken that day.

If the association is discontinued it will mean one more link in the ever shortening and weakening chain that binds old and modern Chicago will be broken, and that is something to be regretted. In this case it is almost a necessity, think some of the members of the association, however, for the seminary went out of existence in 1908 and the alumnae association grows smaller and smaller each year, of course.

The meeting will be held at the Fortnightly next Thursday, with the business meeting at 11:30 o'clock, followed by luncheon at 12:30, after which Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw will give her talk on "Traveling Alone." Mrs. Gilbert Smith, accompanied by Mrs. Clifford Buttleman, will contribute a group of songs to the program.

Mrs. Eugene H. Garnett President of Group.

Mrs. Eugene H. Garnett [Louise Ayres] is president of the association, and the vice presidents are Mrs. Shaw [Frances Wells], Mrs. Charles Counselman [Jennie Otis], and Mrs. James Keogh [Mary Ballard]. Miss Carrie Blair Neely is treasurer and Miss Edith Helen Moss is recording secretary. Mrs. Charles S. Williamson [Josephine Gillette] is corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Asa J. Caldwell [Bertha Ryan] is chairman of the nominating committee, which will have no work if the organization is discontinued.

Mrs. Van Wagenen Alling [Bertha Baker] is the Dearborn seminary scholarship chairman, and Miss Neely is chairman of the Zuinglius Grover scholarship committee. The seminary, founded in 1850, was Chicago's leading school for young women for many years. The first school was at Wabash avenue and Washington street, and after the fire in 1871 it was moved to the Follansbee mansion at Wabash and 22d street.

The meeting this year is being held one day earlier than usual for the alumnae usually try to have it on Jan. 17, for that is the birthday anniversary of Zuinglius Grover, founder and principal for many years of the school.

Carpenters Arrange Gay Time for Guests.

Most every one in society is resting after the busy holidays, doing nothing more energetic than studying cruise pamphlets or winter resort brochures, but not so the John Alden Carpenters, for today they are starting one of the busiest and gayest week-ends of their winter.

Since Tuesday the former Joyce Borden and her husband, Zlatko Balokovic, the internationally known Jugo-Slav violinist, have been visiting the Carpenters, and this morning Mrs. Walter F. Dillingham of Honolulu arrives. She is the former Louise Gaylord of Chicago, and her visits here always occasion as much entertaining among her friends and relatives as she has time to accept.

Mr. Dillingham was to have come with his wife, but unfortunately an

Drama League Party Reflects Stage Revival

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

Not in years have members of the Chicago Drama league had a chance to have so many actors and actresses as guests at one party as they had yesterday, but that is understandable, for not in years has Chicago had so many legitimate theatrical attractions as it now has.

Marion Claire and Guy Robertson from "The Great Waltz" were there and were the first to be introduced by the president of the league, Mrs. Clarence Hough; Glenn Hunter and Muriel Kirkland from "Squaring the Circle" were next and after a brief talk by Mr. Hunter they made an effective exit, rushing away for a rehersal.

William Gaxton and Victor Moore from "Anything Goes" were the next on the program and they delighted the several hundred women and one man that made up their audience by their talks, for they so cleverly combined humor and seriousness in them. Gladys George, Merna Pace, and Otto Hulett of the "Personal Appearance" company were the other guests.

"I don't feel a bit like hemming diapers after this gay party," said Mrs. Hayden B. Harris as she left the ballroom of the Blackstone, where the league gave its breakfast, for the Alliance Française rooms in the Fine Arts building, but she undoubtedly got into the proper mood for it soon after joining the causerie, for a few minutes later she was chatting gayly in French as her fingers flew.

The causerie, a regular Thursday activity of feminine members of the Alliance who meet to sew for the Red Cross, practice their French conversation, enjoy a program given by members, and then have tea, was unusually delightful with Mrs. Welch Dickinson, soprano, and Mrs. William E. Vogelback, pianist, giving the program.

The causerie is not entirely a feminine affair, either, for several men were there yesterday, including Robert Hall McCormick, who presented flowers to the two artists after their program; Roy McWilliams of Bidart, France, who made a short talk in French to the seamstresses, and Stephen Plummer of England, Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick's nephew, who is visiting her.

Mrs. John Crerar was the hostess and Mrs. Hambleton Kirk and Mrs. Daniel Burnham presided at the tea table.

Among others at the Alliance affair were Mrs. George L. Cragg, Mrs. George H. High, Mrs. Theodore Sheldon, Mrs. Ralph H. James, Mrs. John W. Winslow, Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Mrs. Allen Howes, Mrs. Hal C. Bangs, and Mrs. Jefferson Jackson.

Some of the several hundred who enjoyed the Drama league breakfast were Miss Kate Buckingham, Mrs. Harry Fuller, Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, Mrs. Harold Pynchon, Mrs. Joseph Field, Mrs. John E. Kehoe, Mrs. Townsend McKeever, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, and Mrs. Samuel M. Rinaker.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

THIS little tale is concerned with the manner in which science came to the aid of the cheese industry in Green Bay, Wis., and also how the cheese industry came the aid of science. Farmers in the Green Bay area bring in their cheese to the factory, where it it remixed and made into large heads. Occasionally, during the mixing process, a bolt comes loose from one of the machines. Then it is necessary to cut up all the cheeses in the search for the missing bolt, and after it is located the rest of the cheese must be remixed, a procedure involving loss of time and money.

Deal—
Query—
Cardinal.

One day a cheese manufacturer was lunching with some medico friends in Green Bay. There was discussion among the doctors of the necessity for enlarged and improved X-ray facilities in the hospital. Then the cheese man told the doctors his particular worry. A bolt was missing from one of the big mixing machines, so some thousand pounds of cheese had to be cut up until it was located.

"Bring your heads of cheese over to our X-ray department and we'll put them under the fluoroscope," suggested one of the doctors. A deal was made immediately. The cheese manufacturer should pay a certain amount for the X-ray service each time a bolt was missing, and the money would go toward better X-ray equipment. That was some time ago. Now the Green Bay hospital has enlarged and improved X-ray facilities.

IN the morning mail. "Spending two weeks vacation in Wisconsin among the pines. Glancing out the window one day at the snow being whirled across the dreary marshes by a fifty mile wind I thought I saw a red flag on a stick about three feet high—probably to stop the 'over sixty' drivers. . . . Moving close to the window, I saw that the red spot was not a flag but a cardinal, on a lilac shrub near the busy highway. With his crested head and scarlet feathers he looked like a flame in the snow. A car sped by and he flew away a flash of fire. We put wheat along the trial, but I wish I knew some way to let him know I am his friend.

Through the Looking Glass

When we were in one of Chicago's shops the other day we were astonished at the ring of telephones, the rush of customers and a general whirl of excitement, all about a pine essence for the bath. We got some, used it, and could understand the hysteria because it is grand. And this, from one who can never stand on her hands about the scent of pine, is really quite high praise.

This essence is called an extract of pine needles, and it must be that because we've never known anything pinier and peppier. One spoonful in the bath water makes the pine addicts sing.

A good pine bath is a rather strange rite. If you're so exhausted you don't know or care whether you'll live another half hour it peps you up miraculously. A little loafing in a piney tub and you take up your burdens and dance again.

On the other hand, if you're so jittery and frazzled you want to burst into tears if a flake of snow falls on you, a leisurely pine bath has the power to soothe. Don't ask us how pine happens to work both ways, but that seems to be the case.

The pine essence we came upon the other day is an especially good one, because it is so true and because it is a proper essence. It is not merely a scenting agent as some of the so-called pine oils and what-not are. Those who spend their time chasing down a really good pine tell us it's just about perfect not only because of its beautiful woodsy fragrance but because it does what it's supposed to do—works magic on the tired spirit and the aching bones.

Men are mad about it, we discovered, using it both for the bath and for face and hand washing.

Lauds Playing of Saidenberg in Solo Work

Cellist Offers Schumann's A Minor Concerto.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Daniel Saidenberg, principal cello of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, abandoned his usual place last night to appear as soloist in the Schumann A Minor Concerto. This magnificent work, steeped in the sunlight of Jean Paul Richter's Germany, offers enough serious problems of technique and interpretation to test the capabilities of any cellist.

Saidenberg rose to the occasion admirably. The concerto's clinging and rhythmically difficult themes had dignity as well as romantic beauty under his hands. Its more technical passages sparkled with sufficient brilliance, although there is nothing in the work which approaches the bravura.

Of all the qualifications for a great soloist, the most difficult to acquire is probably the ability to let oneself go completely, to project esthetic ideas directly, without thought of the mechanism of bow and strings that lies between those ideas and the final expression of them. This ability will come to the young cellist of last evening as the years go over his head, for he already brings to his craft sound musicianship and well disciplined imagination. He was compelled to take three or four bows before the audience would let him go.

A suite from Rossetter Cole's opera, "The Maypole Lovers," received its first performance. In analyzing one's reactions it is hard to say how much of the favorable impression it most certainly made is due to the music itself and how much to the superlative performance the orchestra gave it. There is no doubt but that the second section is rich in lyric, melodic beauty of a high type. Also, the whole work is a dazzling piece of instrumentation. Mr. Cole does not rely on bizarre, attention-getting methods for his effects. The music is sound and honest.

The program opened and closed on a note of bursting out-of-doors cheer. Five of Brahm's Hungarian dances [in the Dvorak arrangement] provided the first royal fillip of the evening. Nearly two hours later, the intoxicating Polka from "Schwanda" crowded the hall with music. As a specific for tired spirits the tune's effectiveness is almost matched by the full title of the opera. It is healthful to be reminded that "Schwanda, der Dudelsackpfeifer" is the name under which Weinberger's opus started its sunny journey through the world.

Borodin's glowing B Minor Symphony is the remaining item of the concert.

The audience's delight in a remarkably festal evening was not marred by any public announcement of Eric DeLamarter's illness, but the management released during the intermission a statement to the effect that the associate conductor is ill and he would not be able to conduct the four programs next week for which he was scheduled. Dr. Stock will postpone his winter vacation on this account.

Pickford-Fairbanks Decree Final Today; Silent on Romances

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Mary Pickford, who becomes a free woman tomorrow, hid herself from the curious tonight and let rumors of a new romance go unanswered.

At noon on Jan. 10, 1935, the former star heard Judge Ben Lindsey announce that her interlocutory decree of divorce from Douglas Fairbanks was granted—thus bringing to an end Hollywood's 15 year old No. 1 romance.

With the final decree due tomorrow, movieland began speculating on any future romance that might enter her life.

Her name and that of Charles "Buddy" Rogers, actor turned orchestra leader, have been linked romantically since 1933, when Mary announced her separation from globe trotting Fairbanks.

No comment was forthcoming from Miss Pickford. Her personal representative said:

"Miss Pickford has absolutely nothing to say about her final decree or about any alleged romance."

Miss Pickford, cinematically inactive for two years, today saw the start of the first picture to be made by the newly formed Pickford-Lasky company. She is supervising the film.

Fairbanks also has announced he has nothing to say on reported romances.

Shoe Previews Promise Smart Fashion Season

Street Footwear Stages Style Comeback.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

With two huge showings of smart new footwear in town the exciting new models are all that any fashion sleuth can talk about. Preview peeks at the various models promise much for a most interesting spring and summer.

Street and daytime footgear stage the biggest comeback in years. More tricky new ideas than you'd think possible . . . trimmings and combines and contrasts till you're dizzy trying to remember them all. All kinds of brilliant effects in patent lether which we've yelled about before; high heels are back in the fashion spotlight; sandals are as good or better than ever.

Two and three toned affairs and similar stunning creations that show plenty of imagination will give the most exacting shoe collector the most versatile and complete collections from which to choose.

The snappy new "flats" will make you cheer. They are in diagonal white piqué, are made so that you can have them dyed and they come in black and brown and white. Just what you want to team with your dark clothes that are trimmed with white piqué.

Another big excitement! The gabardine shoes, supersmart and comfortable numbers for spring and summer [we warned you this was all preview stuff].

All of the smartest shoes are made with scuffless heels, the prize winning invention for women drivers and for active feet . . . you can wear them for months and not a sign of wear.

Square toes and square cut heels are smoothed down after the first showings, the lines are not so extreme and they do take inches off the length of the foot. Rusty suedes, combines of three and sometimes four colored suedes, combinations of gabardine and leather, British calf brown combined with either navy blue or black gabardine, all come in the stubby toed and square cut heel effects.

White kidskin with black heels is something that will cause plenty of buying . . . natural toned very coarse linen contrasted with calfskin is still another bit of news. Watch for these brand new things in your favorite shoe shop. Never have slippers, oxfords and pumps been so different and irresistible.

Fashion photograph . . . one of the newest fitted coats in town . . . of brown and white semi-rough wool made with braid-edged revers, cuffs, collar and pockets. The belt slides under the buttoned front and shows in back. It fits snugly around the waistline, is smartly tailored and is worn over a slim dark brown crêpe short sleeved dress. Available in a Chicago shop.

Bees Scatter 'Farmer in the Dell' Company

Fred Stone, Jean Parker Among Victims.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Honey bees stung Fred Stone on the neck, Jean Parker on one arm, and twenty extras in various painful spots as the bees swarmed near the "Farmer in the Dell" set near Chatsworth.

The bees completely broke up the shooting.

Prop men, to whom all movie emergencies seem finally entrusted, eventually broke up the visitation by starting smudges which smoked the bees away, but also prevented resumption of shooting.

Coming upon Simone Simon, newly arrived French actress of the "Under Two Flags" company, frowning and mumbling in the Twentieth Century-Fox lunchroom, Milt Howe of that studio demanded: "What the deuce are you trying to do?"

"It is terrible," said Simone, her features screwed into a terrific pattern of concentration, "I am trying to say words in English; I am trying to pronounce 'wristwatch'."

A New York lawsuit which included the charge that Jefferson Davis Cohn bought her a silver fox cape spurred Margot Grahame to make public announcement here that her marital separation with Francis Lister is all off. The British actress said: "I rely on neither man nor woman to buy me anything in the way of clothes. I am a happily married woman. Jefferson Davis Cohn is an old friend of my entire family and has been ever since I was born."

Alice Moore, who is Alice Joyce's daughter, plays a New York society girl with Janet Gaynor and Robert Taylor in "Small Town Girl."

A New Yorker came all the way to Hollywood to get Jeanette MacDonald's personal refusal to sell him her cobalt blue Russian czar plates. The plates are embossed "N I" and "A 2," meaning Nicholas I. and Alexander II.

Adrienne Marden, 21, who has just finished work with Jack Haley in "F-Man" at Paramount studio, proclaims herself the first Hollywood actress to announce a successful outcome to a leap year proposal. Her fiancé, she says, is a young Washington diplomat whom she doesn't name. She is showing a diamond ring she received from Washington after writing her suggestion to him that they "might as well be engaged."

Finds Children Seek Vigor in Their Theater

BY MARCIA WINN.

The namby-pamby children's play, written for "the dear little lambs" and pointing out a Sunday school moral, is a thing of the past, Miss Gloria Chandler of New York City, field secretary for the children's theater of the Association of Junior Leagues of America, declared.

Nor, she continued, speaking during a recent visit at the Chicago Junior league headquarters, 664 North Michigan avenue, do juvenile theatergoers want plays replete with "peppermint sidewalks, spearmint trees, and lollypop houses." Instead, they want "vigor."

Unfortunately, she added, contemporary children's playwrights are not aware of what children want. They either write plays with the tone of "now, dear children, here is something you should listen to," or else they go modern, with a cubistic Aladdin who says "O. K." and seriously offends his young audience.

"Thank heavens, that audience is the most honest one you can possibly play for," she said, speaking from her experience with children's theaters organized by the Junior league in 127 cities in the last 15 years.

"What children want today is a robust, vigorous play, put on with big strokes. It can't be done in a halfway manner, and it must not be wishy-washy. They don't want conversation. They want action—and most of all, they want the story."

Contemporary children's plays are seriously in demand, she said, but few of those written are acceptable. Consequently, although desiring new material, the children's theaters are obliged to fall back again and again upon the old classics such as "Sleeping Beauty," "Tom Sawyer," "Hans Brinker and the Silver Skates," or "Aladdin."

"Plays that teach a lesson just don't work," she continued. "It's talking down to them. It's talking obviously for children, and they resent it. With the Moscow Children's theater, the plays are pure propaganda, intended to arouse ideas in the juvenile's mind, but in America that doesn't work. They want adventure—and a story."

Miss Chandler, daughter of the late Homer Weed Chandler of Chicago, started out in dramatics in 1920 in a Smith college benefit at the Atelier, 19 East Pearson street. In 1921 she was instrumental in bringing about the production here of Alice Gerstenberg's "Alice in Wonderland," the initial production of the children's theater of the Chicago Junior league, which in itself was the initial children's theater in America. She now admits modestly that "it started something that can't be stopped."

According to CULBERTSON

DOUBLING ON SUSPICION.

If a player waits until he has the setting tricks in his hand before doubling the opponents, he will have to content himself with meager returns. Such golden opportunities are rare indeed. Much more often, one may assume from the bidding that either or both of the opponents may be stretching hands and that, therefore, a penalty double can hardly go far astray. The best gauge of a close double is whether a redouble is likely.

North, in today's hand, certainly could not count five tricks against the opponents' three no trump contract. Nevertheless, on the far-from-impressive bidding, he made a good sporting double.

West, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 spade	Pass	2 diam's	Pass
2 spades	Pass	3 diam's	Pass
3 no tr'p	Double [final bid]

North correctly reasoned that West, had he held a very good hand, would not have merely rebid his spade suit over East's two diamond response. And that East, for that matter, could not have great strength when the only rebid he could make was three diamonds.

The five of clubs was the opening lead. Declarer, in order not to block the suit, won with his ace and led a diamond up to the dummy. South, of course, refused to part with his king, and East's queen held the trick. The queen of clubs was played, and when North held up his king, the jack followed. North won and returned the fourth club.

Declarer then decided to play for a 3-3 spade break [not that he was optimistic about it] and, in order to retain an entry to his hand, led a spade from dummy and played his own seven. North won, cashed his fifth club, and promptly returned the spade queen. Declarer won, cashed the other high spade, and threw North into the lead with a fourth round. But North still had a diamond for an exit card. The last two tricks were won with the defenders' high heart combination, for a penalty of 500 points.

Perfect play by the declarer, involving the removal of North's diamond as a card of exit, would have reduced this penalty to one trick.

Dearborn Graduates Will Meet Thursday.

abscessed ear is delaying his departure from Boston so he will join the gay household in the Carpenters' home at Lake Shore drive and Bellevue place tomorrow or Sunday. Another former Chicagoan, the Marquise d'Ivanrey, who as Italia Blair was one of our outstanding beauties, came to town last night, and although for a week she will be with her aunt, Mrs. Chauncey Keep, at 1200 Lake Shore drive, she really will be a part of the Carpenters' houseful of guests and will be included in all the things they will do.

Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter have cards out for a tea tomorrow afternoon for their guests, and there will be something for them every minute, but all of the parties except the Carpenters' tea will be small and informal. Today they will occupy two boxes at the symphony concert and again next Tuesday they will go to the concert to hear Mina Hager sing a group of Mr. Carpenter's songs, the Gitanjali group of Indian poems.

Dillinghams' Plans Not Known Definitly.

Mrs. Carpenter is hoping that the Dillinghams will change the plan they had written her, to leave here Sunday night for the west coast, whence they will sail for their home, but until Mr. Dillingham arrives it is not known definitly how long they will be here. The Dillinghams came to this country early last fall, and ever since have been in the east, where all their children are in school except Lowell, who is in business in Honolulu. Their only daughter, Betty Lou, is at Foxcroft, and Benjamin and Gaylord are in college.

The Balokovics are leaving next Wednesday, he for New York and she for Olympia, Wash., for a brief visit with Mrs. J. B. Bridges, whom the Balokovics met on the Riviera. Mme. Balokovic will pass through Chicago, as she returns to join her husband in New York, but she will only be here a few hours then.

The Marquise d'Ivanrey will move to a hotel at the end of a week, and her mother, Mrs. Chauncey J. Blair, will join her then.

The Carpenters are considering sailing dates, for the stupendous exhibit of Chinese art at Burlington house in London is drawing them to England, and they want to arrive there long enough before the closing date, March 7, to have plenty of time to see all of the collection.

The exhibit also is the magnet that is drawing Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland and her youngest daughter, Miss Martha, to London this winter. They are sailing on the 29th on the Manhattan and will be away five or six weeks, visiting Paris after they leave London.

Prenuptial Party for Edith Behr.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Leslie Behr are entertaining at the Casino tonight with dinner and dancing for their daughter, Edith, and W. Edwin Stanley Jr., who tomorrow afternoon at half after 4 o'clock will be married in St. Chrysostom's church. Mr. and Mrs. Behr have invited some of their daughter's and young Mr. Stanley's friends as well as the members of their bridal party. The Casino also will be the scene of the wedding reception tomorrow.

The Arts club has invitations out for a dinner and musical on Sunday evening, Jan. 19. Dinner will be served at half past seven and then the Kolisch quartet will give the first Chicago performance of "Lyrische Suite," by Alvan Berg.

"Slide to the Sun!" is the intriguing invitation that the Dunham Woods Riding club is sending out for Saturday, Jan. 18. The invitation is shaped like a baggage tag, and bears the notification that it is for "the January thaw chuise of the S. S. Dunham Woods," that the dining saloon will open at 7:30 o'clock and that there will be dancing on "the after deck." Boat dress will be in order, it is stated.

Army and Navy Ball to Be Held Jan. 18.

Most of the gold braid, uniforms and decorations in the vicinity of Chicago will be on parade on Saturday, Jan. 18, at the Army and Navy ball. The dance will be held at the Army and Navy club, 850 Lake Shore drive, and Col. George T. Langhorne, president of the club, will have Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Frank R. McCoy and Rear Admiral and Mrs. John Downes as his guests.

Lieut. Col. Harry A. Cotter heads the ball committee, and serving with him are Capt. E. A. Evers, Lieut. Col. G. Thomsen von Colditz, Maj. Felix Streckymans, Maj. W. L. Furbershaw, Maj. Hal D. Bargelt, Capt. Thomas F. Mullaney Jr., Capt. Harry Smyth and Lieut. Leigh Hunt.

After its reunion in Lake Forest over the holidays the Morse family again has scattered. Charles H. Morse and Charles Jr. left Sunday to continue their voyage down the Mississippi in young Mr. Morse's yacht, the Xanadu.

Wednesday Baron and Baroness Beck departed for Florida where they will go deep sea fishing off Useppa Island until the Xanadu arrives to pick them up for a cruise.

Mrs. Morse returns tomorrow from a flying trip to Omaha to see her other daughter, Mrs. William S. Covington. Mrs. Morse has not decided as yet whether she will join her family later in Florida.

Mrs. J. Ogden Armour is departing Monday for Phoenix, Ariz., to be away four or five weeks.

Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr. is waiting until the middle of February to go to Vero Beach, Fla. Her little son, Lowden, will accompany her, and two or three weeks later Mr. Madlener will go down with their daughter, Nancy, who is at the Girls' Latin school. This will be the Madlener's fourth season at the Vero Beach club, and they will remain there until spring.

Mrs. Jay Morse Ely and her daughters, Miss Caryl and Miss Adrienne Ely, are leaving today for New York. From there Mrs. Ely and her younger daughter will go down to their home at Thomasville, Ga., leaving Miss Caryl to continue her studies at Miss Hourigan's school until March, when she will join her mother and sister at Thomasville.

The Elys plan to return to Chicago the first of June, and will complete plans then for Miss Caryl's marriage some time during the summer to Fred W. Fairman Jr., who will be graduated from Yale in June.

Twenty-five days aboard the Columbus, cruising to South America, is the vacation to which Mrs. Charles M. Hewitt is looking forward. She is taking Mrs. James McLean with her and they are sailing from New York on Feb. 11.

Mrs. Edward C. Crossett and her daughter, Miss Carolyn Crossett, are leaving Monday evening for Phoenix. Mr. Crossett will join them there, and the first of February they will go on to California to visit Mrs. Crossett's mother, Mrs. James A. Rankin, who lives in Pasadena.

Miss Crossett will return to her studies at Bennington Feb. 20, and Mrs. Crossett will remain in California until April.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Moffett have returned from Palm Beach, where they spent the holidays with his parents, the James Moffetts.

Aids in Problem of Overweight

WOMAN'S DRESS.

If you find the proportions of your silhouette somewhat disconcerting when you are about to decide on a new frock, this model, pattern No. 3316, will solve the problem remarkably well. Its graceful lines are especially designed to conceal overweight, and are suitable for many afternoon and informal evening occasions.

This frock is especially lovely in black silk crêpe, because the color is slenderizing. The only contrast suggested is in the form of two clips at the neckline, in the choice of which you may follow the dictates of your own taste. Printed silk, in dark shades, would be attractive also, especially for the spring season to come.

Style No. 3316 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 5 yards of 39 inch material.

'True' Colors Best Choice of the Brunette

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Brunettes are said to be the easiest and the most difficult type woman to dress. On one hand, almost every style and color is thrown wide open to the brunette. On the other hand, she may take this indulgence too much for granted and go berserk with her liberties. She is the woman, it would appear from recent charges, who may turn up at the party's psychological moment all dressed up like Mrs. Astor's horse. Believing the world is her oyster, she takes oyster and shell and succeeds in making a stew of it all. Anyway, that's what a well known couturier says by way of warning the brunette.

At that, however, they are the favored of the gods as far as color is concerned. And if they choose to go exotic, none can do it better than the tall, slinky, dark eyed one.

The brunette is charted off into three groups: the sleek haired sophisticates, the dignified type who goes in for plainer things, and the brunette who achieves no distinction whatever. Yes, it is admitted that there is a number of the latter, women who refuse to take advantage of the liberties that are peculiarly those of the dark haired one. In this last named group, one finds the brunette with sallow color who adopts dead dull browns, grays, blues, and shoddy blacks, a crime against womanhood, as our informant calls it, which should be made punishable by law, he adds. Better if she would dash out and buy herself a scarlet costume than be found in the shades named.

An incidental point brought out by the same authority is that all women, blonde, brunette, or redhead, should be fined for choosing muddy grays and muddy beiges. "Get your gray and beige a clear tone or leave it out of the wardrobe entirely," is the advice offered. Only a woman with vivid coloring of her own could possibly get away with the muddy tones and even she would look better in the clear colors.

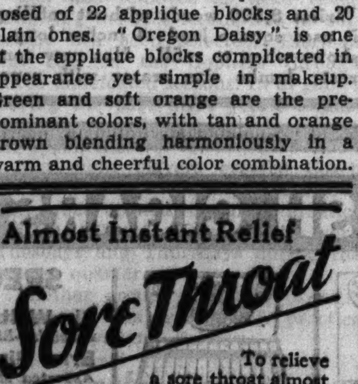
Beautiful Daisy Design Is Native Quilt of Oregon

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.



Oregon Daisy

BY NANCY CABOT.

One of the attractive quilt blocks which come from Oregon is the beautiful "Oregon Daisy." As far as is known, there is no flower by that name, but the quilt design is sufficiently beautiful to allow such poetic license for the title. The quilt is composed of 22 applique blocks and 20 plain ones. "Oregon Daisy" is one of the applique blocks complicated in appearance yet simple in makeup. Green and soft orange are the predominant colors, with tan and orange brown blending harmoniously in a warm and cheerful color combination.

Richard Crooks Ill, So Joe Bentonelli Gets Chance at Met

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The fates smiled again tonight on Joseph Bentonelli, handsome young tenor who is just plain Joe Benton to the folks back home in Norman, Okla.

"Sure," said Bentonelli.

Girls Invite Attitude They Find in Beaux

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Who is right and who is wrong? I have been going to dances and parties for a year and, of course, meet men. I am almost sure to get them to fall for me if I want them to. They treat me respectfully at first. Nothing is too good for me. All the way home, they ask for early dates. Then, when we get to the door, they get fresh. They want a lot of loving. When I object, they just up and leave and I don't hear from them again. Some of them say nasty things about me leading them on, and I never will get a boy friend if that's the way I intend to treat them. What I want to know is, should I let them make love to me, or continue to be cool and keep them in their place?"—Carol.

Now, Carol, you're a grown woman. You know what's right and what isn't. Do we need to tell you what's wrong? Your system with the young men is where the trouble lies. You set out to "make them," according to your own confession. You string them along, as the men testify. You encourage them into thinking you're the kind of girl with whom they can get fresh, and then get on your high horse when they do. You see, we know your kind and we think, along with the men who've taken you home, that you are cheaters. You play one rôle and then try the opposite right on top of the first.

In this stringing along, you girls say and do things that suggest you've been around. You act as if you are one of the easy-approach sisters and talk your experiences afterward, not out of a fine resentment, but because you like to brag about how the men fall. It's no conquest to have a man ask for familiarities. Any feminine tramp can have all that kind of attention she wants. So, were we you, we would put the soft pedal on such recitations. They never reflect well on the woman.

◆

We may be wrong in our judgment as it affects you personally Carol. But we'd suggest that you try a little more dignified demeanor in the beginning of these acquaintances and see if you, the woman, hasn't much to do with the follow-up behavior.

Eagles Convention.

The Fraternal Order of Eagles will hold its national convention at the Hotel Morrison from Aug. 13 to 17, it was announced yesterday.

Character of Child Built by Daily Guidance

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

But you don't need a book on character—a separate book just on building character. You're building it all the time. You couldn't help it, even if you wanted to.

You can't build character separately—I mean just build character all by itself. It comes in along with other things—it's a sort of byproduct. For instance:

Do you always keep your word to your child? Do you teach him to keep his to you? Then you're building his character in that respect.

Do you always speak the truth? And do you gently lead him to do the same? Then you're building his character.

◆

Do you expect him to do certain essential things, whether he wants to or not? Then you're building his character by helping him to develop self-discipline.

Do you train him to walk softly, and talk quietly when his father has a headache? Then you're building his character by teaching him considerateness.

Do you expect him, when he's old enough, to save for some big thing he wants? Then you're building in him an important phase of character by teaching him to deny himself trivial pleasures for a more worthwhile satisfaction.

◆

Do you, little by little, inculcate the difference between "mine" and "thine?" Then you're building his character by teaching him honesty in material things.

Do you, as the occasion arises, try to teach him to think honestly? Do you help him to avoid hurting those he loves? Do you encourage perseverance? Do you try to make him glad to help others?

Of course you do. All day long, when you guide your child through the routines of everyday living such as eating, sleeping and bathing, as well as in your light or serious minutes together, you're doing all these things.

Fossil of Earliest of Mammals Will Be Exhibited Today

A nearly complete mounted fossil skeleton of the Titanoides faberi, one of the earliest and least known of the large mammals, will be placed on exhibition today in the Ernest R. Graham hall of paleontology in the Field Museum of Natural History.

The Titanoides, which lived in the Paleocene period, about 50 to 60 million years ago, is utterly unlike any modern animal, and the reconstructed fossil is of special interest to the scientific world, said Elmer S. Riggs, associate curator of paleontology. The skeleton was mounted by Bryan Patterson of the museum staf, who discovered and excavated it in Colorado, near Grand Junction, in 1933.

The Titanoides was about eight and a half feet long and four feet high. Its head and neck were small, the body stout, the legs and feet large and massive. Studies indicate that the mammal frequented low, swampy ground, and was probably a good swimmer.

MERCHANTS TELL GROWING MENACE OF JAPS' EXPORTS

Cheap Textile Products Undermining Market.

A determined drive by Japanese manufacturers to gain a foothold in the American domestic market, particularly in the textile field, is definitly under way and already has gained considerable momentum, merchandisers in Chicago said yesterday.

As an evidence of the vigor with which the Japanese are working into the market, the head of one of the largest retail establishments in the city displayed a letter he had just received from an exporter in Tokio listing more than 170 separate items which, according to the communication, could be imported into the United States "with unusual profit."

A growing list of low priced Japanese textiles is now on the retail market in Chicago and with the rapid improvement in oriental manufacturing technique many buyers are predicting a flood of imported goods this year which will have a drastic effect on the manufacturers of many lines of American cotton, woolen, and rayon goods.

Underbid Domestic Producers.

New samples of Japanese products displayed in the last few weeks show a big improvement over the quality of earlier imports and prices are quoted so low that domestic producers will be unable to meet the competition, it was stated by several merchants. The belief that Japan would not be able to produce suitable goods for the American market, inspired by the inferior quality and poor workmanship of previous imports, must be changed, they say.

The ability of the Japanese to compete successfully in the low price textile field, despite present tarifs, must now be recognized, the merchants state, adding that serious consequences to American manufacturers can be averted only by raising tarifs or imposing definite restriction quotas. As a rule they favor higher tarifs.

Cheap Labor Is Big Factor.

Several reasons were advanced to explain how the Japanese can buy cotton in America, ship it to the orient, process it, and then return the manufactured article to these shores and sell it at a profit, despite tarifs ranging from 15 to 70 per cent—and at a price still under that quoted by the domestic producer. The chief reason, it was said, is the extremely low cost of Japanese labor. Another is that their machinery is more modern and efficient.

The rise in textile prices here, partly a result of New Deal activities such as agricultural restrictions which boosted prices of raw materials, have been a contributing factor, several buyers said.

One buyer familiar with Japanese textile plants said that labor costs there are less than one-fifth of those in the United States. Whereas a woman worker in a domestic textile mill is paid a minimum of $12 a week for a 40 hour week, the Japanese worker gets from $2 to $3 weekly for a 72 hour week.

One Woman, 60 Looms.

There are no trade union restrictions on operation of automatic looms and in some cases a Japanese woman will take care of 50 or 60 looms. In the United States, this buyer pointed out, one woman operative will have 10 to 15 fewer looms, and where there are no automatic looms installed the number of looms for each operator is much smaller.

A trip through several department stores in the outlying districts showed that many Japanese textile items are now on merchants' shelves. Relatively few have yet reached the large downtown stores.

Yard goods, socks, gloves, tablecloths, and handkerchiefs were on display in many establishments, and department managers said that a marked increase has taken place in recent weeks. They supplement a long list of novelties, toys, rubber goods, lether goods, and dishes which previously have comprised the bulk of Japanese imports.

One store had several counters of men's socks on display and a large proportion of the lower priced articles were from Japan. Cotton socks were on sale as low as 6½ cents a pair, and a cotton and rayon mixture of better quality was priced at 11 cents a pair. The 11 cent socks compared favorably in quality and workmanship with domestic socks of similar texture at 15 cents a pair.

Socking America.

The buyer said that Japanese rayon plaited socks can be purchased wholesale at 85 to 90 cents a dozen pairs, whereas a similar domestic article would require a price of $1.15 to $1.20 a dozen wholesale.

Japanese made handkerchiefs are on sale at 2½ cents apiece. Many handkerchiefs now made in this country are manufactured from cloth imported from Japan, although it is impossible for the inexperienced buyer to distinguish them from domestic articles, as they do not carry the "Made in Japan" label required on imported merchandise. One merchandiser said that a substantial proportion of all low priced handkerchiefs made in this country are from cloth fabricated in Japan.

Japanese yard goods on sale here on a price basis consist chiefly of white muslin and sheeting, it was said. However, recent samples of ginghams and percales have impressed merchants, who forecast that a large quantity of these goods will soon be imported.

Big Margin on Yard Goods.

A retailer who had a small stock of Japanese made muslin priced at 15 cents a yard said that it compared favorably with a domestic product that must be sold at 2 or 3 cents more a yard. The Japanese, he said, are underselling American manufacturers on cheap yard goods from ½ cent to 2 cents a yard. Woolen gloves can be imported at from 10 to 40 per cent under domestic prices.

While the total volume of imported textiles from Japan is not large when compared with the aggregate textile output in the United States, concentration on a few lines already has had a harmful effect on some American manufacturers. This is true of producers of socks, gloves, and handkerchiefs, it was said.

The Japanese producer, buyers say, does little creative or original work in designing goods, but he does excellent work in copying other articles. The letter from the Tokio exporter referred to above asked for articles to copy.

Ready to Make Anything.

His letter said: "If you will send us your counter sample of any particular article that you think you would be interested in importing from Japan we would immediately report to you the cost of making such in Japan. We don't care what the article is."

Among the articles which the exporter offered were the following:

- Socks
- Underwear
- Handkerchiefs
- Tablecloths
- Napkins
- Towels
- Collars
- Bathing suits
- Sweaters
- Neckties
- Mufflers
- Blankets
- Raincoats
- Soap
- Cameras
- Suspenders
- Pencils
- Stationery
- Medical supplies
- Lether goods
- Rubber goods
- Toys
- Toilet articles
- Hardwares

Japanese goods reaching Chicago come chiefly from New York, where they are shipped to importers via the Panama canal. Others are sent by rail from the west coast. Wholesalers and jobbers, most of whom have representatives in Japan, receive their merchandise direct from the Japanese exporter or manufacturer.

DRIVE AGAINST JAPAN IN N. CHINA RAISES ANGER OF MILITARISTS

TIENTSIN, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The newborn North China administration, already tottering under the impact of renewed Japanese pressure, seemed headed for a crisis today with an announcement that the Japanese army would deliver a vigorous protest against alleged anti-Japanese activities.

Sweeping charges were drawn up by the Japanese military against the army of Gen. Sung Cheh-yuan, chairman of the semi-autonomous political council for Hopi and Chahar provinces.

The controversy arose from two incidents—alleged firing on Japanese officers by troops of Gen. Sung as the Japanese entered Pieping Sunday night, and an alleged insult to the Japanese flag at Taku, east of here, by Sung's soldiers.

Chinese sources disputed the Japanese versions of both incidents, and informed sources said the outlook for amicable Chinese-Japanese relations in this area was becoming even darker.

SILVER SKATES RACES ATTRACT 4,596 ENTRIES

19th Derbies to Start Tomorrow.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The nineteenth annual Silver Skates derbies, which will be held tomorrow and Sunday afternoons at Garfield park, will have 4,596 boys and girls competing for the 35 major prizes and the hundreds of gold medals to be awarded winners of preliminary races. This is the second largest entry ever received for The Tribune's derbies.

For the first time in the history of Silver Skates, each contestant has filed his address, and for this reason it is apparent that the list of contestants does not include any individual who does not intend to report for the preliminary events. When entries were taken without addresses the percentage of those reporting for the races was about half. The number reporting for the derbies this year is expected to be about 70 per cent of the total registration.

Record Set in 1931.

Thirteen hundred more have signed for the races than registered last year. The record entry of 4,829 was established in 1931 when the boys' midget class was started. The number actually skating tomorrow and Sunday undoubtedly will break all records. This will be due to the weather, for Chicago is having real winter the first time in six years. Forecasts indicate freezing weather over the week-end and there is eight inches of ice on the lagoon.

The registration for Silver Skates last year was 3,274. The number of contestants this year is divided as follows among the seven age classes:

Boys' midget [under 12]	616
Boys' juvenile [12 and 13]	823
Boys' junior [14 and 15]	1,074
Boys' intermediate [16 and 17]	753
Men's senior [18 and over]	772
Girls' junior [under 16]	324
Girls' senior [16 and over]	234

Boys' Race Tomorrow.

The first three boys' classes, midget, juvenile, and junior, will report tomorrow for their preliminary races. They must check in with the clerks between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. The first trial is scheduled for 2 o'clock. If necessary, however, the races will be started earlier. On Sunday contestants report at Garfield park between 10:30 a. m. and 12:30 p. m. and the first event will start a half hour later.

Nathan Balter, district supervisor of the Chicago Park district, yesterday had a crew of 50 men working on the course. With freezing weather, the ice will be excellent, for no one was permitted to skate yesterday on the portion of the lagoon reserved for the races. Police will patrol the course tomorrow and Sunday.

At least 50,000 are expected to watch the races on Sunday when the seven championships will be decided. A splendid view of the races may be obtained from the banks of the lagoon.

Street car, elevated, and buses may be used to reach Garfield park. The No. 31 Washington buses will stop in front of the headquarters. Madison street cars pass within a half block and the Hamlin avenue station of the Lake street elevated is one block north of the building where skaters receive their instructions.

Skaters from Five States.

Skaters from five of the central states have registered for the races in addition to several from Ontario. The ability of the contestants, particularly in the men's senior and girls' senior events, makes the Silver Skates Derbies supreme in ice skating. There is no other event in winter sports as popular.

The races are sanctioned by the Illinois-Western Skating association and members of this organization together with members of THE TRIBUNE A. A. will conduct the contests. All boys and girls, 16 years of age and over, must register with the Illinois-Western association. This registration may be made Sunday.

Pennsylvania Decides to Have No Football Captain

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Breaking a sixty year precedent, the University of Pennsylvania will be without a regular football captain next season. This was decided tonight at the football dinner tendered the varsity players, when the latter took a vote.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

AN UNDERSTANDING BOSS.

FRIEND ARCH: Well, Arch, I received your note in reply to my letter telling you how badly I was feeling and how perhaps I would do better in another climate, and I certainly appreciate your understanding attitude in the matter.

While you say I look better than you have seen me look for a year or more, you are quite willing to believe there may be embryonic ailments not yet developed which might be arrested by a winter trip, and suggesting Florida rather than California because the Rose Bowl football is over and the Chicago Bears are not on the Pacific coast this winter. That's all right with me.

You didn't state when you thought I ought to start, but said "Let your conscience be your guide"—and I didn't quite know whether there was any hidden meaning in that—so I figured you probably would want me to work hard and get you a story on the opening of the racing season at Hialeah track near Miami next Thursday.

Well, Arch, I'll try to arrange that, too, although naturally I have many things to do before departing, since it's all so sudden—my weakened nervous condition and your thinking that I ought to go away. And I'll write you about those tall pines on the auto driveway entrance to Hialeah, because some one told me the hurricane wasn't nice to them.

There's another little thing I hate to speak about. It's money. Do you suppose you could ask the auditor to advance me the amount of my next pay check? Unless Florida has changed, I haven't quite enough jingle on hand to improve the breed of thoroughbreds very materially. You know how it is about money after Christmas, although, at that, you've never had a daughter married in December in addition.

Well, Arch, I'll go ahead now with departure plans, arranging moratoriums, if possible, with my creditors, and let you know when I can get away. I'm sorry to be broke and have to ask an advance, but you know how it is. Hoping you are the same. Regards, Harvey T. Woodruff.

Twelfth Night.

Upon a heap of ashes
There lies the Christmas tree,
Stripped of the shining trinkets
That made it fair to see.
But yesterday the center
Of gayety and light,
Dripping with gold and silver
And starred with tapers bright.

Now, changed like Cinderella,
When from the castle tower
With booming notes disastrous
The clock had struck the hour.
Still on the withering branches
Some shreds of tinsel gleam,
Like bits of happy memories
Or remnants of a dream. T. R. E.

Resume Play Today for 3 Cushion Title.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Willie [The Kid] Hoppe, first of all boy wonders who have come trooping down the years of sport since the turn of the century, is still a boy wonder, for all the 48 years under his silvered poll. The veteran New Yorker, who was doing tricks with a cue before many of his present day contemporaries were born, proved that again yesterday by taking a 28 point lead over Champion Welker Cochran in the first two blocks of their challenge match for the world's three cushion title in the grand ballroom of the Sherman hotel.

After Referee Charles McElligott had tolled off sufficient points for Willie to take the afternoon block of the six block, 360 point match, by a score of 60 to 41 in 57 innings, the champion and challenger adjourned until the evening. Hoppe appeared to have lost his touch for the moment in the early innings, but he came back and built up a lead which Cochran never was able to overcome. Willie made his 60th point in the 69th inning, while Cochran could do no better than 51 for the evening's work.

Two More Blocks Today.

Willie thus has a total of 120 against Cochran's 92, with four blocks still remaining before Hoppe can capture the one championship of them all which he never has been able to win. Two of these 60 point blocks will be played today, one beginning at 3 p. m., and the other at 8:30, with the same schedule being repeated for the final blocks tomorrow. Cochran won the title in the regular world's tournament held here in November, and Hoppe earned the right to challenge by finishing as runner-up.

Hoppe, having won the lag for the opening shot of the match, scored his 60th point in the 57th inning of the afternoon block, so that the unfinished run of one opened the evening block with the balls spotted just as he left them at the conclusion of the first block. This procedure will be followed throughout the match.

Cochran's Lead Vanishes.

Cochran broke out in front, 11 to 8, in the eighth inning of the afternoon game, but that was the last time he was to lead during the entire day. While Hoppe was slowly picking off a shot here and there, Cochran was bogged down in a slough of ciphers, running up 12 in a row from the eighth through the 20th. The closest he came to the challenger in the afternoon was at 31 to 40 in the 40th inning, and shortly after that he failed to score a point in seven straight innings.

The evening block promised a deal more of excitement in the first dozen innings, which found the Hoppe touch slightly absent, not to mention the fact that the cautious Cochran was leaving little, if anything, on the table on which Willie might construct a cluster.

From the 8th through the 16th, Hoppe couldn't bring down a point, but in the following six innings, he collected 17, including an "umbrella" shot which gave him a margin of 85 to 63. At the 53d inning, he held a 30 point advantage over the champion, and then, in the 54th, set the audience of 800 in an uproar with another version of the "umbrella" performance, his cue ball bounding off the left rail, striking the top rail, then the object ball, next both rails in the corner, and finally the spot ball.

Bierman Won't Talk on Offer from Tulane

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Bernie Bierman, Minnesota football coach, tonight flatly refused to discuss a published report that Tulane athletic authorities had offered him a $15,000 a year contract for 10 years.

The Gopher coach, who admitted several days ago that Tulane authorities had talked to him at the annual meeting of the National Football Coaches' association in New York, said: "I have nothing to say whatever."

McCormick in Dark.

Frank G. McCormick, Minnesota athletic director, also stated he knew nothing about the situation. He refused to discuss it beyond that. It was learned, however, from a source close to the coach, that Tulane still is seeking Bierman and that the southern institution recently has been in touch with him.

Bierman came to Minnesota from Tulane at a salary of $7,500 a year in 1932, following his success with Green Wave teams from 1927 through 1931.

Gophers Have Great Record.

Cox was removed as head coach following the 1935 season and no successor has been selected. Bierman has coached the Gophers through three undefeated seasons. In 24 games during the past three years, Minnesota has scored 527 points to 116 for all opponents.

Sixty-eight players greeted Coach Bierman today as the Minnesota football squad opened its winter practice session. The first squad will work Tuesdays and Thursdays during the winter quarter.

Another group, consisting of inexperienced players, will practice Wednesdays and Fridays.

Tris Speaker Appointed to Cleveland Ring Board

Cleveland, O., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Tris Speaker, one of baseball's greatest stars and former manager of the Cleveland Indians, was appointed chairman of the Cleveland Boxing commission by Mayor Harold H. Burton today. Speaker is in the wholesale liquor business here.

EDUCATOR RAPS CHEER LEADERS AS GRIDIRON EVIL

Abolish Paid Coaches with Them, Pritchett Urges.

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The elimination of not only paid coaches and gate receipts from college football, but also cheer leaders is urged by Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, president emeritus of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

Dr. Pritchett, who headed the Carnegie Foundation in 1929 when it issued its famous bulletin 23, expressed his current views in the latest issue of the Harvard Alumni Bulletin. He wrote on the general topic of "College Ideals of Sportsmanship."

"Our football simply is not a gentlemen's game," he stated. "That is the plain truth. The American boy is regimented by a paid coach, written up in lurid columns of the daily newspaper, fed at a special table—all in order to be offered up at a show that will command the largest gate receipts.

Points to English Methods.

"The time has come when American institutions of learning should deal with this question of competitive sports sincerely and courageously.

"The way to bring football and other competitive sports back to the status of a game rather than of a business is to follow the example set by our English cousins in their public schools and colleges. That is to abolish the professional coach and gate receipts.

"If coaching is done at all, let it be done by some old grad who does it for love and not for money."

"If there is any sign more repugnant to good sportsmanship than the frenzied action of these leaders and directors of cheering, it would be hard to imagine. Under this vulgar development the visiting team often times has to contend not only with the home team but also the organized participation of an artificially stimulated audience.

Criticizes Yale Booing.

"A good, honest, spontaneous cheer from an audience is a joy, but the cheer leader with his megaphone ought to be eliminated in the interest of sportsmanship and of decency."

Bulletin 23 criticized the football methods of many specific colleges, but Dr. Pritchett singled out only Yale in his current article.

"The booing in the Yale Bowl last spring in a game in which the visiting Cambridge [England] Rugby team played must have shocked the English participants," he declared. He described intersectional football games as "trials of strength between rival trainers, the whole hippodrome performance being unworthy of a university."

NATIONAL PREP FOOTBALL RULES BOARD GATHERS

The football rules committee of the National Federation of High School Athletic Associations will meet today at the Palmer house to consider proposed changes, most of them of minor importance, in its playing code.

H. V. Porter, Chicago, secretary of the group, said answers to questionnaires indicated the committee would devote most of its two day meeting to safety measures. Forward pass rules will be clarified, Porter said.

The intermissions between periods of prep games in states which have accepted the national federation code as official probably will be lengthened. Instead of one minute between the first and second, and third and fourth periods, the interval probably will be lengthened to two or three minutes. The 12 minute intermission between halves probably will be increased to 15 minutes.

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Johnny Gottselig tonight brought the Blackhawks into the thick of the battle for second place in the United States division of the National Hocky league by scoring all his team's goals as Chicago defeated the New York Americans, 4 to 1.

Some 8,000 fans roared their acclaim as Gottselig sniped a pretty goal past Roy Worters in the New York cage early in the first period. Gottselig added another in the second and climaxed his brilliant night's play with two more in the final period. Howie Morenz, speedy Chicago center, earned assists on the first and third goals, but Johnny made the others unassisted after spectacular stickhandling.

Chapman Scores for New York.

Art Chapman made the American goal near the end of the first session, following a neat passing bout with Lorne Carr and Sweeney Schriner.

The victory placed Chicago within one point of the second place New York Rangers. The Rangers, however, have played two games more than the Hawks.

The Americans dominated the early minutes of the opening period, but their attack lacked finish and it was the Blackhawks who opened the scoring. Gottselig took a pass from Morenz and drove it through a group of players and into the New York cage at 5:30.

Americans Tie Score.

With five minutes of the period remaining, the Americans drove in on the Chicago defense four and five strong. Their efforts were rewarded at 17:10 when Chapman tied the score after a snappy passing bout around the cage. Schriner and Carr earned assists.

In the early minutes of the second period neither cage was seriously threatened until Emms drew a penalty for cross-checking Morenz. While the Americans were shorthanded McFadyen had a fine chance to put the Hawks in front, but he overskated a perfect pass from Romnes.

The Hawks shot to the front when Gottselig stickhandled beautifully around the New York defense and while spinning like a top scored a goal that brought him a great hand from the crowd. Goalie Worters was beaten completely on the shot, but Gottselig got a nasty bump when he finished his scoring effort and fell backward on his head. He left the ice but remained on the bench after treatment. The goal came at 12:33.

Hawks Increase Lead.

Coulter and Tommy Cook caught the Americans flat-footed in the Chicago end zone after the third period started, but after passing the lone New York defender Cook's scoring effort was blocked when Worters dived out to smother the puck.

Gottselig broke away with Morenz and made another brilliant goal at 4:51. He took Morenz' short forward pass, feinted Worters dizzy and then banged the rubber in the far, low corner for his third marker.

HEAVIES TO MEET IN TEN FIGHTS AT STADIUM TONIGHT

Beaupre, Treest, Kranz Head Program.

The third round of the heavyweight elimination tournament to locate opposition for Joe Louis will be presented tonight at Chicago Stadium. Ten bouts at five rounds each, featuring seven second round winners and thirteen new candidates, will comprise the program.

Tom Beaupre, Dallas, Tex.; Billy Treest, Batavia, Ill., and Jack Kranz, Gary, Ind., will appear in three of the main matches, the former against Harold Anderson of Flint, Mich., Treest against Happy Alhgrim, Pennsgrove, Pa., and Kranz against Cowboy Frank Edgren of Cheyenne, Wyo. Previous winners on the program in addition to Beaupre and Treest, include Harry Thomas, Eagle Bend, Minn.; Frank Androff, Minneapolis; Johnny Erjavec, Duluth; Izzy Singer, New York, and Joe Ketchell, Cleveland.

Seek More Knockouts.

Beaupre will be making his second start in the tourney. He knocked out Jerry Johnson to share the spotlight at the Stadium last Thursday with Treest. Treest, 1934 Chicago Golden Gloves middleweight champion, knocked out Smoky Maggard. The victory was his second in the tourney and his second as a heavyweight.

Kranz is receiving the attention of fans because of his ability to go the scheduled distance of eight rounds against Louis at Marigold Gardens one year and a half ago without being floored. He is expected to be given a hard fight by Edgren, experienced Wyoming fighter.

Next Round Jan. 24.

Winners tonight will be advanced to the next round, scheduled for Jan. 24.

The card:

Tom Beaupre, Dallas, vs. Harold Anderson, Flint.
Billy Treest, Batavia, vs. Happy Alhgrim, Pennsgrove.
Jack Kranz, Gary, vs. Frank Edgren, Cheyenne.
Frank Androff, Minneapolis, vs. Woody White, Evansville.
John Erjavec, Duluth, vs. Archie Peeveler, Wheeling.
Izzy Singer, New York, vs. Buddy Knox, Dayton.
Tom Brown, Houston, vs. Al Barbara, New York.
Cy Vester, Hibbing, vs. Joe Ketchell, Cleveland.

A professional wrestling show will be offered at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, and an amateur boxing card is booked at Madison Athletic club, 4711 West Madison street, tonight. The mat card:

Jack Zeravich vs. Chris Stannos, Jim Jerios vs. Jack Ross, Pete Holtz vs. Jack Ruess, Walter Billetter vs. Dick McCarthy, and Pete Leeys vs. Johnny Forman.

The amateur program includes:

Audrey [Kid] Martin, Beckley, W. Va., yesterday was substituted for Frank Sagilio in a ten round bout against Scotty McLean at Cicero stadium tomorrow. Sagilio has been forced off the card because of illness. . . . A new opponent is being sought to oppose Bob La Monte for ten rounds at Marigold Gardens Monday, following information that Pat Murphy will be unable to go through with the assignment. . . . Edwin Waling, Detroit junior lightweight, and Tony Michaels, Ashtabula, O., will meet for five rounds in the semifinal.

Lou Halper, Newark, N. J., will be Champion Barney Ross' foe in a ten round nontitle match at Philadelphia Jan. 27. . . . Eddie Siegal, former representative of Joe Louis, has taken over the direction of Adam Smith, heavyweight, and Ario Soldati, light heavyweight, both graduates of Chicago Golden Gloves tournaments.

Retzlaff and Louis Pound Sparmates

Joe Louis resumed training yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium after resting Wednesday while Charley Retzlaff continued drills at Madison Square loop gymnasium for their scheduled 15 round encounter at Chicago Stadium one week from tonight. Both fighters showed to advantage.

A large crowd watched Retzlaff make an impressive showing in sparring two rounds each with Art Sykes and John Brown and one with Rocky Adams. The fans then went to Louis' training quarters and helped jam the gymnasium to capacity while the 1934 Chicago Golden Gloves champion boxed six rounds, two each with Tom Jones, Otis Thomas and Tiger Henderson. Joe started the workout unimpressively but finished it by handing Henderson a severe beating, having him on the verge of a knockout in the final round.

Charley Has a Wallop.

While Louis is resting today Charley, also a Golden Gloves alumnus will increase his boxing.

Retzlaff knocked down Brown twice and the general opinion was that he had floored Sykes, but Art denied that he had fallen from the impetus of a punch, holding that he had slipped. Charley did the damage with short rights to the head.

After the workout Retzlaff said his good showing was due to the fact that he didn't try to change his style as he had on Wednesday.

Tries Something New.

"The reason I didn't look so hot yesterday," Charley said, "was because I was attempting to try some new maneuvers. Heck, how can a fellow who has been boxing along certain lines throughout his career change it for one fight? I'm going to fight Louis as I've learned to fight all my previous foes. The pre-battle strategy can go hang."

Retzlaff probably will receive his highest purse in his five year professional career for the Stadium fight. He will be paid 17½ per cent of the net receipts. In case the bout is fought before a capacity crowd, which appears fairly certain at this stage, Charley would earn more than $10,000.

ENLARGE TRACK FOR AUTO RACING PROGRAM SUNDAY

The auto racing track at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, will be enlarged for the racing program Sunday night, Thorne Donnelly, president of the Chicago Auto Racing association, announced yesterday.

The enlarged track will give greater racing room on the straightaways and cut down the skidding areas on the turns.

In addition to the 40 lap main event race, which will again accommodate sixteen entries, Donnelly has scheduled a challenge match race between Snyder and Mills; an intercity race with drivers from Chicago, Milwaukee, and Indianapolis, and a hare and hounds race, with Jimmy Rogers of Melrose Park again acting as the bait. Racing starts at 8:30 o'clock.

C. Y. O. Boxing Team to Meet Omaha Tonight

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Chicago's Catholic Youth Organization boxing champions will meet the first opposition of their trip to California when they face an all-star squad from the Omaha territory here tomorrow night.

The Omaha team will be led by Paul Hartnek, Creighton university heavyweight who was runnerup to Lorenzo Pack of Detroit in last year's Chicago Golden Gloves tournament. Hartnek will tackle Mike Adler.

Sixteen of the 19 boxers on the C. Y. O. squad will see action, including all of the class A champions except Tony Carlucci, who is suffering from a face infection. Johnny Brown will be the C. Y. O. featherweight, meeting Benny Floyd of Calrinda, Ia., who reached the quarter finals in the Chicago Golden Gloves last winter as an Iowa City representative.

Andy Scrivani, C. Y. O. captain and lightweight, will meet a tough foe in Bob Morley, Sioux City champion. Frank Kainrath will oppose Clayton Johnson, hard hitting Sioux City colored boy.

Canadiens and Maroons Play 1-1 Deadlock

MONTREAL, Jan. 9. — (AP) — The Montreal Maroons moved a point nearer the Toronto Maple Leafs, leaders of the National Hocky league's Canadian division, as they played a 1 to 1 tie with their local rivals, the Canadiens, tonight. The draw enabled the Canadiens, beaten in two of three previous encounters, to retain a chance of winning the city championship for the season.

All the scoring came in the second period, with the Canadiens taking an early lead and the Maroons knotting the count in the last minute. Leroy Goldsworthy rounded the goal and scored the Canadien tally on a gang raid in which George Mantha and Irvin Frew drew assists. The same sort of play produced the Maroon goal, with Bob Gracie doing the shooting and Lionel Conacher, Gus Marker and Herb Cain getting assists.

Jack Kearns Sued by Lawyer for Divorce Fees

Attorney Albert Sabath filed suit in the Superior court yesterday to collect on a $3,000 note given him by Jack Kearns, fight manager, in 1932. Sabath represented Kearns in obtaining his divorce from Mrs. Legana Kearns and the note was signed for attorney fees, Sabath said. The lawyer said an additional $803 in interest is due.

Golden Gloves Entries Pour In; Hold Examination Soon

Entries continued to pour in yesterday for the ninth annual Golden Gloves amateur boxing bouts, which will start in Chicago on Feb. 10 as preliminary to the Tournament of Champions, which will climax the tournament on Feb. 24, 25, and 26 at the Chicago Stadium. Indications now are that the first medical examination for boxers will be held in about a week. It will be at Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street. Notice of the date will be sent to early entrants next week.

The first tournament, on Feb. 10, will start at the Madison Athletic club, 4711 West Madison street. Two rings will be used the first night on the west side, and in all there will be five nights of boxing. The tournament at White City will start on Feb. 11 with two rings. The White City meet, always the largest, because of the size of the south side territory, which includes all boys living south of the loop and south of the canal, will qualify two boys in each weight class in the open division for the Tournament of Champions.

North Side Starts Feb. 18.

The west and north side tournaments will qualify one boxer in each weight class. The north side meet will start at Loyola university gymnasium on Feb. 18.

Qualifiers for the Tournament of Champions will receive gold medals.

The awards for the champions of the open division in the tournament, which will bring together the title holders of 13 states, will be the same as those given every year since 1928, when the Golden Gloves bouts were established. The eight champions will receive diamond studded golden gloves. The runners-up will be awarded silver gloves set with an emerald, while the eight other boys chosen on the intercity team, which meets New York's Golden Gloves champions on March 23 in Madison Square Garden, will be awarded bronze gloves set with a ruby.

Parent's Consent Imperative.

No boxer can compete without the written consent of his parent or guardian. Parential consent blanks will be mailed to the contestants with the notices of the date of the physical examination and must be brought to that examination.

The Novice tournament, which annually attracts more than 1,500 boys in Chicago, does not qualify for the Tournament of Champions. The semifinals and finals, however, are held in conjunction with this tournament at the Stadium. These boys are awarded gold and silver medals and the tournament committee reserves the right to place any of these boys on the intercity squad if they prove they have sufficient ability.

File That Entry Now.

No Novice boxer ever has earned this right, but from the Novice tournament have come several youngsters who in later years have won open division titles.

While the date for the deadline for Golden Gloves entries has been set at Jan. 31, it is important to file your entry as early as possible. The first groups to pass the medical examinations and qualify for the trials will be permitted to choose the sections in which they wish to box. Later qualifiers will be assigned in order to keep the lists equal.

Pay Roll for Eight Tennis Troupers May Total $155,000

The eight professional tennis players, who will play at the International amphitheater, 41st and Halsted streets next Wednesday, represent a pay roll of $155,000.

Berkeley Bell, one of the recruits, is being paid $18,500. Lester Stoefen will receive $20,000 or if 12½ per cent of the gross is more than that sum, he gets the larger amount. Last year Stoefen received $22,000.

Ellsworth Vines is to receive 20 per cent of the total, the same as last year, which totaled up to $35,000 at the end of the tour. In his first year as a pro, Vines earned more than $100,000.

George Lott will receive a flat rate of $15,000 for his work. Bruce Barnes will receive $200 a week for thirty-nine weeks or a total guarantee of $7,800.

As for the girls, the promoters will write enough checks to make up a total of $15,000 for Mrs. Ethel Burkhart Arnold. Jane Sharp will draw down $350 a week for the twenty-six weeks, or $9,100.

Tilden is the half owner of the troupe, and will share the profits at the end of the tour, which in the past has netted him over $40,000.

Stacy, Detroit Lion Tackle, Will Marry Hawaii Girl

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP)—James William Stacy, tackle on the Detroit Lions professional football team, today filed notice of intention to wed Alberta Ann Stewart, attractive 19 year old nurse from Pepeeko, Hawaii. Stacy is a former football star of the University of Oklahoma.

DALE BEEDLE OF STANFORD IS SENT TO ASYLUM

San Jose, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Dale Dean Beedle, 20, right tackle on the Stanford university varsity football team and a participant in the New Year's day Rose Bowl victory over Southern Methodist, was committed to the Agnew state hospital for insane today by Superior Judge William F. James.

Judge James' action followed an examination by Drs. E. E. Porter and C. E. Moore. The warant charged Beedle with having hallucinations, talking irrationally, and of acts of violence.

He did not return from Pasadena with other members of the team. While en route to Palo Alto last night, train men said he created a commotion by throwing food around the cars, singing, and running up and down the train, awakening passengers.

Beedle was sent to Agnew in February, 1934, and spent two months there, later going to the Arizona state hospital for further treatment. He was released as completely recovered and physicians said playing football would prove of benefit to him.

Walter Hagen Loses Suit Against Baseball Club

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Walter Hagen, professional golfer, lost a damage suit against the Rochester Baseball club in Supreme court here today. The suit was the outgrowth of a deal in 1927 in which Hagen claimed to have paid $8,500 as part of an agreement to purchase the ball club. Justice Benn Kenyon dismissed the suit.

Tribune Offers New Handbook for Dog Raisers

BY BOB BECKER.

THE TRIBUNE'S new handbook on dogs has just been published and is now on sale. This guide for dog owners entitled "The Dog Book" contains 96 pages and 72 illustrations. It is on sale this morning at THE TRIBUNE public service offices at 1 South Dearborn street and in the lobby at Tribune Tower.

This handbook contains many valuable tips on buying a dog, how to feed and care for puppies and grown dogs, and how to housebreak a puppy. A chapter is devoted to feeding. Important topics taken up are: What the dog owner should feed puppies, the importance of meat in a dog's diet, a feeding schedule for puppies, why dogs will eat grass, and other subjects pertaining to feeding.

The first chapter contains a discussion of various breeds of dogs which will help a prospective owner select the type of dog he wants, compares the purebred dog with the crossbred or mongrel, and has a discussion of the cost of raising purebred dogs.

Another chapter is devoted to housebreaking, taking up several training procedures, a dog's "place manners," and a set of housebreaking hints under the title of "Don'ts in Housebreaking."

The final chapter deals with the care of the puppy, with information concerning grooming, bathing, fleas, worming, distemper, mischievousness, and information on dogs in relation to automobiles. In this chapter dog owners will find tips on the problem of dogs chasing automobiles.

"The Dog Book," which is a companion book to THE TRIBUNE'S fishing, bird, and hunting handbooks, costs 30 cents by mail, all orders and remittances to be sent direct to the Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street.

NORTHWESTERN SWIMMERS OPEN SEASON TONIGHT

The Northwestern university swimming team, relying heavily on sophomore material, will launch its season tonight at Wilmette against the Shawnee Country club team. The Shawnee squad is made up of former Wisconsin, Illinois, and Northwestern stars.

The meet will mark the beginning of Tom Robinson's 27th season as Northwestern swimming coach.

GARDEN ASSAILS BOXING BOARD; CALLS OFF SHOW

Ruling Against Bath Irks Kilpatrick.

The commission's refusal to license Hank Bath, California fighter matched with Red Burman of Baltimore in one of the feature bouts, was given as the reason.

Bath, managed by Jack Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey, was denied a license with the announcement that the commission was awaiting "further information" from California.

In canceling the entire card Col. Kilpatrick rapped Chairman John J. Phelan and Commissioner Bill Brown.

"We have been harassed by Phelan and Brown for two years," he said. "They have thrown every obstacle in our path that they could. This ridiculous and high-handed action is the last straw. This is the fifth Garden show they have killed in two years."

Kilpatrick listed the others as the Enzo Fiermonte and Maxie Rosenbloom, Bob Olin and John Henry Lewis, Sammy Fuller and Lou Ambers, and Tony Canzoneri and Frankie Klick bouts.

As a result of the latest brush with the commission the Garden will curtail its winter boxing program. Three boxing dates already have been rented for other attractions, and Col. Kilpatrick said he expects to rent others. Five remain.

Kilpatrick talked with Chairman Phelan again today and asked that the commission reconsider its action with respect to Bath. Phelan refused, although he admitted the chairman of the California boxing commission had telegraphed him that both Bath and Kearns are in good standing in California. Phelan hinted this conflicted with previous information.

It is likely Bath and Burman will put on their show in Chicago soon. Kilpatrick said Jim Mullen and Nate Lewis, Chicago promoters, would like to stage the match.

Commissioner Brown expressed surprise tonight that the Garden should let two preliminary fighters throw off an entire show.

Notre Dame Five Leaves for Pitt Battle Tonight

Notre Dame probably will start a senior combination, led by Co-Capt. Marty Peters, center, and Co-Capt. Johnny Ford, forward or guard. The seniors have lost four games in two years to the Panthers, including last year's game in which a faulty watch, which let the game run an extra 15 minutes, cost them a two point defeat. George Ireland, Frank Wade, and Johnny Hopkins will complete the lineup.

The Irish have cracked the Pittsburgh jinx in track, golf, cross-country, and football during the last year, and hope to make it a sweep by winning both basketball games this winter. Peters scored a field goal in the last minute of play to give the Irish a 9 to 6 victory in football, the first in their last four attempts against the Panthers.

HALL OF FAME BUSINESS ISN'T CINCH AFTER ALL

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Henry P. Edwards, veteran director of public relations of the American league and known the length and breadth of the land as one of the outstanding press agents who believe their own stuff, is in a terrible dither these days about that baseball hall of fame they are going to chisel on a statue at Cooperstown, N. Y.

About a month ago Mr. Edwards sent out a ballot containing the names of the 33 stars of the era from 1900 to 1935 he thought most eligible for nomination. Ever an accommodating soul, Henry not only picked out his list of redhot nominees but appended reasons why he thought his picks were the noblest of the noble. The list started with the name of the late Christy Mathewson, who Henry thought was a pretty good pitcher, and the current Aloysius Simmons, rated by him as a fine fielder.

Yelps Start Rolling In.

In the middle of the list were the names of three all time best catchers, Roger Bresnahan, Mickey Cochrane, and Lew Criger. There were several candidates for each position and Mr. Edwards explained that ten were to be voted for. It was not necessary to vote for men in each position. If one cared he might vote for Mr. Hank's eight outfielders and two third basemen.

Well, the saliva scarcely had dried on Mr. Edward's postage stamps when the yelps started rolling in.

How About it, Hank?

"Had Mr. Edwards, by any chance, heard of two fellows still working in his own league, one a tall fellow named Robert Moses Grove, who led the league on the earned run basis last season, and the other a slick hombre who is known in Detroit as Charley Gehringer?

"Had Mr. Edwards, in his research, ever come across the name of a Memphis resident known as Bill Terry, whose friends claim for him a certain knack in the matter of playing first base?"

These and other reminders poured in on Mr. Edwards. And Mr. Hank, being one of the most thorough students of baseball and its personnel in the world, became vexed and then insulted.

"The ballot did not say the voter had to vote for the players I listed," howled our conscientious friend. "I simply set down a bunch of the best names without any intention to lock out anybody. I am led to suspect that some of the electorate is very dumb."

Dashes off New List.

But the balloters still barked at Mr. Edwards. They would not be coerced, some said, and one more word out of Mr. Edwards and they would vote ten times for Jocko Conlan. [Not a bad idea, for in some respects Jocko is a champ, at that.]

Moreover, Mr. Edwards discovered that some of the calmer balloters were voting for an all star team, naming a star for each position and two pitchers. This further gummed up the works.

If you knew Henry you would realize by this time that he was getting pretty hysterical about the whole thing. After all, it isn't his monument they are erecting in Cooperstown and he is not going to chisel the names that are to constitute baseball's hall of fame.

Mr. Edwards has just decided that the balloters can skip the whole derned idea of his nominations and has sent out a brand new ballot. It contains simply ten dotted lines.

Tilden Scores 26-21 Victory Over Harrison

The senior division [formerly heavyweight] of the City High School Basketball league opened sectional play yesterday, with Tilden, defending champion, winning from Harrison, 26 to 21. The Techs took the lead in the first quarter and never relinquished it.

One of the biggest scores in the history or the league was made by Farragut when it romped over Washburne, 69 to 30. Eleven Farragut players scored one basket or more and seven registered one or more free throws.

Allison Gets First Place in Net Rankings

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The United States Lawn Tennis association today graded Wilmer Allison, Donald Budge, and Bryan Grant in that order in announcing the nation's first ten stars of 1935.

Allison's designation at the top marks the second straight year the 31 year old Austin, Tex., player has won the honors and the eighth successive time he has been included on the preferred list. He retained his position by a straight-set victory over Fred J. Perry of England in the semifinal round of the national championship and then walloping Sidney Wood in the final. In 1933 and 1932 he was ranked second; 1931, ninth; 1930, third; 1929, seventh, and 1928, fifth.

Budge and Grant Promoted.

The biggest promotions were handed to Budge and Grant, who were ranked ninth and tenth, respectively, in 1934.

The remainder of the makeup of the "first ten" comprises Frank X. Shields, fourth; Sidney Wood, fifth; Gregory Mangin, sixth; Frank Parker, seventh; J. Silbert Hall, eighth; Wilmer Hines, ninth, and Berkeley Bell, tenth. Bell quit the amateur ranks one month ago and will make his pro debut Saturday night.

As was expected, Champion Helen Hull Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., was placed at the head of the women's list for the fourth year in a row. The U. S. L. T. A. explained that Mrs. Helen Wills Moody was not ranked "because of insufficient data." Mrs. Moody confined her competitive play to England, where she won the Wimbledon title for the seventh time.

Wood Is Demoted.

Contrasting the rise of Grant and Budge is the demotion of Wood, who was ranked second in 1934. Wood experienced his poorest season since 1931, when he won the Wimbledon title. He went across with the Davis cup team, but stayed on the sidelines.

Mrs. Ethel Burkhardt Arnold, who turned pro last November, was ranked second to Miss Jacobs. The other members of the women's first ten are Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, Carolin Babcock, Mrs. John Van Ryn, Gracyn Wheeler, Mary Greef Harris, Mrs. Ary J. Lamme, and Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, in that order.

Robert Riggs of Los Angeles topped the junior division and the same position was accorded to Isadore Bellis of Philadelphia among the boys.

Grimm Leaves for Home, but He'll Be Back

Charley Grimm, manager of the Cubs, having had the pleasure of hearing his boss, P. K. Wrigley, say all of the 1935 National league pennant winners are to get salary raises, yesterday dashed for a train that will take him to his beloved St. Louis.

Charley expects to make one more trip to Chicago before he comes here to head his first squad to Catalina Island. Grimm and his pitchers and catchers will start on the first stage of the Cubs' See America spring training program on Feb. 18.

Contracts will be mailed today and, without exception, are expected to bounce back rapidly with signatures attached.

Injury Costs N. U. Services of Jake Nagode

Northwestern's basketball team will enter its opening conference game with Indiana at Bloomington tomorrow night minus the services of Jake Nagode, regular center. A sprained arch in his left foot has failed to respond to treatment. Nagode, a sophomore from Waukegan, received the foot injury prior to the Marquette game last week and has been kept out of practice since in order to give the foot a rest.

Jean Smith, a sophomore from Logansport, Ind., has been nominated to start in place of Nagode. Smith, a 6 foot 2 inch player, has seen considerable service as understudy to Nagode. In addition to being a good man at the center jump he also possesses a good shooting eye.

The remainder of the Wildcat lineup will consist of Mike McMichaels and Fred Trenkle, both sophomores, at the forwards, and Capt. Duke Vance and Babe Bender at the guards. The latter are juniors.

The Wildcats will leave for Bloomington tonight. The players who will make the trip are:

Forwards—Fred Trenkle, Mike McMichaels, Del Prendergast, Tug Blume. Centers—Jean Smith, Jake Nagode. Guards—Duke Vance, Babe Bender, Don Heap, and Guy Mercer.

Private School Basketball League Opens Play Today

The Private School Basketball league will open this afternoon with Central Y. M. C. A. Day High school opposing Luther institute at the Central Y. M. C. A. and North Park academy playing the Harvard School for Boys.

Loyola Visits Michigan State Floor Tonight

East Lansing, Mich., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The Michigan State basketball team will meet Loyola university of Chicago here tomorrow night.

Coach Ben Van Alstyne of the Spartans has shifted Maurice Buysee, who was the regular center two years ago and who has played that position so far this season, to forward.

Dorian Wilkinson has been moved up to first starting center from a reserve post. The remainder of the starting lineup is made up of Smith and Garlock at guards with Kraft at the other forward post.

State has played its best ball against the stiffest competition. The Spartans weren't given much of a chance against West Virginia earlier in the season but handed the Mountaineers a one point defeat.

GRAYSON MISSES SIGNAL, FIANCEE WAITS AN HOUR

While his fiancée, Christine Williams, lingered in the offing, Bobby appeared before the divorce court clerk an hour after the arrival of an all-star team to play local teams.

"I guess I made a mistake," he said.

OHIO MAY HOLD BIG TEN TRACK MEET AT NIGHT

Buckeye Coach Debates Change in Time.

Columbus, O., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Larry Snyder, track coach at Ohio State university, today was debating whether to hold the annual outdoor track meet of the Western conference at night. Snyder, with the consent of all Big Ten track coaches, is left to make the decision.

"If we hold the Big Ten track meet at night," Snyder said, "more people undoubtedly will attend. Night dual track meets are not new to the Western conference, although never before has a Big Ten carnival been staged at any time other than the afternoon and morning."

The Western conference championship meet has been awarded to Ohio State this year, but the Buckeye plant is not equipped with floodlights. Snyder, however, declared he already had sought estimates on lighting the meet which is scheduled for May 22 and 23.

"May weather at night should not be too chilly for the spectators, and the athletes will benefit from the cool of the evening," Snyder added. "As a rule, there is not so much breeze in the evening, and runners likely will receive more recognition for any record breaking times or marks they establish."

Michigan is the team to whip this year, Snyder believes, and the squad which piles up more points than the Wolverines is the next champion.

The answer to a question we've been asked 10,000 times

THOUSANDS of our friends—enthusiasts all for Four Roses—have asked us "Why is Four Roses a blend of straight whiskies?"

The answer is simple: Because our 70 years of experience in making fine whiskey have taught us that the proper blending of several top-grade American straight whiskies produces a better whiskey than any of those whiskies alone could be!

It's plain old-fashioned common sense. Fine champagne is a blend. Fine cognac is a blend. The finest American whiskey—and we mean Four Roses—is a blend. A blend of straight American whiskies.

Any one of the straight whiskies that go into Four Roses—and only straight whiskies do—is a superb whiskey on its own. But every whiskey has some outstanding characteristic—something extra in the way of flavor, aroma, smoothness, or body. By blending these whiskies together, the way we know how to blend them, we give to one magnificent liquor all the outstanding characteristics of the separate whiskies. We achieve a flavor finer by far than that of any of the whiskies alone.

That's why we offer Four Roses not as "a mighty good whiskey for the price" but as the finest whiskey you can lift to your lips, regardless of price. That's a large claim, we know. But it happens to be so. And we're confident that one taste of Four Roses will convince you it's so. Just try a bottle!

LAUGHING SUN'S STRONG FINISH WINS AT MIAMI

Miami, Fla., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Laughing Sun and Great Haste pounded through the stretch inches apart at Tropical Park today in the 6 furlong Aucilla purse, and the former racer managed to get his nose in front as the horses thundered past the judges. Bellum pulled in third, a good length behind the leaders.

Laughing Sun, owned by Mrs. W. Plunkett Stewart, New York, stepped over the three-quarters of a mile in 1:11, and when payoff time came his backers collected $5.10 for each $2 they invested. Miss A. Doris' Great Haste was practically an equal choice, although his returns, had he won, would have been 10 cents more for a $2 straight ticket.

The deciding factor in the hard drive down the stretch was the riding of the veteran Tom Malley on Laughing Sun. Malley kept his mount in a straight line and saved ground wherever possible throughout the trip.

Warren Jr. broke fast in the field of five—Colonel Ed was the other entrant—and showed the way for a quarter. Bellum was right up there in second position, while Laughing Sun was third. J. Stout, aboard Great Haste, moved his charge up on the far turn, and Laughing Sun followed suit. First one nose and then the other was in front, until Laughing Sun was lifted over the line by Malley's fine work right at the finish.

SARATOGA TRACK INCREASES VALUE OF FOUR STAKES

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The Saratoga Racing association, acting upon the suggestion of Racing Secretary John Campbell, today increased the value of four stakes at its annual meeting.

The Amsterdam claiming stakes and the Catskill were increased in value from $1,500 to $2,500, while the Mohawk claiming stake and the Seneca were boosted from $1,500 to $2,000. The distance of the Amsterdam also were lengthened from one mile to either one and one-eighth or one and one-quarter miles, while the Catskill, heretofore a seven furlong claiming race, was made a handicap.

The presidents of the five racing associations got together and decided on dates for 1936, but pending approval by the state racing commission, they were not announced. It is believed, however, that the season will open as usual at Jamaica the middle of April. The only change expected is that Belmont Park will operate its fall meeting the last two weeks in September, following Aqueduct.

WOOD IMPROVES AFTER OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS

Boone, Ia., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Sidney Wood, who today was ranked No. 5 among United States tennis players by the United States Lawn Tennis association, was reported improving after an emergency operation for appendicitis here last night.

Wood, accompanied by his wife, was on the way to California when he was stricken on a train. The train paused at Boone and the tennis star was hurried to the Boone County hospital, where physicians rushed him to the operating room.

Jayne Cummings Forced Out of Roller Derby

AMERICANS NAME SIX HORSES FOR GRAND NATIONAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Six racers owned by Americans today were listed among the 54 horses nominated for the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree March 27. Reynoldstown, owned by Major Noel, which won the 1935 event, was among those listed. Golden Miller, upon which millions of dollars were lost last year, also is nominated for the classic.

Of the six American horses, turf authorities today conceded that Bagatelle II., Alvin Untermeyer's clever jumper, would be a strong factor in the race, everything else being equal. John Hay Whitney named a pair of jumpers, Royal Ransom and Double Crossed.

STOCKS EASIER HERE AFTER 19 SET NEW HIGHS

Chicago Corp. Issues Lead in Activity.

Despite 19 new 1935-'36 highs and a continuation of active trading, prices were inclined to be slightly lower on the Chicago Stock Exchange yesterday. Forty issues advanced, 52 declined, and 38 were unchanged. Volume was 119,000 shares.

Chicago corporation common advanced fractionally to its best price since 1931 as 26,000 shares changed hands. The preferred was up almost a point and at a top since 1929. Cord edged up to another two year high but then sagged.

Issues Making New Highs.

Dayton Rubber and Merchants and Manufacturers were active on reports that they will be traded soon on the New York curb. The common stocks of both were up fractionally. Merchants and Manufacturers preferred jumped $3 and Dayton preferred gained a small fraction. All four were at highs for 1935 and 1936.

Great Lakes Dredge, Cities Service, and Central Illinois Securities common and preferred also touched new highs. Cities Service was unchanged for the day. New highs also were made by National Gypsum, Crane, Berghoff, Hormel, and Wisconsin Bankshares.

Several Issues Rise Sharply.

Gains of $3 a share or so were chalked up by Keystone Steel, Metropolitan Industries, and Miller & Hart. All three were at new tops. Continental Steel eased nearly a point.

Butler Brothers was the only active merchandise stock, recovering fractionally. Walgreen reacted ½ from its previous high. Chicago Yellow Cab slipped back 1¾, ending a continuous two week rise which saw the stock double in vaule. Storkline preferred also slipped back a point from its high. Public Service no-par was off a point.

Arrangements were completed for the sale of a membership on the Chicago exchange at $4,500, unchanged from the last previous sale.

U. S. AND SWISS SIGN RECIPROCAL TRADE TREATY

Pledge Efforts to Check Watch Smuggling.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The United States and Switzerland today formally signed a reciprocal trade treaty slashing duties on products exchanged by the two countries. The treaty, the tenth agreement concluded under the reciprocal trade act, was signed by Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Marc Peter, Swiss minister, in the state department.

Under a proclamation, issued by President Roosevelt, the tarif concessions and minimum quotas of the agreement are effective Feb. 15. The treaty is subject to ratification by the Swiss federal council. A system of regulation of the export of watches and watch movements will become effective May 1. The entire agreement comes into force 30 days after the exchange at Bern, Switzerland, of instruments of ratification and approval.

19 U. S. Products Aided.

Under the treaty the United States gets liberalized quotas on 19 typical American products. These concessions affect approximately 40 per cent of the imports into Switzerland from this country. The quota allotments permit a doubling in value of American products to Switzerland. The treaty provides for a few reductions in Swiss duties and the binding of many rates against increase.

The principal American products benefited under the treaty are wheat, cotton, lard, fruits, canned vegetables, rice, soft wood lumber, office machines, automobiles and automobile tires, petroleum products, coal tar derivatives, goat and kid lether, radio sets, stockings, and chewing gum.

To Fight Watch Smuggling.

A spokesman for the American Jeweled Watch Manufacturers' association recently estimated that nearly a million Swiss watch movements were smuggled into the United States in a single year. The coöperation offered by the Swiss government is expected to aid in safeguarding the public and protecting the American watch industry.

Under the agreement Switzerland gets a reduction on 59 items, about one-third of the rates affected being in the watch and clock paragraphs of the tarif act, according to the state department. The other items are chiefly chemicals, cheeses, specialty textiles, some machinery, and hat braids.

FEAR WATCH INDUSTRY INJURED.

Taylor Strawn, vice president of the Elgin Watch company, said here yesterday that the reduction in tarif rates on watches will hurt the American watch industry. Strawn pointed out that Switzerland now has more than 50 per cent of the United States trade in jeweled watches, and the tarif reduction will work a further hardship on the native industry.

"If Switzerland coöperates earnestly in repressing the smuggling, that may offset the tarif reduction," Strawn said, "but I can't see any need for the reduction under any circumstances. It will hurt employment in American watch factories."

DOLLAR FALLS ON NEW RUMOR OF DEVALUATION

Gold Currencies Rise Despite Denial.

New York, Dec. 9.—[Special.]—A rumor of further devaluation of the American dollar drifted into domestic and European money markets today and resulted in sharp gains for all leading foreign currencies against the dollar. The upturn in gold bloc money was especially aided by a quieter situation in France, as shown in a further reduction in the discount rate today.

Wall street financial experts expressed surprise at the dollar devaluation rumor, saying they had no idea that such "gossip" was abroad until the opening of the London foreign exchange market this morning.

Stabilization Scheme Seen.

These men, who have been following the monetary situation closely day and night, claimed it was their belief that it was an ingenuous scheme on the part of speculators and others who may benefit from such tactics to bring the whole monetary stabilization scheme to the front again, especially since the political and economic condition of France has been bolstered.

Secretary Morgenthau in Washington denied the rumor and warned against believing in such vague reports.

"I wouldn't worry too much about rumors now, especially if they originate outside of the United States," he said.

There were various unverified reports that had a bearing upon the situation. One report that came from London was to the effect that further devaluation of the dollar was probable to offset the depressing effect upon prices expected from abrogation of the AAA by the Supreme court.

Rumor Attributed to Paris.

This rumor was attributed to Paris, due to the rapid rise of the French currency against the dollar there, opening at 6.594 cents to the franc and closing at 6.62 cents.

A second reason given in some circles for the strength in foreign currency was the effect that the bonus payment might have upon prices, with the resultant decline in the purchasing power of the dollar. With the bonus on the mat in congress today, some considered this a more important factor than the reports of possible devaluation.

In commenting upon the situation Secretary Morgenthau also hinted that the administration is studying the extension by presidential proclamation of the two billion dollar stabilization fund, which otherwise would end on Jan. 29.

The secretary denied that he had under consideration any plans to pay the bonus out of silver profits.

Telegram to Roosevelt Cited.

Private cable advices from abroad indicated the telegram sent yesterday by the committee of the nation urging President Roosevelt to devalue the dollar immediately by raising the price of gold to $41 an ounce was the direct cause for a depreciated dollar in today's exchange markets, according to Dow, Jones & Co.

In spite of the fall of the dollar, a further engagement of $2,756,000 gold in India for shipment here was announced today. The day's imports were confined to $286,000 from Eucador. For the week ended on Wednesday the federal reserve bank reported imports of $17,775,000, of which $5,628,000 came from England, $5,109,000 from India, $4,381,000 from Canada, $1,755,000 from Columbia, $888,000 from France, $10,000 from Nicaragua, and $4,000 from Guatemala.

At San Francisco, $1,281,000 gold was received, of which $989,000 was from China and $292,000 from New Zealand. A total of $1,472,000 gold was placed under earmark here from foreign account.

Sterling and Franc Rise.

Net gains for the day amounted to 1⅛ cents in the pound sterling and the French franc rose 2⅝ points to 6.62 cents, reducing the dollar's value against the franc to $1.0020 from $1.0060 yesterday.

Swiss francs gained 9 points to 32.62 cents and the Dutch guilder soared 19 points to 68.07 cents. Belgas gained 5 points to 16.89 cents, and even the Italian lira rose 1 point to 8.03 cents.

Scandinavian currencies followed the pound with gains of from 4 to 7 points and the Canadian dollar at 99⅞ cents was up ⅛ cent for the day. Marks were 6 points higher.

France Lowers Discount Rate.

The reduction in the Bank of France's discount rate was from 5 to 4 per cent, and the rate on advances on securities was lowered from 6 to 5½ per cent, while on 30 day advances from 5 to 4 per cent.

This was the second reduction in the rate within two weeks.

The statement of the Bank of France released today for the week ended Jan. 2 showed a loss of 32,000,000 francs in gold stocks during the period.

Shippers Look for 10.4% Car Loading Gain

Freight car loadings 10.4 per cent greater in the first quarter of 1936 than in the same period last year were forecast by the Mid-West Shippers' Advisory board yesterday at its twelfth annual meeting in the Palmer house.

Applying to loadings originating in Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin, the regional forecast was prepared on the basis of reports of committees on each of various commodities.

Total estimated carloadings of this region for the first quarter are put at 715,524. This compares with 647,911 actual carloads in the same period last year, 660,670 in 1934, and 610,391 in 1933.

Coal and coke loadings estimated at 326,550 make up nearly half of the total. This would be the best first quarter in the four year span and represents a 5 per cent gain over 1935.

Iron and Steel Gain.

Among other principal commodities a gain of 25 per cent is expected in iron and steel and in lumber and forest products, with "better general conditions" given as the reason. A 50 per cent gain in grain, but no advance in live stock carloadings are forecast. Petroleum products will be up 5 per cent in shipments. Gains of 25 to 50 per cent are seen in loadings of fruits other than citrus fruits, agricultural implements, brick and clay products, and lime and plaster.

Harry G. Taylor, chairman of the Western Association of Railway executives, declared that the railroads are hopeful "in spite of the fact that they have been the subject of a searching and expensive investigation by the federal coördinator of transportation and in spite of regulation of the interstate commerce commission, and are more or less under the domination of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Points to Achievements.

He pointed to streamlined and air conditioned trains as among the indicators of hopefulness and courage in the face of possibility that efforts will be nullified by costly legislation. Mention was made of a plan to start pickup and delivery service Jan. 20. He also emphasized safety progress.

"Not a single passenger was killed in an accident on a train during 1935," he said. "Contrast this with the slaughter on the highway. That didn't come about by happenstance, it was brought about by planning and safety measures of a quarter century."

EXPECT DIVIDEND BY CONTINENTAL DIRECTORS TODAY

Stockholders of the Continental Illinois National bank and Trust company will hold their annual meeting this morning for election of directors and other business.

Improved earnings and statements by Chairman Walter J. Cummings that known losses have been taken and adequate write-downs made have focused major interest, however, on the directors' meeting this afternoon, at which dividend action is considered a foregone conclusion. No dividends have been paid for three years.

Guesses as to the amount of the dividend or the annual rate to be established range from a single $1 payment, with no stated rate, to a $4 rate such as was decided upon last month by the First National bank. Other guesses are a $2 rate or a $2 a share payment now, with no rate determined and further action deferred six months.

At bank elections held yesterday Mike Rak and Gustav R. Isakson were named to the board of the East Side Trust and Savings bank. Directors of the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank reëlected all officers.

Edison, Public Service Restore 1932 Wage Rates

Wage rates of the Commonwealth Edison company and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois are now back at the level existing prior to 1932, it was stated yesterday at the offices of the companies. The company reduced all wages 10 per cent in 1932. As a result of a third adjustment made Jan. 1 the old wage rates have been restored. Two previous raises were made by the companies.

Chicago Corp. Assets Climb as Stocks Rise

An increase of more than $11,000,000 in the value of the assets of the Chicago corporation was shown by the annual report of the investment firm, released yesterday.

The rise in security prices that began in the spring of 1935 and continued throughout the year was the biggest factor in boosting the value of the company's assets. The appreciation, however, that took place in the asset value of the company's preferred stock was greater than the advance in security prices generally as measured by the market "averages."

Net assets of the company at the close of 1935 were $43,150,239, compared with $31,732,187 a year earlier, an increase of $11,418,000. The company spent $1,100,000 in retiring 30,875 shares of preference stock during 1935.

Net asset value of the preference stock was $68.48 a share on Dec. 31, 1935, compared with $48.01 at the end of 1934, an increase of 42.64 per cent. During the period covered by the report the stock market, as shown by the Dow-Jones industrial averages, advanced 38.52 per cent, while the Standard Statistics average of 90 stocks gained 41.51 per cent.

The company's common stock had an indicated equity of $2.48 a share at the close of the year after allowing for the preferred stock at the stated value of $50 a share and accrued dividends of $5.50 a share. The preferred stock is entitled to $60 a share in the event of liquidation and is redeemable at $65 a share.

The corporation's 1935 net income was $1,120,000 from interest, dividend, and miscellaneous sources. This was equal to $1.78 a share on the preferred stock. Net income in 1934 was $1,064,194, or $1.58 a share.

Common Stocks Chief Asset.

The report listed common stock holdings of $33,724,535, preferred stocks of $2,231,918, and bonds of $2,759,603, the aggregate of which represented 89.73 per cent of the company's assets. Cash amounted to $1,221,519, or 2.83 per cent of the total assets, and short term notes amounted to $996,019, or 2.31 per cent.

Investment in and advances to the Fort Dearborn Mortgage corporation were carried at $1,526,435 and notes and claims receivable were $601,896, a total of $2,128,331, or 4.93 per cent.

Chicago Board of Trade Suspends J. A. Cavaney

The Chicago Board of Trade yesterday posted notice of the suspension of trading privileges of James A. Cavaney under rule 240. The rule provides for suspension for default. The action was the outgrowth of a controversy between Cavaney and Faroll Brothers over a partnership agreement and does not involve any transactions in grain. Cavaney withdrew as a partner of the firm in 1930.

AUTOMOBILE MAKERS DECIDE TO CONTINUE SHOWS IN NOVEMBER

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Encouraged by the success of the automobile shows last November and in furtherance of their policy of leveling the peaks and valleys of production and sales, the big automobile manufacturers have decided to continue the late autumn exhibits.

The Automobile Manufacturers' association today set Nov. 11 as the opening date for the showing of 1937 models in New York City. The show will continue from Armistice day until Nov. 18, and will be followed by shows in Chicago and other cities.

Output 40 Per Cent Above 1934.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Members of the Automobile Manufacturers' association produced 2,859,727 automobiles and trucks in 1935, an increase of 40 per cent over 1934, Alvan Macauley, president, reported today to the executive committee. The 1935 figure did not reach the totals reported for 1927, 1928, or 1929.

The association includes all the principal manufacturers except the Ford Motor company, which recently reported that its 1935 production for the United States and Canada was 1,272,885 passenger cars and trucks, a 77 per cent increase over 1934.

Production by members of the association in the last quarter of 1935 totaled 828,830 passenger cars and trucks, or 29 per cent of the entire year's output. The number of units manufactured was the largest for the final period of any year in the association's history. The reason for the upturn in the last quarter was attributed to the holding of the automobile shows in the autumn.

NORTH SHORE SUBURBS WIN TRUCK FIGHT

North shore suburbs won a temporary victory yesterday in their fight to restrict operations of trucking companies in their territory when the Illinois commerce commission, in granting certificates of convenience and necessity to three trucking companies, set up a limited route of operation between Chicago and Waukegan.

Following many months of evidence on the application of the companies for certificates, the Willett company, Hastings Express company, and Keeshin Motor Express company were recognized as public utilities and thus brought under the jurisdiction of the commission.

In their applications for certificates the Willett and Hastings companies had requested authority to use certain roads in Evanston, Wilmette, Kenilworth, Winnetka, and other north shore towns. The commission refused this request, reserving the right to make a supplemental ruling on such a route as a result of objections by north shore property owners and municipalities.

The order designated that the trucking companies may operate on a run to Waukegan through Morton Grove, Golf, Glenview, Northbrook, Deerfield, Brannockburn, and Everett.

20 AIR CARRIERS POOL EXPRESS OPERATIONS

Will Serve 215 Cities and 34 Nations.

L. O. HEAD.

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Unification of the air express service of the country, following several months of negotiation, was announced today by L. O. Head, president of the Railway Express agency. Beginning on Feb. 1, the agency will act as coördinator of air and air-rail shipments over twenty of the twenty-three domestic air lines in the United States and the lines of Pan-American Airways leading to Latin America and to the orient. Service is at present provided over this system to all the countries to the southward and as far as Hawaii on the Pacific route. It will be extended to China as soon as ground designs have been worked out.

Through contracts which have been signed, Head indicated direct air express service, with door to door pickup and delivery, will be provided to 215 cities in the United States and Canada with a population of 40,000,000 and to thirty-two other foreign countries. In addition, through the combination of air and rail service, all the 23,000 railway express stations will become air express stations.

Only 3 Not Included.

The only domestic lines not included in the new agreements are Transcontinental and Western Air, Wedell-Williams in Louisiana and the Wilmington-Catalina service connecting California with Catalina Island. Negotiations are in progress with companies and the hope was expressed by Head that these three would also join the system. At the offices of TWA it was said that the matter was still under discussion.

The Railway Express agency has been acting for a number of years with a number of the major air lines. Others have carried on their express business through General Air Express.

Head characterized the expanded air express service as one of the most progressive developments in express transportation since the original consolidation of the various express systems nearly twenty years ago.

Routed by General.

Under the new contracts with the air lines, the railway agency will determine the most expeditious routing of a shipment. Rail service will be used from off air line points and in case of any interruption of flying and conditions of weather will be taken under consideration in determining which of any paralleling air lines will carry a particular shipment so as to bring it to its destination at the earliest moment.

There will be no change in the present rates for air express shipments.

"Owe So Much You Can Borrow More"—It's an Old Idea, Jesse

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Bankers are keenly interested in the statement made by Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation in an interview here on Tuesday that the banks of the nation will have to keep up the price of government bonds because they hold so many of these bonds that they cannot afford to let them drop.

That the maintenance of a debtor's good credit standing is not up to the debtor himself but his creditors is not new philosophy in these parts. Samuel Insull had the same idea in the days preceding the collapse of his utility empire. Insull was "in" the banks for so many millions that when his pyramided companies finally crashed the banks had to charge off such heavy losses that some of them only now are completing the job. Banks now hold about 13 billions of the federal debt and few of them have set up reserves against possible future market losses on these vast holdings.

* *

"Well," said Jones with his Texas drawl, "you can't kid me about Hoover? Isn't he the guy who gave me my job?"

Jones was originally appointed a member of the Reconstruction Finance corporation during the Hoover administration and succeeded Gen. Charles G. Dawes as chairman.

The lists of high salaried officers of leading corporations that are being currently published as released by congress are being put to use in a number of ways by Chicago business men. Credit departments of banks and corporations are indexing and filing the names and amounts as fast as they are published. Insurance salesmen are stuffing them into their portfolios.

A credit officer of one Chicago institution yesterday was receiving many jibes from his associates after the discovery that a supposedly hard-pressed debtor from whom he had been trying for three years to collect an old debt was getting a salary of more than $100,000 per year.

If the wording of a new supplemental coverage section inserted in automobile insurance policies by a leading risk company is any indication, the coming year should not only be interesting but downright exciting. According to this section the car owner is insured not only against tornado, windstorm, cyclone, earthquake, hail, explosion, and water damage, but against "riot, riot attending a strike, insurrection and civil commotion . . . direct loss or damage by the falling of an airplane, seaplane, or other flying machine or by the forced landing of any such aircraft, whether out of control or not, or by the falling of any part of the equipment thereof . . . damage caused by rising of navigable waters, overthrow or breaking of boundaries of ponds, lakes and streams, or accidental discharge or leakage of water from pipes, conveyors or tanks."

With all this protection it would appear to be safer to drive the family flivver around the airport than on the boulevard. There is the somewhat sinister warning in the policy, however, that the company shall not be liable for damage caused by "military, naval or aerial forces of foreign enemies."

President J. M. [100 Per Cent] Nichols of the First National bank of Englewood, having finally been forced to join the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, obeys the letter of the law by printing on his year-end statement "Member Federal Deposit Insurance corporation," but doesn't miss the opportunity to throw another rock at this New Deal agency, which he has so severely criticised in the past.

Under the membership line on the official statement of the bank appears a signed statement by Nichols in which he says that because the FDIC ignores the fundamentals of sound banking the plan is "just another political fraud."

"It penalizes solvent banks to support weak ones," says Nichols. "There never has been, and there never will be, such a thing as an adequate insurance of bank deposits. In times of stress every bank must stand on its own feet—sink or swim on the merit of its own investments."

BANK CLEARINGS SOAR 1½ BILLION FIRST WEEK OF '36

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Bank clearings soared more than $1,500,000,000 in the first business week of the new year to reach a total of $6,720,840,000, the second largest total on record in more than four years, according to figures issued today by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.

The aggregate for the week at 22 leading cities was swelled by a huge volume of first-of-the-month payments. However, this type of payment also was included in the total for the same 1934 week, but in that period the expansion over the preceding week was but $667,719,000, or less than half the extent of the $1,729,039,000 increase recorded this year.

As a result of the sharp expansion, this week's total of $6,720,840,000 was 25 per cent ahead of the corresponding 1935 week's figure of $5,376,940,000. In the preceding week the gain over the same week of the previous year amounted to but 6 per cent.

A sharp rise in "excess reserves" of the country's banks, a decline in money in circulation, and an increase in the country's gold stocks were shown in the weekly banking statistics released last night by the federal reserve system.

The importation of 21 millions of gold and the disbursement of 58 millions of funds by the federal treasury contributed to the expansion in bank reserves. Total reserves showed a gain of 158 millions over the preceding week, and excess of reserves over legal requirements was estimated at approximately three billion dollars.

The report of both the New York and Chicago banks showed sharp increases in holdings of governments. The New York banks increased their holdings by 72 millions. In Chicago bank investments in governments was 24 millions above the preceding week.

U. S. STEEL HEAD SEES RECOVERY AS A CERTAINTY

Irvin Tells Industry to Get Prepared.

William A. Irvin, president of the United States Steel corporation, yesterday said recovery is "as certain as death and taxes." He counseled all industry and commerce to be ready for it, "prepared to contribute their full share to the further economic and social advancement of our great nation."

W. A. IRVIN.
[Acme Photo.]

Before an audience of 1,000 Chicago business and industrial leaders at the Union League club, Irvin voiced his plea for preservation of individual initiative in this country and called for a halt in governmental regulation and meddling with business.

The steel chief criticized reciprocal trade agreements, such as have recently been put in effect with a number of nations. Retention of protective tarifs is necessary, he explained, for protection of the worker's living standards. Averse by nature to public speeches, Irvin was making his first such appearance in Chicago.

Wants Setup in Regulation.

"May I express the earnest hope," said Irvin, "that the governing powers of this nation, whether federal, state, or local, will see the wisdom of subjecting business at this time to no further regulatory legislation, at least not until the country has had time to digest the great mass of new legislation and regulation which is hardly yet effective.

"Let us hope that the wisdom of pausing, until the effect of these regulatory measures is known, will be apparent. It is difficult to proceed with business in an orderly manner when we are faced with continuing uncertainties of new situations confronting us, and their effects on costs and revenues."

It is not practicable yet, continued the steel chief, to estimate the effect of various measures taken in the last six years to arrest depression or promote recovery.

Present problems are not new, he said, but their solution will determine how far government "may exert its influence and interpose its thoughts and direction on conduct of business which has heretofore been deemed as falling within individual prerogatives."

Recovery to Continue.

"Recovery will continue and eventually we shall reach a state of normalcy as uncertainties are eliminated. As confidence is increasingly restored we may expect that the traditional initiative, courage, and enterprise of our people will again induce a commercial and industrial activity that will tax our capacity to fulfill."

Had not the iron and steel indus-

How changing a will increased an estate

One of our customers recently increased by $33,000 the amount his children will eventually receive by changing his will so that his widow will inherit the entire income from his estate (of $200,000) instead of the principal.

Under the new will his widow will have the entire income so long as she lives and part of the principal if needed, the balance going to their children at her death.

It is possible that we may be able to suggest changes in your will that will prove of corresponding benefit to your heirs. We shall be pleased to discuss this with you and your attorney at any time.

STOCKS EASIER; PROFITS ARE PUT ABOVE INFLATION

Various Groups Diverge; Trading Shrinks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 9.—The stock market still had an "inflation" flavor today but the sharp price gains of yesterday and this morning proved too tempting to a great many traders and profit taking sales were rather heavy in some directions, particularly in the late dealings. Some sections, including the oils, mines and a scattering of industrials, continued to move ahead, however, the gains among them running to 3 points or so. Rails held firm and merchandise issues likewise bore up well.

The turnover for the first time in a week failed to reach 3,000,000 shares.

Traders were again interested chiefly in the Washington situation. Advices from the capital pertaining to the proposed action on bonus legislation by the house were studied for whatever inflationary implications they might carry.

Low Priced Stocks Bought.

Observers thought the possibilities tied up in this measure were the impulse for much of the buying in stocks selling under $10 a share. Cabled rumors from abroad that President Roosevelt is preparing to exercise his authority under the law to further increase the price of gold to $41 an ounce, or double the price at which gold was valued in terms of dollars for generations, stirred up some excitement around the board rooms and brought flurries of activity into the mining issues.

Oil shares were the group feature of the day's operations on the exchange. Lifting of crude oil prices by two or three companies yesterday in the southwest and resultant speculation on the probabilities of a general rise in gasoline prices east of the Rockies as an aftermath, gave the division its cue. Amerada was a prize winner, running up 3 points. A number of issues of the group reached new high levels but some of them tapered off from their peaks just before the close.

Atchison Leads Rail Group.

Atchison was the bellwether of the carrier group. Delaware and Hudson, Lackawanna and one or two others displayed energy during the forenoon, but eased in the final realizing backwash.

A few of the more volatile issues performed spectacularly at intervals, among them Air Reduction, which jumped 9 points; National Lead, which rose 6, and Minneapolis Honeywell, which gained 5 points. The preferred issues of Cluett Peabody, Goodrich, Gotham Hosiery, and E. G. Budd finished 4 to 7 points higher. Other senior issues did not fare so well, however, among them being National Biscuit and Certainteed, which dropped 4 and 5 points, respectively.

A feature of the specialty sector was Commercial Solvents, which rose to a new high on turnover of 68,000 shares.

Automobile issues were quiet with little change except for a special stock or two, as, for example, Yellow Truck, which rose a point or so in lively trading. Steel, utility and tobacco stocks met with profit taking. The amusements were irregular.

Irvin Urges Government to Stop Meddling.

try been developed as it has in the United States, said Irvin, "the national economic structure would be on an entirely different and a much smaller and less promising basis." Steel is a barometer of business, he added, because it depends on all types of business and presents a composite picture of them.

"Europe had neither the available supplies of easily won and assembled iron ore and coal, nor did the old world show indications of the genius that was behind the steel development in this country," the speaker continued.

Fostered by Initiative.

"This genius was fostered by the opportunity offered to individual initiative and the rewards for that initiative in a free country.

"If we are to remain a great nation we must not only continue the efficiency of our iron and steel industry, but permit it the opportunity to maintain, if not the leadership of the past, at least an equality of opportunity with the rest of the world in its forward development and improvement in processes and quality.

"To do this demands a continued investment of capital which must either be earned or must be borrowed with assurance that future earnings can return borrowed capital."

Legislation inimical to satisfactory relationship between stockholders, management, and workers is against any of them, continued Irvin. Legislation and taxation which discourage capital accumulation works not only against them but against the "welfare of the whole people."

Raps New Trade Treaties.

"As an instance, I call attention to our reciprocal trade agreement act and its administration. Our markets are being unsettled by revision downward of the tarif on many manufactured products. How can we maintain our wage structure and keep up workmen's present standard of living if foreign subsidized products are permitted to compete in our markets?"

Irvin expressed his advocacy of highest possible wages and said present hourly rates are higher than in 1929. Asserting that the only way to learn the true attitude of employés is to contact their bona fide representatives. He said they have been "subjected to propaganda of the most insidious form and have steadfastly rejected offers of those who would capitalize on their misfortunes and enlist them under the banner of principles alien to our American constitutional form of government."

The speaker was introduced by Edwin C. Austin, president of the Union League club.

Telephones in Chicago Show Gain in Last Year

Final figures for telephones in Chicago at the end of December show a total of 849,889, compared with 846,967 at the end of the preceding month and 824,293 a year ago, the Illinois Bell Telephone company announced yesterday. The total for Illinois was 1,228,262, against 1,223,971 on Nov. 30, and 1,191,936 on Dec. 31, 1934.

White Will Pay Notes from Old Account Collections

White Sewing Machine company has called for redemption on Jan. 15 the $1,186,000 outstanding ten year sinking fund 6 per cent debentures due on that date. The bonds will be retired from funds principally obtained through collections on old instalment accounts due.

HEAVIEST HOG BUYING IN YEARS BOOSTS PRICES

Farmers Rush Shipments to Get Benefits.

The broadest wave of hog buying in recent years swept into the Chicago stockyards yesterday after prices had dipped 10 to 25 cents on a small portion of the run and reversed the trend of the market so sharply that the huge receipts, estimated at 33,000 head, the largest since December, 1934, brought higher average prices than on the preceding session.

In the eleven leading markets of the country the sale of 90,000 hogs averaged $1 a head higher than on Monday before the AAA decision was announced.

Final quotations for a large share of the offerings here were 5 to 10 cents higher than the average of Wednesday and 25 to 35 cents above the low points yesterday forenoon. The average for the whole day at $9.85 showed a gain of 5 cents, the first time in many months, prior to this week, that hogs averaged higher on such heavy receipts.

Little Pork Stored.

Under the processing tax, which reduced the buying power of packers, the markets had been extremely sensitive to the size of supplies and anything over 20,000 head depressed the entire list. Packers for months have been working on a hand to mouth basis, storing away very little pork due to the uncertainty existing in the industry under the AAA and the extremely high live costs of hogs which included the tax, as well as the famine receipts of hogs resulting from the program.

It was reported yesterday that packers are now restocking their pork cellars, which would indicate that hogs at current prices look good to the buyers.

Some salesmen were holding stock off the market again, many of them on orders from the country. There has been a large increase in hog receipts since the Supreme court ended the processing tax, the eleven leading markets during the first four days of this week receiving 347,000 head, an increase of 170,000 hogs, or 96 per cent, compared with the four days of last week. Chicago handled 118,500 this week, against 54,494 a week ago and 52,773 two weeks ago.

Supplies Held Back.

The explanation for the increase comes from the farmers themselves, who said yesterday that they had expected the Supreme court to eliminate the tax on hogs and for the last two or three weeks have been holding supplies back to take advantage of the sharply higher net returns on the market which they felt certain would follow the death of the tax.

Upward to $10.05 was paid for several loads of 180 to 210 pound young hogs similar to the kinds that brought $9.75 earlier in the forenoon, and $9.90 at the close of Wednesday. Early Wednesday a peak of $10.35 was established. A scattering of sales of 0 to 300 pound butchers early made .50 to $9.75, but these weights at e close were bringing mostly $9.75 $10, big local packers paying the tter figure freely at the close.

Other Meats Affected.

Cheaper pork is affecting the demand for other meats, cattle and eep buyers find, and they were out sterday to try to shave live costs. olesale quotations for beef were ak to 50 cents lower and lamb at brought steady to $1 lower ces in the principal packing cen s.

est demand was for the cheapest des of cattle, which buyers favored hopes of holding down their costs. eral quality was plainer, nothing he run being good enough to sell $12.50. The bulk brought $7.75 9.75, with a scattering of plain s down to $6.50 and under.

he lamb trade remained in a dead for several hours as sellers re d the break in prices, but pack finally obtained the supply at 10 5 cents decline, mostly 25 cents r.

MORE EASTERN COMPANIES SUE FOR AAA TAXES

Chicago Packers Still Hold Up Action.

While Chicago meat packers and food processing companies took no formal legal steps yesterday toward recovery of funds paid in processing taxes, suits were brought by a number of companies in the east.

The Pepperell Manufacturing company filed a petition in Boston requesting the collector of internal revenue, William M. Welch, to refund $569,723 in tax funds impounded by the federal court prior to the Supreme court's decision invalidating the agriculture adjustment program. The funds were paid by the company during the period from August to December, 1935, in cotton process taxes, the petition set forth.

Suit Filed in Boston.

The Plymouth Cordage company also filed a petition in Boston requesting the return of $1,903 in processing taxes on jute. Hearings on the petitions will be held Jan. 13 by Federal Judge Elisha H. Brewster.

The Quissett mill, New Bedford, Mass., filed a petition seeking refund of taxes impounded by the federal court and announced that it would bring suit for recovery of an additional $192,000 paid under the AAA. The company is represented by Edward R. Hale and Bennett Sanderson of Boston, who acted for the Hoosac mills in the case which resulted in the Supreme court's decision overturning the act.

$43,000,000 Is Collected.

Attorney Sanderson was quoted in dispatches as saying that $43,000,000 has been collected in processing taxes in Massachusetts alone.

Attorneys for Chicago packing companies and processors declined to discuss their plans yesterday. It was indicat , however, that most of the concerns will await the decision in the rice millers' case, in which the validity of the AAA amendments is challenged. Approximately $55,000,000 in tax funds has been tied up by the federal court here.

LARD DIPS UNDER PRESSURE OF SELLING, HOG RECEIPTS

Liquidation of lard futures by longs and hedging pressure as the result of the marked expansion in hog receipts resulted in a decline of as much as 35 cents in futures yesterday. Numerous stop-loss orders were uncovered on the decline, with prices dropping below the $11 level for the first time since November, 1934. Short covering, induced by the rally in hogs, brought about some recovery from the inside figures, but the close was at net losses of 15 to 27½ cents.

Clear bellies [salt pork] closed 10 cents lower. Shipping demand for cured hog products was reported as dull.

Cash lard closed at $11.05; loose, $10.37; leaf, $10.50, and clear bellies at $16.75 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds:

COTTON BELOW 10 CENTS; FIRST TIME IN TWO YEARS

General liquidation developed in cotton futures yesterday with the new crop deliveries dropping below the 10 cent level, the first time any future has been below that figure since December, 1933. Uneasiness over the elimination of acreage control and weakness in Liverpool were the depressing influences.

Foreigners were not aggressive on the buying side and were said to fear that the export subsidy plan may be used in an effort to support the American market.

While the January delivery in New Orleans and New York showed evidence of congestion, the more deferred futures closed around the bottom with losses ranging upward to $1.90 per bale, the latter on the Chicago July delivery. New Orleans was unchanged to $2.20 per bale lower, compared with Tuesday's close.

Spot cotton was 25 cents to $1.75 per bale lower with New Orleans 11.30 cents, Houston 11.35 cents, Galveston 11.20 cents and New York, 11.80 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound:

EGG FUTURES IRREGULAR; BUTTER PRICES UNCHANGED

Trade in butter and egg futures was restricted yesterday with traders on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange reported as awaiting further developments before taking a decided stand on either side of the market. Butter closed unchanged with January at 31¾ cents per pound. Eggs were ⅛ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher with January at 17¾ cents per dozen.

New York reported the arrival of a shipment of butter from Argentina. Production of butter last week, according to the American association report, was 7 per cent less than last year. Sales of butter were 83 cars, eggs 23 cars, and potatoes 2 cars. Prices:

DOLLAR VOLUME OF U.S. GOLD OUTPUT IN 1935 ESTABLISHES RECORD

Washington, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The bureau of mints announced today that 1935 domestic gold production reached an all time dollar value of $124,115,915.

This figure, calculated at $35 an ounce, did not set a new quantative high, however. But 3,546,169 ounces were produced compared with the record of 4,887,604 ounces in 1915 when gold was valued at $20.67 an ounce. The 1934 production was 3,091,183 ounces.

The bureau announced the domestic production of silver amounted to 44,824,629 ounces during the year, having a value of $33,080,576 at an average price of 73.8 cents, the purchase rate paid by the treasury.

The record of silver production also was reached in 1915 with 74,961,075 ounces.

AAA SITUATION RULING FACTOR IN COMMODITIES

May Wheat Drops 1 Cent; Other Grains Ease.

Commodity markets continued in a state of flux yesterday as a result of readjustment necessitated by the elimination of the AAA production control. While price changes in grains were confined to small fractions, with the exception of a decline of 1 cent in May wheat, cotton dropped as much as $1.90 per bale to the lowest level since December, 1933, and lard declined around 25 cents per 100 pounds to a new low since November, 1934.

Wheat prices held within comparatively narrow limits, with a good part of the business consisting of closing spreads between the May and the July deliveries. This narrowed the spread to around 12¼ cents compared with 13½ cents premium for the May at the highest point on Wednesday.

Pay No Attention to Inflation.

Traders paid no attention to inflation talk, although the depreciation of the dollar in foreign exchange was partly responsible for irregularity in foreign wheat markets.

Many operators who had anticipated that flour buyers and mills would rush into the market and make heavy purchases of wheat following the AAA decision were said to have disposed of their holdings of the May future as prices declined.

There is still considerable uncertainty apparent as to the government's policy regarding production control, and it is understood mills have been selling flour minus the processing tax with the understanding buyers would have to assume any new levy which might be made by the government.

Export Sale Reported.

What is said to have been the first export business in American wheat and flour in some time was reported yesterday. An Ohio mill was understood to have sold a small lot of soft wheat flour to the United Kingdom, presumably for special purposes, and there was an unconfirmed rumor 20,000 bushels of soft red winter wheat had also been taken.

No export business of consequence was indicated in Canadian cash wheat. Minneapolis mills were said to have made purchases of Manitobas. Winnipeg closed ⅝ cent lower, and Liverpool was off ⅛ to ½ cent in American funds, an advance in sterling partly offsetting lower quotations in the English market.

	Yesterday.	Wednesday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$1.01½	$1.02½	$1.02⅝
Corn	.60⅞	.61⅛	.61⅛
Oats	.28⅜	.28⅜	.28⅜
Rye	.54⅞	.54⅞	.55⅜

Liquidation by some holders having long positions and a recession of as much as 1 cent in the basis in the sample market had a depressing effect on corn, but losses were fractional. There was some buying of corn against sales of wheat.

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The bond market maintained a firm tone in nearly all departments today, although the pace of trading was at a somewhat slower tempo. Sales for the session amounted to $19,636,000, compared with yesterday's total of $21,571,000.

While greater than average gains among second grade and speculative issues were fewer, this type maintained a firm tone. Railroad and utility issues proved strong resistant spots when profit taking cropped out in some sections of the bond market today.

Recent leaders in the low priced carrier group steamed ahead at full speed and net gains of small fractions to well over a point were numerous at the close. Utilities did not fare so well, but there were more gains than losses, and brokers reported a sizable backlog of buying orders resting slightly under current levels.

United States government bonds displayed strength despite the fact that trading interest remained well below the levels of recent sessions. Gains ranged from 5-32ds in the treasury 2¾s to 2-32 in the Home Owners Loan 3s. Sales were under $1,000,000.

Among the active issues moving ahead for gains of small fractions to more than a point were New Haven 4s, Southern Pacific 4½s, Atlantic Coast Line 4½s, Reading 4½s, Pan-American Petroleum 6s, Walworth 6s, and Peoples Gas 5s.

American Water Works 5s of 1944 were offered rather freely and closed 1⅜ points lower, but the 6s advanced fractionally. Others losing on balance included Laclede Gas 5½s, Consolidated Gas 5½s, Postal Telegraph 5s, American Rolling Mill 4¼s, and Loews 6s.

Substantial improvement in South American issues gave the foreign division an appearance of steadiness. The Italian group was a shade lower.

Kansas Power Company.

Investors' Guide: Please give me some information as to the standing of Kansas Power company.—J. E.

Answer: Kansas Power company is an operating company, part of the Middle West corporation system. It supplies electricity to more than 24,000 customers in 88 Kansas communities, as well as ice and water to a few.

Operating revenues for the first nine months of 1935 totaled $1,084,000 and net income was $124,000, or $6.36 per preferred share. This compared with operating revenues of $1,070,000 and net income of $139,000, or $7.14 per preferred share, for the first nine months of 1934.

Operating revenues in 1934 totaled $1,412,000, against $1,371,000 in 1933 and $1,427,000 in 1932. Net income in 1934 was $174,000, or $9.01 per preferred share, against $179,000, or $9.27 per preferred share, for 1933. In 1932 net income was $283,000 and in 1931, $388,000.

On Dec. 31, 1934, current assets were $314,000 and current liabilities were $326,000, a substantial improvement over the year before.

United Aircraft Warants.

Investors' Guide: I have had information from you in the past and I would like to get some more. I hold a hundred shares of United Aircraft, 50 United Airlines Transport and 25 Boeing Airplane. I understand that I may exercise the right to purchase additional stock at $30 per common share. I do not fully understand this.—C. L. F.

Answer: United Aircraft and Transport corporation, before it dissolved and distributed its assets to the three companies whose stocks you hold, had issued warants which entitled the holders to purchase its stock at $30 a share until Nov. 1, 1938.

If you hold these warants you may purchase for $30 one share of United Aircraft stock, half a share of United Air Lines Transport and one-quarter share of Boeing Airplane for each two warants held.

The mere ownership of the stock you have does not in itself give you the right to purchase the shares at the prices mentioned. The right accrues from ownership of the warants.

RFC CUTS DOWN DISBURSEMENTS; COLLECTS MORE

Banks Make Best Record in Repaying Loans.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Disbursements made by the Reconstruction Finance corporation in December for activities of the corporation other than advances made to governmental agencies and for relief totaled only $96,667,589, while repayments made on earlier loans in the same categories were $117,586,191, according to an accounting of its operations since its establishment on Feb. 2, 1932, made today by the corporation.

Over the period from 1932 to Dec. 31, 1935, total disbursements of this type totaled $5,830,648,163, and repayments were $3,237,092,716, or approximately 56 per cent.

Banks and trust companies held a high record of repayments, 80 per cent of disbursements, having received in loans of all kinds $1,931,075,125, and repaid $1,548,634,557.

Over 8 Billions Disbursed.

Disbursements of all kinds by the RFC since February, 1932, including advances to government agencies and relief allocations—the latter item totaling $1,599,973,202 — aggregated $8,197,376,669, of which $3,240,451,067 had been repaid on Dec. 31.

The record showed that railroads had received advances of $487,216,824 and made repayments of $90,966,963; mortgage loan companies got $310,961,204 and repaid $182,745,827; building and loan associations, $116,441,250 and repaid $109,081,915; insurance companies, $89,519,494 and returned $83,059,038.

Through the Commodity Credit corporation loans and payments were as follows:

	Disbursements.	Repayments.
Loans on cotton..	$423,051,451	$162,181,139
Loans on turpentine	6,922,505	921,446
Other loans	16,416,675	8,197,191

Vast Sum for Relief.

The large disbursements for relief included $299,984,999 to states directly by the RFC, $499,988,203 to states on certification of the Federal Relief administration, $500,000,000 under the emergency appropriation act of 1935, and $300,000,000 under the emergency relief appropriation act of 1935.

Since February, 1932, authorizations for preferred stock, capital notes and debentures in 7,254 banks and trust companies totaled $1,294,258,169, of which $108,953,785 was canceled.

Loans have been authorized for distribution to depositors of 2,665 closed banks aggregating $1,170,031,738, of which $188,350,186 has been canceled.

HALSEY, STUART BUYS $30,800,000 PENNSY BOND ISSUE FROM RFC

Halsey, Stuart & Co. Inc. was the highest bidder for $30,800,000 Pennsylvania Railroad company secured 4 per cent serial bonds, maturing $1,100,000 on Jan. 1 of each year from 1937 to 1964 inclusive, the Reconstruction Finance corporation announced in Washington yesterday. Reoffering of the bonds is expected at prices to yield from 0.75 to 3.88 per cent.

The offer of this company was 1,035.47 per 1,000 as compared with 1,033.078 by Brown, Harriman & Co., and 1,027.30 by the First Boston corporation, the only other bidders. The RFC had taken over the bonds from the PWA and the bids were opened yesterday. While the high price represented a substantial premium, a somewhat higher figure had been expected by the RFC officials.

The bonds were issued by the Pennsylvania to provide funds to complete the electrification of its lines between New York and Washington and are a direct obligation on the Pennsylvania railroad.

Jones said yesterday that W. P. Kenney, president of the Great Northern railroad, would confer with him on Tuesday in regard to the offer made by the RFC on Dec. 15 to buy any part of a $100,000,000 issue of ten year bonds required to meet a July 1 maturity, that were not taken over by private interests at that price.

Consideration was then being given to a bond offering carrying a higher rate of interest and the RFC offer created much comment in railroad and financial circles. Jones said his guess was that Kenney would accept the RFC offer.

FIELD SEEDS

Timothy seed was quoted around $3.30@3.35 per 100 lbs for country run and $3.70@3.75 for fancy recleaned.

Prices quoted are for irregular country run lots, unless otherwise specified, per 100 lbs. Jobbers' prices to the retail trade are higher. Red clover, country run, $14.00@18.00; fancy recleaned, $18.75. Alsike, $18.50@22.00. Alfalfa, Kansas, $13.75; Idaho, $14.00; Utah, $13.75; affidavit Grimm, $16.25; sweet clover, country run, $4.10@4.60; red top, 90 to 95 per cent purity, $7.40@8.40.

Prepare Now for the Big Season Ahead.

Will Enable You to EARN MORE

The easy-to-learn Burnham System quickly enables you to become a skilled beauty operator. Plenty of living models. You learn by doing rather than by studying. Each teacher a specialist. Fewer pupils per teacher.

SEE FOR YOURSELF WHY MORE GIRLS ENROLL IN BURNHAM'S THAN IN ANY OTHER BEAUTY SCHOOL.

BURNHAM'S AWARDS TRIP TO PARIS to STUDENTS. Geneve Huffman, winner of semi-annual Burnham scholarship for efficiency while in training, sailed June 19 on S. S. Manhattan with all expenses paid. Burnham's offers opportunities not found elsewhere.

DAY OR EVENING CLASSES. Pay for MOST of your tuition after graduation. It is to your advantage to register now, even if you cannot start until later. Open every day and on Monday, Wednesday, Friday evenings until 9 p. m.

LEGAL NOTICES.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS AND STOCKHOLDERS OF RELIANCE BANK AND TRUST COMPANY STATE OF ILLINOIS, COUNTY OF COOK, ss—In the Superior Court of Cook County. Frank Burket, John L. Thomas and F. M. Sawyer and R. L. Allen, co-partners, doing business as Sawyer & Allen, complainants, vs. Reliance Bank and Trust Company, a banking corporation, et al. defendants. A. B. T. Pigall, complainant, vs. Reliance Bank and Trust Company, a banking corporation, et al. defendants. Consolidated proceedings under General No. 559836. Public notice is hereby given that in the above entitled cause, which is a representative suit for the benefit of all of the creditors of Reliance Bank and Trust Company to enforce the liabilities of the stockholders of said bank to the creditors thereof, there was filed on the 31st day of December A. D. 1935, a petition on behalf of certain defendant stockholders to settle their respective alleged liabilities to the creditors of said bank upon the payment of sums equal to seventy per cent of the par value of the stock of said bank now or formerly owned by them, and that on said date an order was entered in said cause [1] granting leave to any and all other persons who are or were stockholders in said bank to file on or before January 20, 1936, similar petitions for settlement on the same basis, PROVIDED such persons shall FIRST deposit with Martin T. O'Brien, receiver therein, the amounts so offered in settlement of their respective liabilities; [2] ordering that any and all parties in interest, including complainants, and any and all other creditors of said bank who desire to object to settlements of liabilities on said common basis, shall incorporate said objections in answers to be filed as hereinafter set forth; [3] setting said cause for hearing on said petitions and any answers filed thereto, before the Honorable John P. McGoorty, one of the Judges of said Court, in Room 806 of the County Building, Chicago, Illinois, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M. on January 25, 1936; and [4] providing that at the conclusion of said hearing the Court will determine and provide for the payment of costs and expenses of these proceedings.

Any and all persons who are or were stockholders of said Reliance Bank and Trust Company and who desire to file petitions for settlement on said common basis shall file petitions therefor and make deposits thereunder in accordance with said order.

Any and all creditors of the Reliance Bank and Trust Company who desire to object to the settlement of the liabilities of said stockholders shall embody said objections in answers to said petitions for settlement and file the same in said proceeding in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court and shall serve copies thereof upon the solicitors for complainants and upon the solicitors for those stockholders whose offers are objected to, on or before January 24, 1936.
